ARE YOU GETTING SOFT?

An American exchange says: Have you joined the growing army of those who are frightfully annoyed when they can't get a seat in the parlor car? A few years ago you found that a common day coach matched your purposes, pleasures and pocket-book very well. Today you can't be comfortable in a day coach. In fact, you are positively miserable.

When your wife has the automobile or it is in the repair shop, or the sheriff has it, are you the most miserable of men?

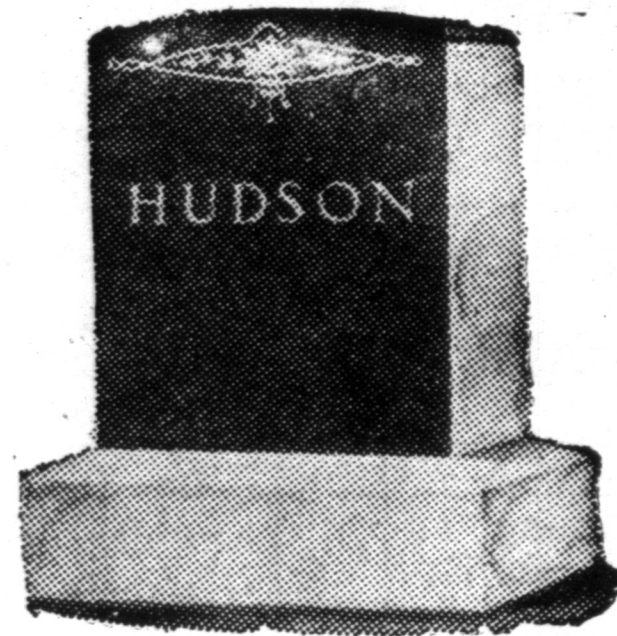

When you are forced to drag the alarm clock out of the dust of the closet shelf and set it for six o'clock, do you put on a sob scene with your wife and family as audience? However badly it hurts, however rough the discipline seems to you, fight against getting soft.

When we have come to the time that we can't be happy then—we have seen our best days. The parade has passed and we are sitting on a cushion in the grandstand.

To aim always at being comfortable and to seek to avoid every hardship is to seek to escape life. It can't be done, and it shouldn't be done. The one thing most worth while in life is getting things done that are worth doing. The only possible happiness comes that way.

And if we are forever intent on living softly, we can never hope to get these things done.
