THE NEW SCIENCE CLUB

The inauguration of the new Scientific Society represents a step forward which is quite in keeping with the rapid development of our University. By bringing together the professors of the four faculties and the Senior students of science, the club should go a long way towards making contacts which will lead to a greater co-operation between the departments of Science in the future. Again, the Club by uniting the students of the different departments is affording a medium by which students, even although their courses may be different, are enabled to regard advances in science from a common viewpoint. Considerable organization work on the part of the sponsors has been necessary and to these men we extend our congratulations and hearty best wishes for the success and long life of the organization.

REGARDING THE LIBRARY

In the good old days when college men had flowing beards and smoked huge bull-dog pipes, courted the gals and such like—in those days reading was common. Some radical collegians actually visited the library in their spare time to read.

These men missed the real entertainment. Sitting in a comfortable library, reading an educational book was a decided waste of time. Their sons and daughters prefer to lounge about their rooms, make foolish conversation and sip weak cokes. Evolution is a marvellous thing. Let us compare the collegiate attendance as exemplified by the red and black sweaters at afternoon movies with the meagre crowd found in the library. Again, college students have come to their senses. What fun could one possibly find reading a book in the library?

We are asking you, but we know the answer.

NOTICE

Attention is called to the fact that all copy for the Brunswickan must be in the hands of the editors not later than Monday noon. Any available copy should be handed in before this if possible. Beginning next week there will be a general meeting of the Brunswickan staff every Monday at 1.00 p. m. in the office.

PRIZE ESSAYS FOR THIS TERM ANNOUNCED

President C. C. Jones has announced the subjects for the prize essays to be competed for the coming year as follows:

1. Douglas Essay:
"A Survey of the Geological Deposits of Organic Origin in the Province of New Brunswick."
2. Alumni Essay:

Translation into Latin from Dr. Smith's History of Greece, beginning on page 195, Section 12, with the words: "Meanwhile Xerxes," and ending with the words in Section 14, "Killed to a man," thus completing Sections 12, 13 and 14.

3. City of Fredericton Essay:
"A Comparison of Domestic Heating Systems at Present in Use in Fredericton."
4. Symonds Prize in History:

"A History of Railways in New Brunswick."

Now just a word about these valuable prizes. The Douglas Gold Medal has a great tradition: numbered among its holders are many of New Brunswick's most outstanding citizens. It's worth trying for. Miss Muriel Miller won it last year.

The Alumni Gold Medal also is famous for the sterling quality of those who have secured it. It's a fine medal, and someone will get it; why not have a try? G. E. Foster was the last successful candidate.

Nor is the City of Fredericton Gold Medal to be lightly esteemed; it is 100% pure gold, and is fast attaining tradition. Anyone can try for it. C. C. Wright bagged it last year.

The Symonds Prize in History is of the value of one hundred dollars. It is given by Sir Charles J. Symonds, of England, in memory of the late James Symonds, one of the original settlers at the mouth of the Saint John. Surely a hundred men is ample persuasion. J. W. B. Sisam was the lucky man last Encaenia.

STAFF CORRESPONDENCE

To the Editor of the Brunswickan.

Dear Sir:

Permit me the liberty of a little space in your truly worthy paper to express a few suggestions with respect to the inauguration of this weekly publication at the University. In the first place I would like to offer my humble congratulations to the enterprising people who have taken the initiative in making the dream of a weekly a reality. The first issue has been met with hearty expression of approval not only by those who supported the idea from the first but even by the doubting Thomases. We have received a very creditable initial copy and it is up to us of the student body to co-operate in every way in our power to guarantee the continued success of the Brunswickan. In this connection I would like to protest against the actions of certain timid minded students who during the past week have been endeavoring to bring influence to bear upon the editorial staff to persuade them to withhold from publication the choicest bit of news of the college year to date. Suppression of the truth, will do no good in the long run, especially since it is necessary to dispell the maze of conflicting rumors which have been rampant for some days past. The Brunswickan staff showed by the first issue their competency to serve the student body well, it is up to the rest of us to follow a "hands off" policy and let them be the judges of what is fit to be printed. Such a course is imperative to insure success for the news publication.—H. D. Woods.

MEDITORIAL

Nominal or in other words market value is becoming a fluid term in these hectic times and, when one tries to follow and reason out the meaning of values as represented by the above term, one is forced to realize that it can have a personal application also. All kinds of reasons and causes have been advanced to account for the fluctuating conditions that affect all parts of the world and none of them seem to measure up to the requirements of a world at discord. Debts, unemployment, distrust and hatred form the evidence that we all can witness and, with nations, as it is with individuals, the moral character has, I think, something to do with the situation.

