MUST BE ON THE CHURCH SIDE.

Mrs. Hopkins entered the milliners in a state of nervous excitement.

"My new hat has been trimmed on the wrong side," she said, tossing her head in anger, "and I must have it altered."

"The trimming is on the left side, where it ought to be," expostulated the assistant. "You gave no special instructions when you ordered it, so it was trimmed in the ordinary way."

"It makes no difference where it ought to be. It's got to be on the church side."

"Yes, church side! I sit next to the wall, and I'm not going to pay for trimming that can't be seen. I want it on the other side, where all the congregation can see it!"

"MR. BOB" is the best comedy ever written, the brisk action, snappy dialogues and complications will give you sixty laughs per minute. A good cast is now hard at work under the direction of Desire J. Bourque, whose "Revue" of last September is still talked about.

MONCTON DEFEATS
SUSSEX 6-2

GAME WHICH WAS PLAYED ON SOFT ICE WAS FEATURED BY INDIVIDUAL WORK—ATTENDANCE ABOUT FIVE HUNDRED.

The Athletics of Moncton defeated the Sussex Colts in a league game played at the Royal Arena on Wednesday night in the presence of about five hundred fans by the score of 6-2. The ice was very sticky and the game was featured by sensational individual rushes rather than combination work.

The play was clean, only two penalties being imposed for minor offences. Bill Hay refereed in his usual impartial manner and to the satisfaction of both teams.

The first period opened with both teams working fast, and after two minutes playing Friars of the locals presented the visitors with a goal by kicking the puck behind Roach in a mix-up in front of the Sussex net.

H. Radcliffe in a nice rush scored goal one for Sussex after eight minutes of play and for the following six minutes the rubber was kept moving up and down, with territory play being about equal. Kervin shot the rubber from centre ice and notched up score two for Moncton. There was no further scoring in this period which closed with the score standing Moncton 2, Sussex 1.

The second period opened with Sussex very much on the aggressive and in two minutes H. Radcliffe in a nice piece of stick work shot goal two for Sussex. After nine minutes of fast and furious play, with the rubber being carried in rapid succession from one end of the rink to the other, Bastarache found the Sussex net for score three for Moncton.

In the final period the weight of the Moncton team told in their favor on the soft ice, the Sussex boys showing signs of being tired from the clip they had been going. Wilson scored two goals for Moncton in the first five minutes and after 14 minutes' play Cole notched another. There was no further scoring and the game ended with the score standing Moncton 6, Sussex 2.

The line-up was as follows:

Moncton	Goal	Sussex
Wilson	Defence	B. Roach
Wilson	Defence	P. Radcliffe
Kervin	Forwards	J. Friars
Gould		H. Radcliffe
Lane		N. Lutz
A. Bastarache		C. Brooks
Cole		E. Friars
E. Bastarache		E. Friars
Hutchinson		M. Radcliffe

"HOGAN'S ALLEY"
IMPERIAL TONIGHT

THE LIVEST, FASTEST, COMEDY
DRAMA EVER FILMED—ALSO
THE BEST 2-REEL COMEDY
TURNED OUT DURING THE 1925
SEASON.

The heartbeat of genuine "regular folks" sounds through the story of "Hogan's Alley." It's the love story of "Lefty" O'Brien, pride of the fans, and Patsy Ryan, pride of the Alley. And it's a thrill picture as well as a heart picture. You will see the great alley fight; the prize fight; the police raid; Jim Jeffries, Ad Wolf, and other world's champions at the ringside; the aeroplane chase; the fight on the train; the great train wreck; Ben Turpin, as the photographer; and fifty other great features.

There will also be a two-reel comedy, "The Tourist." The New York Morning Telegraph says: "Here is the best two-reel comedy that has been turned out this season (1925). It is a charming trifle, and there is every indication that in its star, Johnny Arthur, Educational has a real find. He is a delightful personality."

Two shows of the feature, starting at 7.30 and 9. One show of the comedy starting at 8.30.

