

it happened and the disciples were left alone to battle against it. How like life. The temptation ever is, when intense opposition arises and almost insurmountable difficulties develop, for the soul to conclude he is out of divine order — not going under divine appointment. This is a satanic falsehood, proved to be such on almost every page of the Bible.

Now let us look just a bit further into this beautiful but frightening narrative. Jesus, the exhausted man, suddenly becomes Christ, the element-controlling God. Let it be noted that this God-Man had more difficulty stilling the storm in the human soul than He did in stilling the storm on the sea. It is always thus. He commands the winds and the sea, and they obey Him, but man falters, questions, and very fearfully commits Himself to the Lord.

No trusting child of God is destined to be raised in a sheltered nook. We are appointed to hardship and suffering—hardship and hindered work. This is the heritage of those who love God.

Then let the storms come; He controls them. They blow at His will. And let it be remembered: "There is nothing too hard for God."

Storms may come, but fear not. They blow by His permission, for "He knows, He loves, He cares."

HIS NEAR ADVENT

The Second Advent is the Christian's hope, and should be our constant inspiration. The assurance that our Lord will come again should nerve us for the fight, and steady us for our task. It should cheer us in our lonely hours, and move us to fresh effort when we are inclined to despair. And "What will it be when the King comes?"

Dr. W. Graham Scroggie.

REVIVAL FELLOWSHIP

A Christian lay person writes: "Noticing in The King's Highway a challenge to revival fellowship, I feel in my heart that this is a real challenge. I sincerely hope many will rally to this important call. I, for one, have been praying for a mighty world-wide revival, as well as for one in our own denomination.

"We know revival begins in individual hearts. I truly pray, 'Lord, stir me into greater activity and more obedient walking in the known will of my Lord.' Second Chronicles 7:14 and Joel 2:13 are favorite scriptures of mine and there are many, many more."

This revival fellowship is being conducted to bring individual intercessors into a fellowship of mutual interest and through their testimonies to kindle fires in other hearts. This column, if it fulfills its purpose, will facilitate the spreading of revival.

In an account of a recent revival in central Africa a writer observes: "Then it is noticeable in nearly every case that REVIVAL SPREADS THROUGH THE REVIVED. Life transmits life. That challenges us.

It looks from the accounts of these revivals that actually revival is always at the door, always just beneath the surface, for the Reviver has been on earth since Pentecost, only He must be transmitted through one who has Him."

Why not share your burden for revival with us in "Revival Fellowship"? Write the column editor, Rev. C. E. Stairs, 38 Pleasant Street, Truro, N. S.
