and pray . . . " (2 Chron. 7:14). It was with "strong cryings" that the Lord prayed. The heavens must be "rent." There must be agony of desire in prayer. Just quoting the Lord's Prayer or using an oft-repeated benediction will not do to bring down the blessing of God. The arrow must come from a bow that is full bent.

A Supreme Delight in Soul Winning

"No man cared for my soul" is the cry of millions, and if it is not, then it could be. Let me ask you a question. Before you were saved, how many people spoke to you about the eternal destiny of your soul? In twenty-two and one-half years, only two people spoke to me about my salvation. Doesn't the Bible say, "Let the redeemed of the Lord say so"? Then why are we so silent about the grandest news that ever fell on mortal ear? We need more sermons on soul winning. We need more songs about soul winning. We do not sing, "Rescue the perishing, care for the dying." We need the encouragement that song would bring to our souls as we would sing it. It seems that the song, "Throw out the life line across the dark waves," has been forgotten. So few have a passion for "throwing out the life line." We want the blessing of God, and yet we do not want to pay the price.

Let these truths grip our hearts, and let us get into that place before God where His blessing can flow into our lives unhindered.—The Free Methodist.
