CO-EDS ATTENTION!

Women, wake-up! Come out of your comas and do something — something worth talking about!! Are we going to allow the men to run our co-educational college? Are we going to allow the Upper Canadian colleges to laugh at our debating efforts? Are we going to permit our superior intellects to be ridiculed by the male members of this institution? Is it true that we spend our spare hours exchanging choice morsels of gossip? Such is the general opinion.

We comprise 18% of the student body yet we figure in little more than 1% of the student activities. Something must be done — and soon! Why not a Ladies' Page in the Brunswickan with a separate Ladies' Staff? It would be an excellent outlet for all our pent-up ability along literary lines. It would be a wonderful opportunity for those interested in newspaper work. It would be a vast step towards making the Brunswickan a truly representative college paper. Who would not support such an enterprise?

What of Delta Rho? All that remains of the Ladies' Debating Team are the pictures on the walls of the Blue Room! From 70 women there should be at least 25 able debaters. Where are they? Lost to the college and, perhaps to the world merely because we have failed to organize — to co-operate in an endeavor to make the best of these four short years. What murdered Delta Rho? Lack of interest, you say, and dates. Why, with a little extra work by a few and the support of the entire Ladies' Society, Delta Rho's would be made so interesting that a date would be a bore.

Saddest of all is the delusion the men possess regarding our intelligence or lack of it! They quite frankly consider us incapable of carrying on an intelligent conversation among ourselves. What can we do about that? In the first place we must lift ourselves above the level of the scandal column! That is essential. Every co-ed is interested in one current topic at least. Then, why not talk about it, discuss it in the Reading Room and learn the view-points of your classmates?

Did the college life we dreamed about ever exist at U. N. B. Of course it did — before ladies meetings became a thing of the past! Co-operation, organization and support are the elements that will pull us out of the rut we are in and they must come from the ladies.

Co-eds of U. N. B. we have a name to live up to — where is our pride?
—A Co-Ed.

RECIPROCITY

A few months ago reciprocal trade agreements between this country and the United States were to be the salvation of both. The N. R. A., introduced by Franklin D. Roosevelt, has made reciprocity impossible of accomplishment. Producers in the United States will naturally refuse to compete with Canadian producers who are not bound by N. R. A. rules. But in this very fact lies the weakness of Mr. Roosevelt's recovery scheme. The United States industries shall always need protective tariffs and other nations must retaliate. And world trade, which is still struggling back to normal, receives another blow.

WAR

Germany has caused a tremendous amount of consternation and talk of war by dropping the Disarmament Conference and retiring from the League of Nations. In reality it is obvious that Germany is not prepared in any way for war. Nor will she be able to prepare in a short time. But Germany's reputation as the "bad boy" of Europe, founded partly on fact and fostered by powerful war propaganda, together with the Combastic utterances of Herr Hitler cause the world to look on Germany with suspicion.

Far more likely is the possibility of a war in the east where Japanese and Soviet interests conflict. There, unless successful disarmament is effected, war will come as soon as the Soviet feels itself sufficiently strong to carry on a war so far from home.

TO THE EDITOR

18, Oct., 1933

The Editor-in-Chief,
The Brunswickan,
Dear Sir,—
An opportune time has arrived, I think, to point out again the unbalanced expenditure of the money of the Student Union. Seventeen hundred and forty dollars, this year, is to be spent on football, a sport in which difficulty is met with in getting two teams to practice against each other. For tennis twenty-five dollars has been spent and a Provincial Intercollegiate Title has been annexed. Money to send the U. N. B. Tennis Team (sixty dollars) to Sackville in quest of the Maritime Title was not forthcoming. The ratio of expenditure, then, is football $70; Tennis $1. The football team barely gets a turnout of 30. In the Tennis Tournament for choice of a team 42 men and women participated. This year it is too late to right this wrong. But next year when the time to pass the budget comes around the college should get behind minor sports to some small degree at least. Tennis, swimming, and boxing all rate support.

Yours Truly,
N. M. MacLeod.

EDITORIAL INK

CO-EDS, have you ever been so interested in the Ladies' Activities of the college, that you would scorn a date and tell Lotherio to meet you after Delta Rho? Well, a certain young lady thinks that this should be the case and asserts herself vigorously in an editorial on this page. It seems the young lady has heard more than one of the "superior" males of the university, speak of the Co-ed in none too flattering tones and hence, has determined to do something about it. If she has her way and if she is given the necessary support by the rest of the Co-eds, there is no doubt but that the Ladies' activities of the University would take on a new vitality and that the Co-ed herself would be appreciated to a far greater extent, by the male student group.

