LOWER RIDGE

Nov. 25.—The Lower Ridge branch of the Womens Institute met on Wednesday, Nov. 18, at the home of Mrs. Clifford A. Keith. Meeting was called to order at 3 p.m., by the president, Mrs. W. W. Alward. The secretary being absent, Mrs. M. Byron Keith acted as secretary pro tem. After singing O Canada ten members answered roll call by naming and describing a winter bird. The minutes of the previous meeting were then read and approved. Some discussion followed. The vice president, Miss McFarland reported a very pleasant visit to the school, when she gave them a paper on The Flag, which they all enjoyed very much. The president also visited the school. Mrs. Watford G. Keith volunteered to visit the school before our next meeting. Our government grant and prize money were received. On motion we decided to give $100 to the Interprovincial Home for Women at Coverdale, to be paid in three years three collectors were appointed to solicit our community to help out with this work. We believe this to be a worthy institution and much needed. Miss McFarland reported regarding our bean supper on Nov. 4th the sum of $21 was realized. Our vice president gave a very interesting paper on laws governing women, also some election laws and school laws. Our paper Home and Country was distributed. After singing the National Anthem a very delightful luncheon was served by the hostesses for the day, Mrs. H. B. Thorne and Mrs. Clifford A. Keith.

The weather continues to be very disagreeable and changeable. The epidemic of colds seems very much in evidence as a result.

Rev. W. H. Jenkins and Mrs. Jenkins have been called to fill a pastorate the U. B. church at Oromocto and moved there during last week. We wish them success and happiness in their new field of labor.

Aaron Jenkins of Codys, spent a few days here last week with his parents, previous to their departure.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Horsman, of Petitediac, were visitors with John Lockhart and Miss McFarland one day recently.

Miss Beatrice Keith is spending a few days at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Keith left Saturday for Portland, Maine.

W. W. Alward, Spurgeon Keith and his father, Geo. W. Keith, of Corn Hill were hunting in the Canaan woods last week, bringing home a nice deer.

NOTTINGHAM A SEAPORT

With the opening of Gunthorpe Lock on the River Trent another step has been accomplished toward linking up the town of Nottingham by a navigable waterway with the port of Hull. In order to make the River Trent passable by barges up to 120 tons, locks have had to be constructed and other works carried out, at a cost of nearly $500,000. By river from Nottingham to the Humber estuary is nearly 100 miles. Another lock has yet to be completed besides some further work in order to insure a minimum depth of six feet between Nottingham and Newark all the year round. It is expected that this work will be finished about a year hence. The locks are all 100 feet in length by 80 feet broad, so that several barges can be allowed in at the same time. This waterway should do much toward reducing freight rates for several Midland English manufacturing towns which are within easy reach.

BEWARE THE COLD

This is the season when the cold stalks forth and claims its victims and in pursuance of the obligation that devolves on all health advocates, it naturally follows that this is also the season when the injunction "Beware the cold" is heard in the land. The cold, the ordinary common garden variety cold, is somewhat of a mystery in a science that is able to pronounce definitely on the causes and effects of numerous and much more complicated diseases. In a recently issued pamphlet dealing with colds no less an authority than John Hopkins Medical School confesses that comparatively little is known of this most widespread of maladies and that, far from being an insignificant and humble annoyance, it is really one of the unsolved puzzles of medicine. The trouble seems to be that colds are entirely without prejudice as to their location. One may trace his wet feet or a chill, or to becoming overheated, to insufficient food or too good a dinner, but on the other hand when the cold starts out to catch its victim it is just as liable to select an individual who has not been guilty on any of these counts. That little snuffy cold that Barrie has immortalized, that insidious chill that creeps along the spine, are now thought to indicate the presence of a tiny germ too small to be isolated by ordinary methods, and they are setting themselves to the task of finding the cause and then a method of dealing with it will be the next step. In the meantime it is wise for the susceptible, and that means practically everyone, to take precautions against the meandering and marauding cold. Each individual has today a fair idea of the causes that give him a cold and as the cold is highly gregarious in its habits, its prevention at once will go far toward checking an epidemic. Avoid then, asks the Board of Health, those things, indiscretions, over-indulgence, lack of proper clothing, too little fresh air, whatever in your experience has hitherto produced your cold and by so doing contribute to the better physical condition of your community, while the scientist continues his search for the elusive cold-producing germ.

"HOMELESS BELLS"

Before the war Poland long had been known as the land of many church bells. The multitude of these clanging musical instruments was no absolute voucher for their brilliance or their sweetness, but as a whole the bells must have been melodious, else the memory of their sound would not so often have been incorporated into splendid Polish musical composition as it has been. Slavic peoples as a whole have shown themselves partial to the music of bells and the echo of bells is also vibrant in scores of Russian musical compositions. It may be this common love of bell music that has stirred the Russian Soviet to an act of justice toward the people of Poland, for, according to a report from Warsaw to the London Observer, about 8,000 church bells "evacuated" during the war from Poland, by the retreating Russian army to prevent their being captured by the Germans, have been returned by the Soviets. Most of them were taken from churches in the eastern districts of Poland and are now back to their old homes. But a number of the churches were destroyed during the war, so that over 2,000 bells remain homeless. The bells that were taken by the Germans were melted down for the manufacture of munitions.

He conquers who thinks he can.