If a man's character is above or at par we know him at his proper value and can trust him. But when we note the actions of others that contradict every other attitude assumed, religiously, politically, or in business relationships, we are forced to the conclusion that a large number of people's ideas are very considerably at variance with right and wrong values as denoted by the term at par.

Silver and gold will vary in value because of artificial attraction, as likewise the various standards of integrity in the social structure can be affected. Loss of confidence, distrust and ridicule is a natural sequence to a deflated reputation and the results are more serious because character cannot be restored by any application of percentage.—J. H.

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor-in-Chief.

Dear Sir:

The time has come for a reformation in sport at U. N. B., when a football man asks "What do we get out of it?" "How can we expect a man to turn out every day unless he gets something out of it?" U. N. B. sends out teams under amateur rules and if we have to give our athletes something it is time to surrender our amateur standing and turn professional. It has always been the custom at our university for a man to play a game because he liked it and not for what he got out of it. This radical idea has to be banished by the student body at once, or our teams will savour of professionalism within two years. The persons responsible for the idea of payment for their labour on our teams must surely realize that their attitude is entirely foreign to anything belonging to U. N. B. now or formerly.

The cry "What do we get out of it?" could well be the cry of the non-playing students. They are expected to pay a levy, 72% of which goes for football and pay admission to see the games (i. e. buy a car for someone else and pay for the gas). The non-playing student certainly is not pampered in pullman cars or spoon fed at banquets.—"Student."

Saint John Trojans

rected. Mac Watson and Fradsham were with the team last season and both looked as good as ever. Fulton and Hersey were newcomers and need experience. Bob Gibson was in the back field for a time and looked pretty good. McNichol at ball half probably is permanent in the post. The forwards played well together and had the weight and the speed. They showed ability to break fast and get into the runs with the three-quarter line. There is much forward material and there will be keen competition for places in the scrum as well as in the back division. The whole squad, however, will have to show more energy in the games to come.

HARD TROJAN TACKLING

Trojans again showed themselves about the hardest tackling team in these parts. Their forwards were out-weighted and outplayed. This left the defence falling largely on the backs. Their play in all departments was individual and all the defects of the club team appeared. The Orange and Black with some time will iron these out and in the N. B. League games will be heard from. Fraser in the scrum is another member of the family which sent Paul Fraser from Saint John High to U. N. B. Cruikshank who was active among the backs is formerly of Fredericton.

FIRST HALF

From the kick-off U. N. B. carried the play into Trojan territory where it remained most of the half. Much ground was lost through fumbling, but the kicking on the whole was good, especially by Fowler and Johnston, and it was regained through this medium. McLennan missed a placement kick thirty-five yards from the posts.

From a position fifteen yards out Mac Watson grabbed up the ball from the loose, ran it down the right touch-line, and scored in the corner after ten minutes of play. McLennan failed to convert.

From the kick-off the Trojans took the offensive but were soon forced back by a long kick by McLennan.

SECOND HALF

In the second half Coach Burden made several changes both in the back field and up front.

McLennan again missed a penalty kick but the three-quarters ran the ball in, Watson being pulled down almost on the line.

Gibson saved a sure try when he made a fine tackle to get Currie who was on his way to the U. N. B. line in the best offensive play of the day for the Trojans.

Five minutes of playing time remained when Gibson at receiving half scooped up the ball on the twenty-five, ran around the scrum, passed to Fowler, who in turn let it go to Adams who drew his man and passed back to Fowler who placed the ball behind the posts for the final try of the game. McLennan again failed to convert.

Corbett, right outside three-quarter of the Trojans, used poor judgment in an attempt to tackle Adams and received an injured neck. The injury was not severe. In the short period remaining his position was taken by Kelly, a reserve.

The lineups:

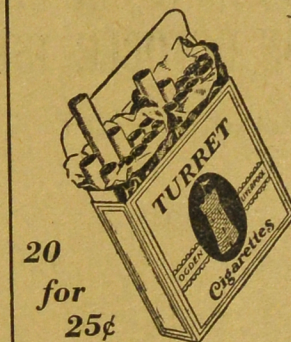

Trojans—Fullback, Wry; three-quarters, Currie, Cruikshank, Brown, Corbett (Capt.); halves, Carrick, Barbary, Malcolm; forwards, Burnside, McDade, Noble, Logan, Fraser, McAlpine, Magnusson; reserve, Kelly.

U. N. B.—Fullback, McLennan; three-quarters, Adams, Fowler, McLeod, Fulton, M. Watson; halves, Johnston, McNichol; forwards, Macaulay, Goodine, Oldham, Dooley, Sadowsky, Lee, Pond; reserves, Thomas, Hyslop, Gibson, Hersey, Fradsham, Pickard.

Referee—"Ted" Coffey.
