

"MAY I RING THE BELL?"

One Sabbath, on an Island in the Indian Ocean, a missionary was studying a sermon to preach in the language of the people. A boy, half-clad, came in and said:

"May I do something for Jesus?"

"And what can you do?" asked the missionary.

Blushing and stammering, as if afraid to say something, he replied:

"I will always be there; I will do it loud—please let me ring the bell."

While he was a boy, he rang the bell which invited the people to church; and when he had become a man, he preached to his people the same news that he had commenced calling the people to hear when he rang the Sabbath bell. Boys, begin when you are young to call the people by bell, or voice, or tract, or by inviting children to Sabbath school.—Sel.

WHATSOEVER THY HAND FINDETH TO DO, DO IT WITH ALL THY MIGHT

Alan on his way to play stopped a minute to read his verse again—"Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might."

Then he stopped. "Might is a big word. My might, my might," said he. Alan liked that word. He had skimmed over his spelling yesterday, but not with his might. He settled down for five minutes just boring into that lesson with his whole mind. "There, never need to do it again." He had practised this morning, looking out of the window and watching the clock. Ten minutes of might would put that right.

He had cleared up around the yard for Father. Better try a little more might here. "Might" picked up another barrowful of sticks and got a quarter from Father.

Sunday-school lessons are not always done when they are learned by heart. Try learning them by might.—Clipped.

THE GREATEST FIELD; THE EASIEST PLOUGHING THE LARGEST YIELD— CHILDREN'S WORK.

By Rev. C. E. Stairs

The greatest field for gospel work and evangelism is among our children. Most of our churches have more children under their influence than adults. That truth is indicated by the fact that our Sunday schools are commonly larger than our church congregations. We have the privilege of ministering to children whose parents do not even attend our churches. Here among our children is our greatest field. Why should it go unseeded and uncultivated. Why do we spend most of our energies on the adult crop?

We also observe that the ploughing is easier in this field of labour. Children are more tender, pliable, responsive, and sincere. They are more easily won. Even though children are subject to fickleness, their first experience in Christ seems to impress itself indelibly upon their minds and has an inescapable influence in their later lives. Children still have a higher batting average than older folks. A writer in "Herald of His Coming" informs us that 60% of all Christians are saved before they are thirteen years of age.

Child evangelism and training assure the largest yield of all the forms of Christian labour. There is a greater yield in service; a longer life and a better-prepared life for the Master. There is a greater yield in character: a better and earlier foundation, not weakened by years of sin.

Let us turn our eyes to this neglected field and put our hand to the plough.

Morehouse bringing the message, his subject being "Man's No. 1 Enemy." Sunday afternoon Sunday School was held at two o'clock. The afternoon message was brought by Rev. E. R. Watson from Titus chapter 2. Sunday evening Rev. R. G. Morehouse brought the closing message entitled "Conflicting Spiritual Forces."

All who attended received a spiritual refreshing, and some received help at the altar at the closing service.

This was the first time that the district meeting had been in Sussex. The fine group of people were very hospitable, and we praise God for the beautiful church building He has provided in the town of Sussex.
