

ANDREW L. PRICE HAS PASSED AWAY

FUNERAL HELD ON WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON AFTER ARRIVAL OF AFTERNOON TRAIN FROM SAINT JOHN—MANY PRESENT FROM OUT OF TOWN

The death of Andrew Lawrence Price occurred on Sunday morning last at his residence, Church Avenue, after a somewhat protracted illness, during which he was a great sufferer. Mr. Price was born at Havelock in 1855 and spent his boyhood days with his grandfather, Mr. George Price. Early in life he came to Sussex and entered the employ of Chas. T. White in the mercantile and lumber business. On Mr. White acquiring the Apple River, N. S., lumber property, Mr. Price accompanied him there to organize the business, which, through wise guidance, soon grew to immense proportions and was successfully managed by Mr. Price for many years. In 1884, he married Dania P. White, daughter of the late Chas. T. and Mrs. White. Although for several years Mr. Price has resided in the United States, he has a large number of friends throughout the province and particularly in his native County of Kings, who will learn of his death with deep regret. Kindly, and of a most genial disposition, he made friends easily in whatever locality he entered, and retained their friendship.

For some time his health had not been good and last summer he returned to Sussex, hoping his native climate would benefit him. Having gained somewhat by the change, he decided to remain for the winter, which he spent among his old surroundings at Havelock. In the spring, however, his condition became worse, and his wife and daughter were summoned. He was brought to his home here, but gradually lost strength until the end came.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one daughter (Pearl) Mrs. F. P. Keil, of Raleigh, N. C.; and one son, Charles B. Price, of Miami, Florida.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. D. J. McPherson, assisted by Captain W. F. Parker, at his late residence on Wednesday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock. A special choir sang the hymns "Lead Kindly Light" and "Abide With Me." Mr. M. Garfield White sang "Face to Face" very acceptably. Very appropriate remarks were made by the pastor, basing his remarks on Psalm 92, verse 2. Capt. W. F. Parker offered prayer. There were many relatives and friends from a distance, as well as a large gathering of townspeople. The pall bearers were Mr. Garfield White, G. Harley White, Walter J. Mills, Heber Sinnott, Harold G. White and C. B. Spear. Interment was in the family lot at Kirk Hill cemetery.

HAMPTON GREAT WAR MEMORIAL ASSOCIATION

Let everyone remember the Sixth Annual Fair of the Hampton Great War Memorial Association, to be held on the C. N. Railway Square, Hampton Station, on Tuesday, August 24th. Booths and games will open at 2 p. m. and supper will be served from 5:30 to 7 p. m. Atlantic Standard time. There will be no admission to the grounds. Forty cents will pay for a sumptuous supper.

The object of the Association is to raise funds to complete and equip the grounds adjacent to the school as an up-to-date athletic field in memory of those fifteen sons of Hampton who "played the game" and gave their lives in doing it.

The object alone should be sufficient to attract a vast throng and doubtless will. The committee, however, are leaving nothing undone to assure a most enjoyable afternoon, and it is hoped that everyone from far and near will embrace the opportunity to enjoy themselves and by so doing further this worthy object.

The John R. VanArman's Minstrels who travel in their own Pullman car, Sussex, following their Saint John engagement. The advertising matter for this show is now in the customs and the advance man is expected to be in town shortly.

"UNDER WESTERN SKIES" IMPERIAL TONIGHT

THURS.-FRI.-SAT.—ALSO THE 7TH CHAPTER OF "THE RADIO DETECTIVE"—YOU'LL GET THE THRILL OF YOUR LIFE WHEN YOU SEE THIS PROGRAMME.

In a private apartment in the Hotel Astor, New York, there sits a disconsolate group consisting of Sam Parkhurst, Oregon rancher, his daughter, pretty Ella Parkhurst, and "Half-Pint" Payne, Parkhurst's friend. The last "rodeo" to be held in Madison Square Garden was a failure and they are broke. Hotel bills are due and Oregon is a long way off. Parkhurst sends a wire to Otto Stern, banker, in Pendleton, Oregon, asking for money, but "Half-Pint" decides to raise money in his own way.

In his luxurious apartment Robert Erskine, son of James Erskine, banker, is at rest. He is awakened by Payne coming in through the window from off the fire escape. The easy-going New Yorker is not alarmed. Payne tells of his stranded Oregon friends. Young Erskine, seeing in the event only an adventure, tells Payne he will help out his friends and goes with Payne to the Astor. In the meantime, out in Oregon, Stern, who is the agent of a group of New York bankers who seek possession of the Oregon wheatfields, destroys Parkhurst's telegram. Young Erskine meets Payne's friends and is particularly pleased with Ella Parkhurst.

