

apply for a Mexican divorce—by proxy—until after the baby was born! This gutter-moralled adulteress is Hollywood's number one actress!

Miss Bergman, the adulteress, was Hollywood's best actress for 1956. Who was the second best actress? The woman receiving that award was Dorothy Malone. Her honor came as a result of her performance in the film, "Written on the Wind." Whereas Hollywood's best actress, Miss Bergman, is an adulteress in real life, their next best actress, Miss Malone, plays a "nymphomaniac" on the screen in the part which obtained for her the coveted prize. A nymphomaniac is a sexcrazed individual with uncontrollable sexual desires. Look magazine called her a "wanton woman who seduces every nearby male in chagrin over her failure to get (Rock) Hudson, the man she really wants." It describes her efforts to get Hudson with the words, "in a tireless chase to have him, 'marriage or no marriage.'" The magazine further reports her prize-winning part in the film by declaring that she does a "maddened defiant strip-tease when she is arrested for immorality." This is the role portraying Hollywood's second best actress.

I wonder, breathes there yet a man with soul so dead, who to himself innocently says, What's wrong with the movies?

FLU EPIDEMIC AT BETHANY

It was a joy to see the majority of the Bethany students make their way to class Monday, October 28. The previous week and a half was a time of affliction. Nearly all the students on the Campus were victims of the flu epidemic which has been sweeping the continent. Over 50% of our campus students were afflicted at one time.

This sickness resulted in an extra burden being placed upon some of the staff. A special word of thanks is due the College Nurse and the Cook, who bore the greater part of the burden.

Many of the students assisted in waiting on their comrades and by attending to other duties as health permitted. We are grateful for the contribution each one made to the subsiding of the epidemic.

Special recognition of God's faithfulness is appropriate. We thank Him that, while some of the patient's temperature exceeded 104°, there were no casualties. Let His Name be praised!

BETHANY LIBRARY

As I walked through the library door today, I was impressed by the reception that I was given. The room was empty, except for a few students who were busying themselves with their work, and few tables and chairs and about 2500 books. These books were standing erect to greet me with excitement. The atmosphere was convincing as these 2500 books seemed to cry out, "O' You are bringing a new friend ((book))". This greeting of gladness suddenly subsided as they discovered that I was returning an old friend. As this old friend was placed on the rack, all of the books seemed to cry out, "Our task is too big; and we have had no reinforcements for some time. O' for some new acquaintances; some specialized friends to help us bridge the gaps in the realm of literature."

Just why this experience came to me, I do not know. One thing I do know is that it reminded me of our Library's need. I feel I should present this need to you.

Our Bethany Library had a small beginning. It has been growing slowly but not steadily. From time to time individuals have made personal contributions to the library. Our Young People's Societies have made valuable contributions to the library. These contributions have helped us to broaden our library facilities as well as to broaden the range of reading material.

Individuals have spoken to us about making personal contributions to the library as a memorial to loved ones or friends. Such contributions are respected and appreciated. It is our continual hope that some people who are lovers of culture and spiritual literature will feel a desire to contribute toward the building up of our college library. What better way could we perpetuate the memory of those we hold dear to us than by placing their names in the literature that is characteristic of the fundamentals upon which Christian civilization stands?

To state an absolute need, would be ridiculous. However, gifts amounting to $1,000.00 would not be unreasonable. Every gift will be acknowledged with appreciation. Think about this! Pray about it!
