GOAL POSTS AND MERCUROCHROME!!!

M M, MY! but didn't the little Mud Allissome laddies look cute, running about and shivering under their war-paint. Too bad the tank had to be disinfected though. "Oh, how they schmelt", said little Woosie. "Mebbe they really don't have any water in that far country, except that of the Peticodiac. What a bore that must be!" One thing we do know however, what a haven of delight the gurnet and gilt campis would be to a salesman of LIFEBOUY.

(Not bad! Five smackers for spelling a word or two out in caps.)

A CHISELER, A SNEAK AND A WAMPIRE!!

Somebody's doing the big two-time act, and dI don't mean marjie or marjie or margy this time. Funny thing they all start with 'm'. Well 'm's the kind I wanta get. Heh, now you're sure its ernie vandank! gotcha guessin again.....speaking of the latest complaint of man against co-ed however, what do you think of the femme who goes to a dance with a red-headed lad and ends up with a dark one.....after having gone home with the little laddie too.....well, there 'no clouds in my lifeteam up mon' real and new yawk, and give the rest of the college a treat.....don't you know that even the "favorite speak-easy" and dear old mcgill, jar on the nerves of sensitive people, after seven weeks of ranting.....by the way, while you're in the limelight of notoriety, dear old NRA, hear ums getting ums ittle toofums.....gweat biggy swollen jaw...ye gods, hatch and his souls.....wotta man and wotta soul.....paging libby carson.....paging libby carson!.....let's see, ogilvie, waring, the other campbell.....well, why go into big numbers.....the girls out to get a record.....safety in numbers libbysafety because they all arrive together and later they all go together.....all of a sudden.....our headline artist's date with emmer-son at mud a.....and the lad who whispered so coyly, aren't you going to give ittle a good night kissee.

Men—"Hey, does Waddy live in this house."

Landlady—"Yes, bring him in."

Pop Miller—"Does Mr. Miller, a college student, live here?"

Same Landlady—"Mr. Miller lives here but I thought he was a night watchman."

Sometimes I merely wonder,

But I wonder why we will

Wonder wildly when we wish we

C. O. T. C. NOTES

by
H. TEMPLE HATCH

"A" and "B" Certificate Lectures will start, it is expected, the week of November 13th. These Lectures are under the instructorship of Captain Charles Chauveau, of the Royal Twenty-second Regiment, who has been attached for duty to Military District No. 7, in Saint John, for the past several years. We Understand that 70 have signified their intention of following this course of instruction, of which number a remarkably large number are Freshmen, which is indeed gratifying.

According to Battalion Orders dated October 27th it seems that the O. C. has "A" and "B" Certificates for some 14 members of the contingent, 12 of which are "A" Certificates. Thus it seems that there will be a particularly large class in "B" Certificate this year. We certainly hope this interest will continue, since while this work is not of the importance it was twenty years ago, it presents an excellent form of training in citizenship.

Three ranges were shot at the practice shoot at Devon Ranges Saturday, and the highest scores were as follows:

1st Division

	200	500	600	total
V. E. Box.....	33	32	32	97
T. Nason	30	33	33	96
W. H. Sutherland	30	28	30	88
R. MacPherson	27	32	29	88

2nd Class

	200	500	600	total
K. Corbett	30	31	31	92
N. MacLeod.....	28	27	29	84
G. Waring	32	29	23	84
G. Sansom	26	27	31	84
R. Likely	27	33	32	92

Non commissioned and Warrent Officers have been appointed for the current year, and these we quote from Battalion Orders, Part II, dated October 27th, 1933.

Were what other wanderers...I've run out of W's and whats the difference anyway? I still wonder wildly though:

Whats a Chalmers to a Fraser
When the former hurts a leg?
Whats a wind-storm to a Glennie
When a Glennie breasts a Gale?
And if a Jarvis really likes to
Patterson about a dance;
Then why shouldn't Celia Dolan
Nail her Ivory to tha mast?
Take for instance, little Mousie
Sitting in a padded cell;
Wondering wildly, what and sundry
The college king the cops will tell.
Shall we linger, quite complacent?
Beach our Betts and be content?
Or shall we Foster Likely

Dalhousie Freshies Now Escape Hazing

Placards Only to Identify First Year People.

HALIFAX, Oct 7—(C. P.)— The college students are returning for another year at Dalhousie. The Grounds and dormitories are gay with the horde of laughing, care-free students — the same joyous scene that old Dalhousie has witnessed for years. Only the oldsters sense a difference.

To them, there is a change — a break in the traditional activities of the opening semester. Sophomores no longer gather in groups to discuss new and devious means of torture, and the one-time luckless freshman now goes his way in peace. For hazing has been abolished, and somehow things don't seem the same on the old campus.

Time was when the lowly freshman — and the freshette, too, for that matter — walked in fear and trembling. Gleeful sophomores lurked around every corner, ready to pounce upon the unwary freshie. And many the manhandling that went in the name of initiation.

But now all that is changed. The boisterous initiation of the past has degenerated into a weak shadow of its former self. The only rule to be observed now by the freshie, freshettes and freshie-sophs is that they must wear, for the first two weeks, an identification plaque across the shoulders. It is of white cotton, embossed with the class year and carrying the student's name beneath.

That is all. There is now no physical hazing as in former years. This was definitely banned last spring after turbulent argument in which members of the faculty took part.
