Stewardship is here to stay. It begins when a person decides to follow Jesus Christ, and it forms the basis of his living for the rest of his life.—Harry S. Myers.

OBITUARY

On Feb. 23, after a very lengthy illness, Mrs. Hattie Haskel's death occurred in the Yarmouth Hospital, N. S., where she spent the last few weeks of her sickness.

In spite of her lot, a very cheerful disposition always characterized this saint of God. She lived in the realm of constant prayer and praise. Mrs. Haskel was the last charter member of the Sandford R. B. Church.

A considerable time before her death, she took up residence in Port Maitland.

Rev. Gorman assisted the writer in the service.

THE MESSAGE OF EASTER

(March 21, 1940), used these words: "Jesus hath abolished death! If this is true, then the whole world must be aware of it. For after all, death is the great ground of fear. The amenities of civilization fail us here : : : Mere enlightenment does nothing to help us, face to face with death. Jesus Christ hath abolished death by dying and rising again."

Because of Christ's victory, you two may have victory—not only over the power of death, but over the trials and problems of life. His resurrection power is available to all those who will trust Him, and Him alone, for their souls' every need.

FAITHLESSNESS IN PRAYER

The habit of spasmodic seasons of prayer can never be substituted for fixed and regular times for prayer.

All our life must be and is carefully organized. We have our meal time, our work time, our rest time. No one thinks of leaving these to accident of mood or temperament.

Why should we subject prayer to our moods, and subordinate it to our inclination or disinclination as the case may be? We do nothing else that is serious on this principle. And yet, too often, we do the most serious thing of all after this fashion.—W. Graham Scroggie.
