

MISTAKES

Here are fourteen great mistakes:

- It is a great mistake to set up our own standard of right and wrong and judge people accordingly.
- To measure the enjoyment of others by our own.
- To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.
- To look for judgment and experience in youth.
- To endeavour to mold all dispositions alike.
- Not to yield in immaterial trifles.
- To look for perfection in our own actions.
- To worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied.
- Not to alleviate all that needs alleviation as far as lies within our power.
- Not to make an allowance for the infirmities of others.
- To consider all things impossible that we cannot perform.
- To believe only what our finite minds can grasp.
- To expect to understand everything.

The greatest mistake is to think we shall live for all time, when any moment may launch us into eternity.

FACTS THAT FIGURE

1. The more you know about God the more you want of Him.
2. If too many cooks spoil the broth it is also reasonable that too many objects of worship spoil the life.
3. More lives have been strengthened by giving than by getting.
4. The proof of good living is not found in the measure of our shirking but in the measure of our serving.
5. God's promises have never been broken by our claiming them.
6. David's God was "Most High" and "Almighty". Is this God your God?
7. Love is the greatest thing in the world; but love of the wrong things leads to a loveless life. Love of things which are pure and good leads to God.
8. Full obedience to God is a guarantee for successful living.
9. When Christ has control within our lives there is always a corresponding control in our outward living.
10. Strings of humility are often worth getting a hold of if the life is sinking in self.

HELP WANTED

The Carpenter of Galilee
Comes down the street again
In every land, in every age,
He still is calling men;
On any day we hear Him knock—
He goes from door to door;
Are any workmen out of work:
The Carpenter needs more.

CONTENTMENT

I sought contentment.

Feverishly I sought a place,
Where I could hear the praise
Of those who honored me.

I found that place—

But not contentment.

I sought contentment.

I spent my days in pleasure,

Thoughtless and perverse,

Self idly pampered,

And so I found life's thrills—

But not contentment.

Then, like an evening benediction,

I met my Master and He spoke to me,

Now I no longer seek contentment.

But when I hear a bluebird's matin sung,

Or see a snowy curtain hung,

A boy's face beam at sight of apple pie,

A tear wiped from a lonely neighbor's eye,

When at the close of busy day

I kneel before my Lord to pray—

I have contentment.

THIS IS THE WAY TO RUN THE CHURCH WITHOUT MONEY

Each member will come to church warmly dressed to eliminate the necessity of heating the building. Members will bring their mops and brooms to keep the building clean thus making a paid sexton unnecessary. Of course, members will provide their own hymn books. When repairs on the building are needed, members can fetch materials and tools, thereby cutting out a big expense. All members spend a portion of time in the church office writing letters, cutting stencils and running off church bulletins, etc.

Better still, members can take their turn preaching, leading the services, conducting the funerals, performing weddings and calling on the sick, prospective members, and the membership generally. This can cut out the need of a pastor and save a whopping sum.

What about missions? Ah! that can be handled, too. Just let every member take off a year at his own expense and work in some foreign field. Think of it! No missionary offering.

Well what about it? Would you like to belong to such a church? No, and neither would I. Therefore, let us bring "All the tithe into the storehouse."
