

THE MAGIC TOOTH

Evelyn Miriam Adams

Mtessa was brave and fearless. He was afraid of nothing. Other Africans might shrink at the sound of the lion's roar but not Mtessa. Whenever a snake threatened the missionaries Mtessa was called, and he always destroyed it calmly. Whenever villagers set out to kill a lion, Mtessa was always a leader in the group.

"Why, Mtessa, are you never afraid?" asked the missionary one day. Mtessa smiled and displayed a charm, one of many around his neck.

"See this charm, Bwana? It is a tooth from a twin antelope. Nothing can hurt me when I wear it, so I am never afraid."

"But Mtessa, the tooth will not protect you," replied the Missionary. "Why do you not receive the Lord Jesus Christ into your heart and trust Him for protection and salvation?"

"I do not need the white man's God," replied Mtessa. "The tooth protects me from harm, and I sacrifice chickens and goats to the evil one so I am not afraid."

All the missionary's arguments were in vain. Mtessa trusted firmly in the tooth.

One night a lion killed some of the villagers' cows so the next day a hunting party was made up. The missionary and Mtessa were in the party. Soon the lion's tracks were discovered and the dogs began barking. Guns were ready.

Suddenly the lion charged them. Mtessa was ahead, fearless as usual. Instead of running from the lion he ran toward it waving his gun. The missionary and the rest of the natives were horrified. The missionary could not shoot for fear of hitting Mtessa.

Mtessa's foot caught in a jungle vine and he fell heavily to the ground. His gun went off. The missionary fired and the great lion sprang into the air wounded and then fell to the ground. It got up and mauled Mtessa who screamed in agony. Then the great beast fell dead.

Mtessa fainted and they carried him to the mission hospital. For a long time his life hung in the balance. When he began to recover he said, "Pray for me, Bwana."

The missionary asked if Mtessa would also like to pray. Mtessa knew what he meant and asked for a knife. Off came all the charms to which Mtessa had trusted his life and he said, "After this, Bwana, I shall offer no more sacrifices to the evil one. I receive Christ as my Saviour and I shall live for Him from now on."

searching, scorching flame, that it may burn up in heart and life whatever is earthly and sinful."

Let Mr. Chadwick's own question challenge the heart of every reader of this message: "Are we prepared to let the searching, sanctifying power go through us, lighting up every corner and crevice of our whole life, testing every motive, destroying every idol, startling with its fiery glare our secret sins, and wrapping its fiery tongue around every treasured wrong?"

Think of the difference that Pentecost made to the disciples themselves. That can happen to each of us today.

This therefore is a message of personal revival, for revival is the daily experience of any believer when filled and running over with the indwelling life of risen, ascended, glorified and coming again Lord Jesus.

fruit, pickles, etc., and cash. Again we say "Thank you".

The Bethany Carollers visited us one evening and brought us some lovely Christmas music. Again we fellowshiped with faculty and students at the annual Christmas banquet. We enjoyed the Christmas concert at Sandford, and received gifts from the kind friends there. I could go on and on telling of the kindness of our people to us. The students at Bethany have helped in many ways from baby-sitting to pulling on storm windows. To each and every one, God bless you.

Now we are facing a new year with a new challenge. Our prayer is that we may meet it and do His will this year, as He has planned for us. Let us each one put our "hand in the Hand of God" and follow where He leads. A Blessed New Year to you all.

In Him,

Charles and Myra Sanders,
Pamela Esther and Joy.
