VALEDICTORY

J. McK. LIMERICK, Valedictorian

For a certain group of fifty-seven young men and women today is marked with satisfaction in that we have received our degrese and have fulfilled the expectations of those who have made it possible for us to be here. And yet it cannot be said that this occasion is entirely filled with pride. Scarcely realizing that four years have passed, the class of '31 is here assembled for the last time. We, who worked and played together, shared each others joys and sorrows, we, who have be-
