TEN COMMANDMENTS ON LIQUOR

BY BISHOP ARTHUR K. WHITE

I believe these ten commandments on liquor must be enforced for the hope of the youth, the country, and the future.

1. Thou shalt not menace the safety of our highways with your drunken driving.
2. Thou shalt not invade our homes with your radio and TV programs appealing to our children to drink liquor.
3. Thou shalt not control the power of our government, national, provincial, or municipal.
4. Thou shalt not lay upon the taxpayer the burden of costly jails, asylums, and penitentiaries necessary to care for victims of your traffic.
5. Thou shalt not prohibit nor discourage education on the evils of alcoholism in our public schools.
6. Thou shalt not make orphans of our children through the ruin of parents addicted to drink.
7. Thou shalt not corrupt our international relations by debauching the representatives of our government.
8. Thou shalt not invade territories, cities, countries that have voted dry.
9. Thou shalt not support drinking parties and other liquor entertainment on the part of government office-holders with taxpayers' money.
10. Thou shalt not destroy the homes of our people.

THE HOLY SPIRIT

The doctrine of the Holy Spirit is the capstone of Christian faith and of Christian theology. In stewardship as in all else only the Holy Spirit can energize men for the fulfillment of their own destiny. When the Holy Spirit gets into a man, he begins to give as he ought to give to God, the sovereign owner of all things. Selected.

SPOTTED MICE

of eternity are not most of our little human activities almost as meaningless?

One of the glories of the Christian gospel is its ability not only to deliver a man from sin but to orient him, to place him on a peak from which he can see yesterday and today in their relation to tomorrow. The truth cleanses his mind so that he can recognize things that matter and see time and space and kings and cabbages in their true perspective. The Spirit-illuminated Christian cannot be cheated. He knows the values of things; he will not bid on a rainbow nor make a down payment on a mirage; he will not, in short, devote his life to spotted mice.

Back of every wasted life is a bad philosophy, an erroneous conception of life's worth and purpose. The man who believes that he was born to get all he can will spend his life trying to get it; and whatever he gets will be but a cage of spotted mice. The man who believes he was created to enjoy fleshly pleasures will devote himself to pleasure seeking; and if by a happy combination of favorable circumstances he manages to get a lot of fun out of life, his pleasures will all turn to ashes in his mouth at the last. He will find too late that God made him too noble to be satisfied with those tawdry pleasures he had devoted his life to here under the sun.—Alliance Witness
