OCCUPATIONS FOR "LADIES" 40 YEARS AGO

Ottawa Citizen—Someone has disinterred a little book published just over forty years ago by Harper's and called "Money Making for Ladies." If any member of the fair sex frets under the drawbacks which beset her path to a business livelihood and economic independence today, let her consider the handicaps which her sister of forty years ago suffered.

Chapter I invites the lady to keep boarders; Chapter 12 to keep bees. In between the choice is wide. Fancywork and mending are suggested, as means of making money. Then there are making baskets from shells, reading aloud and being mistress of a "tastéful ittle store with a few cheap Chinese oddities" and tea, which "could be managed by proxy." On the intellectual side, "literature and writing" are suggested.

It is to be noted that these are all occupations that retain the air of respectability so dear to the Victorian heart of the time. For a woman to go into business was unthinkable. The book in question dismissed addressing envelopes "as regular office work, and quite out of the question for a lady."

Since that day ladies have become women and stepped out into the work-a-day world with not such qualms as assailed females of forty years ago. In the paper which records the interesting suggestions in "Money Making for Ladies" is an announcement that Miss Mary E. Dillon has just been elected president of the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company, and carries pictures of several other big business women executives.

Down the scale women are working on equal terms with men. There are more independent women today than were ever dreamed of by the unknown author of the book published by Harper's in the eighties. The world may not progress—but it moves.

New York robbers took away the trousers of their victims to prevent the latter from panting in pursuit.

ST. MARTINS

April 13—The weather is very cold and backward and every thing indicates a late spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kierstead and family spent the Easter holidays with Mrs. Kierstead's parents, Mr. and Mrs W. H. Moran.

Much regret is felt at the passing away of Mr. Walter Brown, a much respected resident of this place. He had been ill only a short time and hopes had been entertained for his recovery, but the end came on Sunday, the 11th inst. He is survived by his widow and one son Walter. Also by two sisters, Miss Adeline Brown, of Sharon, Mass.; Mrs. Henry Stone, of East Boston, Mass.,; also one brother George W., of Everett, Mass.

The funeral was held on Tuesday at 3 p.m., and was very largely attended. The services were conducted by Rev. Wm. Swan, of the St. Martins United Church.

Mrs. Mary Branscombe is quite ill with a severe cold at present.

TO WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Wilson's Experience a Guide to Women Passing through the Change of Life

Hamilton, Ontario.—"I have taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot speak too highly of it as I was at the Change of Life and was all run-down and had no appetite. I was very weak and sick, and the pains in my back were so bad I could hardly move. I got very sad at times and thought I had not a friend on earth. I did not care if I lived or died. I was very nervous, too, and did not go out very much. A friend advised me to try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I did. I am a farmer's wife, and always worked hard until lately, and was in bed for two months. I began to feel like a new woman after the first bottle and I recommend it with great success, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about your medicines, as I cannot speak too highly of them."—Mrs. EMMA WILSON, 471 Wilson Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

ERB SETTLEMENT

April 17—The ladies of the Womens Missionary Society of Erb Settlement met at the home of Mrs. Henry Pollock on April 14th. Meeting opened with Scripture reading and roll call. There was quite a lot of business talked over, after which we had a social hour, in which the hostess served tea, assisted by some of the ladies. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. Secord.

Robert Hunter is confined to the house with a sore leg.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Getchell spent Friday afternoon with Mrs. Wm. Hattrick.

Miss Margaret Patton, who has been living in Long Island, New York, is home on a visit.

We have a great deal of snow here for the time of year. Everyone will be glad to see the warm weather again.

SWEDEN'S TIMBER

An interesting review of the Swedish lumbering industry from the pen of Chr. Storjohann, the president of the Swedish Cellulose Association, appears in an artificial silk number of the London Times. He estimates that Sweden possesses in round figures 24,000,000 hestares of forest land. A hestare is equal to 2.45 acres, and the acreage of timbered country is therefore more than half of the whole country. Of this resource 9,000,000 hectares belong to the State or to public institutions. The dominating species of trees are pine and fir.

The estimated new growth of timber is about 40,000,000 cubic metres per annum, and the annual felling somewhat over this figure. M. Storjohann says that of the annual yield fully fifty per cent is used for the export of unworked timber, sawn and worked timber, etc., and for the manufacture of wood pulp, while the remainder is used for mining timber and the country's own requirements.

In Sweden there are seed-raising institutions and nurseries for the raising of forest trees all over the country. It is an undoubted fact that by the maintenance and extension of the present stock of timber "the economic position of the country is being strengthened and improved." In this respect M. Storjohann says: "A shortage of raw materials for the woodworking industry is approaching and those countries which limit cutting to the annual growth should be able to count on deceiving very great economic advantages from this policy in the future."

AUTHOR OF "PRISONER'S SONG"

Guy Massey is dead. Waterbury radio fans will learn the news with regret. For it was Massey who wrote "The Prisoner's Song," so popular on the air at present. It is a big, and popular number with Brass City radio lovers. The end came at the base hospital in Fort Sam Houston. Massey, twice decorated for bravery in the world war, died as the result of the wounds received in action overseas. The fadeout was quick. He was admitted to the hospital but a short time before his clock struck twelve and stopped. Massey enlisted when war was declared. At the time he was keeping company with a girl in Brooklyn, New York. After returning from overseas he found her love had grown cold and Massey was unable to win it back. Reports said she was keeping company with a slacker. Massey enlisted in the navy. But he couldn't forget the girl in Brooklyn, N. Y., and one night when his ship was anchored in the Hudson, Massey went A. W. O. L. But the Brooklyn girl again refused to renew her courtship, and when the sailor returned to his ship he was court martialed and put in the brig for six months. It was while imprisoned that he wrote the song which made him famous. The girl who went back on him furnished the inspiration. Thus we read the last chapter in the life of Guy Massey. And tonight, when you are listening in, and the soft, sad strains of "The Prisoner's Song" come in over the air, just remember Guy Massey has drifted through life's open spaces, beyond the waves of radio, where prisons are unknown and the prisoner's song becomes an angelic chant from angels. Remember him also as a soldier, who died from the wounds received in France and pin another poppy to the old tin hat for memory's sake.

There's a rumble in the street of time
O'er stones quite sharp and bare,
A caisson carries one who fought,
For freedom, over there.

Moses and Sambo were discussing family trees. "Yes, suh man," said Sambo, "I can trace my relations back to a family tree."

"Well," replied Moses, "they ain't but two kinds of things that live in trees—birds and monkeys—and you sho' ain't got no feathers on you."