Robert discovers that his bill has been paid in a mysterious manner and that the railroad fare to Oregon has been taken care of. The Parkhursts and Payne leave for the West. Erskine's father berates him for his general uselessness. He determines to show his father he is worthy of him, and through a labor bureau is given work as a farm hand and sent to the wheat fields of Eastern Oregon. Chance places Robert on the ranch owned by Parkhurst. The farmers are being hard pressed for funds, as the harvest season is now at hand. Eastern bankers refuse loans, hoping to force the farmers to sell out cheaply. Stern, the banker, forces his attentions on Ella. He represents Eastern bankers.

Robert is made secretary of the farmers' association and learns that his father is heading the bankers fighting the farmers. By a trick he induces his father to go to Oregon. There is an exciting encounter between father and son. Robert shows the farmers how to obtain money and the wheat is harvested. During the Pendleton round-up there is to be a great steeplechase. Robert dares his father to bet on the outcome of the race in which Robert is to ride—the stakes being that if Robert wins the older Erskine will let up on the farmers. The race is a thrilling one and at the very first hurdle Robert's horse stumbles and Robert is thrown to the ground. A famous foreign horse brought clear across the continent by Robert's father for the race is well out in the lead. How it ends comes as a great climax to this thrilling picture. Two shows—7 and 8.45.

On Monday night of last week, a large crowd gathered at North Station, Boston, to see Johnny Myles, the great Marathon runner, off on his return to Nova Scotia. Johnny did not turn up at the train, however, as the presentation of a new sedan automobile caused him to change his plans. The gift was a pleasant surprise to Johnny. His father made the presentation and immediately plans were made whereby Johnny, his father and mother and sister Lillian, with a chauffeur, left in the new car for their home in Sydney Mines. The crowd at the station was disappointed when Johnny failed to appear, yet happy when they learned of the gift.

On Thursday at noon the party reached Sussex and stopped for dinner at the Busy Bee Cafe. Johnny was in great spirits and stated that he was making all possible speed to reach home as he expects to take part in races there at an early date.

The party are evidently enjoying the trip and would have been given a much heartier reception here had their coming been known. Those who learned that the famous runner was one of the party, gathered about the car as they made their departure.

On Saturday evening last some fifteen boats of the Power Boat Club arrived at Hampton on a semi-official cruise and anchored in the stream near Flewelling's wharf. The boats left the club house, Saint John, at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon with Commodore J. Fraser Gregory in charge.

The weather conditions were ideal and on reaching Reed's Point on the Kennebecasis the fleet came to anchor and the party went ashore for tea after which the cruise was continued and about 8 o'clock the boats reached Hampton where a large number had collected on shore to welcome the party.

Among the guests of Commodore Gregory were Mrs. L. M. Curren of Saint John and Earle Spicer, noted Canadian baritone, who delighted the many other guests and boat crews with various vocal selections.

At Hampton the whole party attended a dance in the Agricultural Hall given by the Hampton Tennis Club. Music was furnished by a local orchestra and a most enjoyable evening was spent. On Sunday morning the boat crews and passengers attended service in the Anglican church when they heard a splendid sermon by the Rev. Mr. Elliott.

The remainder of the day was spent in the shady nooks of the village and on the river until three o'clock, when the return trip was begun. At Gondola Point a stop was made for supper and soon after full justice had been done the many delicacies, the boats once more got under way for the city.

On Labor day the club will have a regular cruise to Erb's Cove on the Belleisle when it is expected that some of the R.K.Y.C. fleet and the St. Mary's Band will attend. On this cruise there will be baseball and other sports in the daytime and a concert and dance in the evening.

JOHNNY MYLES, MARATHON RUNNER EXTRAORDINARY, STOPS IN SUSSEX FOR DINNER, ON HIS WAY HOME TO SYDNEY

COMING SOON TO THE IMPERIAL

A large Nash touring car returning to Boston, overturned at a curve in the road at the foot of Fox Hill, three miles west of Sussex, on Friday morning. Of the four occupants of the car, one lady sustained a fractured arm. She was brought to the Frances Sproul hospital, where Dr. Wheaton rendered the necessary medical aid. The car, which was not seriously damaged, was soon repaired and able to proceed.