WE are pleased to present to our readers in this number, the first of a series of articles on the college, past and present, by Dr. Oscar Watson, M.A., of New York, a sketch of Dr. Watson accompanies the article so nothing more will be said about him. It is gratifying indeed however, to have an Alumnus support the Brunswickan in this fashion and to contribute such an excellent series of articles.

THE Reference made to the Brunswickan in our Co-ed editorial, probably arose from the fact that we expressed a desire to present something of more interest to Co-eds in its pages, than is already contained. Indeed, it has been suggested that page seven of the Brunswickan be run as a Ladies' Page each week, and that the Ladies of the university select their own editorial, news and sports staff to provide material for its columns. The Brunswickan would be pleased to include a section of this kind in its pages and offers any assistance which may be required in the organization and operation of a Ladies' staff.

N. B. APPLES

For the first time in the history of New Brunswick, 75 boxes of specially selected apples grown in the province were shipped recently from Saint John to Alexandria, Egypt, with a view to testing the suitability of this fruit for the Egyptian market.

EDUCATED

The general impression of a great many students who struggle their way through course after course, high school and college, is that those who brilliantly lead the class in examinations, take medals and win scholarships, generally fade into the back-ground upon graduation and become living examples of the proverbial office clerk, who ekes out his days in a rut from which he never emerges. This may be so to a certain extent, and may even be certified by some of our leading industrialists who state preference for the man of lower marks and broader outlook, rather than the more conspicuous student who has narrowed his horizon to that of his books. But in the case of the Hon. Angus L. Macdonald, Premier-elect of Nova Scotia, we have a student of highest calibre who has attained exceptional position in his native province, at the comparatively young age of 43 years.

The Hon. Mr. Macdonald, however, was not merely an exceptional student scholastically. He was one of those rare and fortunate 'sons of the gods', who attained eminence in the class-room and at the same time, participated liberally in the outside activities of the university, and with marked success.

Born in Broad Cove, Inverness County, Cape Breton, in 1890, Mr. Macdonald attended the county schools, and later the Port Hood Academy. After 'teaching' for a number of years, he entered St. Francis Xavier's College, from which he graduated in 1914, the gold medalist of his class. At this point he planned to study law but instead joined the army, with the rank of a Lieutenant and went overseas. He was subsequently promoted to the rank of a captain and served actively until he was severely injured shortly before the Armistice.

Upon his return to Canada following his recovery, Mr. Macdonald took up the study of law at Dalhousie and received the degree of LL.B. from that institution. He then became Deputy Attorney-General, until in 1924 he was called to a professorship in Dalhousie Law school. The following year he went to Columbia for specialized study in law and three years later was awarded a scholarship at Harvard University.

In June, 1929, Harvard conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of the Science of Jurisprudence, a

REVISED REPORT ON GOLD ISSUED

A revised edition of a report on "Gold in Canada" has just been issued by the Dominion Department of Mines. Impressed by the unprecedented world wide interest in the exploration for, and the production of gold, the Honourable W. A. Gordon, Minister of Mines, has thought it opportune that Canada's present position as a producer should be more widely known.

"The object of man's cupidity from the earliest times, gold has been perhaps more influential than any other metal in shaping the course of human history", states the author. "A somewhat remarkable fact regarding the influence that gold has exercised on human affairs is that it has not been due to any intrinsically useful qualities of the metal, but to the importance to its mere possession". "The value placed upon gold is purely symbolic, and at no time has it been desired merely for the industrial uses to which it could be put and the material service it could render to mankind".

The report furnishes a brief history; a record of annual production; such details of cost as are available; and a description of mining and milling methods for each property now in production. In addition there are short discussions of such topics as the physical and chemical properties of gold; its rarity and modes of occurrence; the history of its use; the gold standard; the history of the world's producers; the types of ores from which gold is produced; and the history of gold production in Canada.

degree held by only three other Canadian graduates of that university. In that same year he returned to his old chair at Dalhousie Law School, and remained there until May, 1930, when he entered politics.

In addition to being a class leader, gold medalist and scholarship winner, Mr. Macdonald also engaged successfully in other branches of college activities. While at St. F. X., he was editor-in-chief of the college paper, and for two years a member of the intercollegiate debating team.

At Dalhousie University he was a member of the football team, of the Students Council, and of the staff of the Dalhousie Gazette.
