WE MUST WORK

There have been those who have looked upon work of any kind as being quite disassociated from religion.

A stranger to the East, seeing a tomb venerated, asked, "Who is buried here?" He received the answer. "A holy man, sir." Upon asking, "What did he do?" he was greeted with the surprised exclamation. "Do? He didn't do anything; he was a holy man."

God is holy, but He is the greatest worker of all. "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work," said Jesus.

We must work; work to save souls. We must work with purpose, energy and patience. "Work, for the night is coming!"