SCRAPPING DOCKYARDS

Following the suspension, or reduction to a "care and maintenance basis" of the Naval Dockyard at Rosyth, in the North Sea, the British Government has resolved that the Dockyard at Pembroke shall also be reduced to a like condition; and there is even talk that the great Chatham Establishment will be closed. The justification of the Government is the need of economy in the public service. The Army has been cut down in numbers and the pay of both officers and men reduced. It is now the Navy's turn. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald has ventured to think that Naval strategy, more than the saving of money, is behind the steps noted, which have provoked protests from industrial interests in the localities affected, and that new works on the Pacific will take the place of those closed on the Atlantic. This may in part be well founded. There have been several basic changes in Britain Naval strategy in relatively recent years. Mr. Balfour, when the First Lord of the Admiralty, set out a new general plan, a modification of the existing strategy. Strong squadrons (for those days) were maintained, with headquarters in the Channel, in the Mediterranean, on the east coast of North America and the West Indies, in Chinese waters and at Cape Town. Then, when the rivalries of continental Europe developed, the "German menace," a new strategical arrangement was devised. The far-off establishments were reduced and the fighting strength of the navy was concentrated in home waters, where, as events have shown, it was to be needed. The Rosyth works on the Forth were part of this plan. The danger that made them necessary is now held to be past. They are being closed, following a reduction in the number of fighting ships by Britain and the other naval powers. The fact is that the country has more dockyards than it has use for. It is within the possibilities that developments in naval strategy will some day require the opening of the old dockyards.

CONJURER AND HUMORIST

The travelling conjurer who seizes favorable opportunities to play tricks upon people in public places in order to advertise his business, may be made to wish that he had let his victim alone, as an incident goes to show. When the late "Bill" Nye, the humorist, was on one of his last lecturing trips, travelling through Ohio, he happened to be placed at the dinner table at a hotel next to a well-known "magician." The magician doubtless knew who Nye was, but he supposed himself to be unknown to the humorist—as no doubt he was.

Nye had gone on with his dinner as far as the preparation of salad, and was picking his lettuce to pieces when the magician turned to him and said: "Excuse me, sir, but I thought I noticed something queer there in your lettuce."

The humorist looked over his lettuce leaf by leaf, and found nothing. He began once more to prepare his salad, when he was stopped by a sharp cry from the conjurer.

"I beg a thousand pardons," said the man, "but surely I could not have been mistaken that time? There, just look at that!"

He raised one of the lettuce leaves and disclosed underneath it a splendid cluster diamond ring, worth several hundred dollars.

By this time, of course, everybody in the room was gazing. Nye picked up the ring without the smallest expression of surprise. Then he drawled out:

"This thing has gone far enough. I seem to be shedding diamonds everywhere I go. Day before yesterday I lost a solitaire in a sugar bowl at Pittsburgh, and at Cleveland the chamber maid swept up three or four in my room. It's too much work to keep track of these things."

He summoned the waitress and said to her:

"Miss, you've served us very well here. Please accept this as a reward. Yes, keep it; it's yours."

The girl took the ring and the magician, who, of course had slipped it into the lettuce for a joke on the humorist, had a great deal of trouble in recovering it.

IN MEMORIAM

SCOTT—In loving memory of Ruth Virginia Scott, who departed this life Jan. 3rd, 1925.

And lo, she has passed from our yearning hearts,
Has crossed the stream and is gone for aye—
We may not under the veil apart
That hides from our vision the gates of day;

We only know that her barque no more
May sail with us o'er life's stormy sea;
Yet somewhere we know on that unseen shore
We shall know the loved who have gone before.

And joyfully sweet will the meeting be.
PARENTS AND BROTHERS.

MARSHALL—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Earl S. Marshall, Buffalo, New York, who died Jan. 7, 1925.

Sad and sudden was the call
Of him so dearly loved by all,
His memory still is dear.
For oft is shed a silent tear.

Time never, no, never can erase
The memory of his smiling face.
FATHER, SISTERS AND BROTHER

LESLEY—In loving memory of Edna May Leslie, who departed this life Jan. 7th, 1925, aged 2 years and three months.

We had a beautiful flower
So fragile, sweet and fair,
We thought we must only love it
And guard it with tender care.

So we loved our flower dearly,
And thought to keep it always,
But the King of Gardens saw it
And My Lord, the King, did say:

"Give me the beautiful flower
Thou guardest with loving care,
The winds and storm will harm it,
Their fury it cannot bear.

"Even your love cannot shield it
As I can shield it for thee;
I'll keep it forever fadeless,
An angel's care it shall be."

Grandparents—Mr. and Mrs.
F. J. Armstrong.
