KINGS COUNTY COUNCIL MEETS IN ANNUAL SESSION

By the death, late in December, of Collector Walter Sterling Saunders of the Parish of Rothesay, the County lost a popular and faithful Official whose services covered a period of twenty-four years.

I have examined the Books and Accounts of the Secretaries of the Kings Sub-District Board of Health and of the Board of Municipal Home Commissioners. The statements of the receipts and expenditures submitted by them are correct and in agreement with the books. All payments have been authorized at meetings of their respective Boards and vouchers are on file for all payments.

I have also examined the books of the Registrar of Deeds and find that the statement of receipts and expenditures filed by him with the County Secretary Treasurer is correct and in agreement with entries in his books.

Respectfully submitted,
C. T. WETMORE,
Auditor for Kings County.

Hampton, N. B., January 26th, 1926.

Board of Health Report

A. E. Pearson, Secretary of the Kings Sub-District Board of Health, submitted his annual report, Sussex, N. B., January 26, 1926.

To the Warden and Councillors

Of the Municipality of Kings:

I beg to submit the following report for Kings Sub-District Board of Health for the year 1925, together with the statements of receipts, expenditures, liabilities and the estimates for the year 1926.

During the year there has been no epidemic. There were only 29 cases of notifiable diseases reported, with one death from scarlet fever and one death from tuberculosis. There were 3 cases of diphtheria, 18 cases of scarlet fever, one case of whooping cough and 7 cases of tuberculosis.

Whooping cough, mumps and chicken-pox were more or less prevalent in many localities, but apparently were not attended by physicians or at least were not reported.

This is the first time in six years that no case of typhoid has been reported, the average for the past five years being eight cases per year. The principal work of the sanitary inspectors began with the approach of spring, when the usual clean-up notices were posted all over the county and a general inspection of public buildings, stations, hotels, school premises and private yards and premises of towns and villages were made. In all about 1600 visits ranging from about a dozen visits in some of the small country areas to 200 in Kingston peninsula, 218 in Rothesay and 725 in Sussex. As a result of the clean-up notices, with the follow-up work of the inspectors, much of the winter's accumulation of refuse matter in the back yards and premises was removed, and many privies cleaned up. Each year the inspectors find less of such work undone as the people are slowly but surely being educated to these needs. When these inspections first began the inspectors found many privies bad and in some cases filthy; today it is only an odd one upon which proper action is ordered by the inspector.

The hotels, milk dealers' premises, and slaughter houses have all been examined, and the hotels and milk dealers' premises have all been found in good condition. Seven hotels have been licensed and fifteen milk dealers. There are twelve slaughter houses licensed, two of these are up-to-date and in excellent condition, the other ten are in fair condition but are fit subject for improvement. There are still a number of men, chiefly farmers, who slaughter for the country market in Saint John who claim to be only farmers and not butchers, but who are generally credited with buying, slaughtering and selling contrary to the intentions of the regulations of the Hon. the Minister of Health. These cases are now being seriously considered by the Board and some action will no doubt result.

The inspectors are somewhat neglectful of making their monthly reports, but in all cases are prompt in doing any work they are called upon to do, such as promptly placarding and leaving written instructions about care of cases of notifiable diseases, fumigating, afterwards, and seeing that nuisances are disposed of properly, such as dead animals. These inspectors sometimes travel many miles but they do not always report the mileage. One inspector reports travelling 179 miles during the year. Where the work of the inspectors varies so much from year to year it is difficult to fix a definite salary but none are overpaid taking averages from year to year.

The work of the deputy registrars is now running very smoothly. The people are awake to the benefits of registration, especially of births, and these were the hardest to obtain a few years ago.

The work of the Secretary has been continuous, but has always been promptly attended to.

Dr. C. A. King, the medical school inspector for Kings, has been attending his work without reports reaching the Board of much friction.

Respectfully submitted,

A. E. PEARSON,
Secretary, Kings Sub-District
Board of Health.

Use and Value of Glasses

Everyone knows, in a general way, that glasses are worn to assist the sight, and there are a large number of persons who know nothing more than that glasses help the aged to read and the near-sighted to see at a distance. A prejudice against glasses for any other purpose was at one time general. Morbid whims and prejudices may often deter many from wearing glasses who really need them, even when they know that their eyes are in a serious condition and require attention. However it is not the intention to combat these prejudices or to put forth any argument to show the fallacy of what unreasonableness in the light of such sufferings of thousands of young and old, who have been saved years of distress through the great advancement of this particular branch of the sciences. No sensible man or woman of this day and age denies the fact that properly fitted glasses are one of the greatest blessings bestowed on mankind, and no refractorist who honors his calling will insist on anyone wearing glasses who does not really need them. Experience has taught the afflicted that they can not select their own glasses and be properly fitted, many eyes have been totally ruined by improperly adjusted glasses, therefore it is of the greatest importance that the eyes should be carefully examined and the lenses properly adjusted by a competent optometrist. Generally people do not realize that the eye is the most delicate complex organ of the body, and yet no part of the physical system suffers greater neglect. All agree that the necessity of having perfect sight and a correct appreciation of all the objects surrounding us is not only essential to our happiness but also necessary for our success in life. Therefore, under these conditions the study of the eye and the efficiency of the organs of vision must certainly be interesting not alone to the profession and optometrist but also to the general public. Few of us realize the changes that are continually taking place in the mechanism of the eyeball, as we pass the eye over the page of a book or to a distance and then near at hand. Although the eye is not an optical instrument, its power of self-adjustment to rays of light is more perfect and at the same time far less complicated than any instrument devised by human ingenuity.
