THROUGH the CAMPUS KEYHOLE

"THE Brunswickan is no good this week—" Thus, in certain well-defined circles, was judgment passed on last week's issue. And why? Because it was apparent to certain keen analytical minds that the "Campus Keyhole" differed from the "Campus Keyhole" of preceding issues. Yes, we will go so far as to quote one coed—"I think somebody else must have written it". May we congratulate that coed on her astounding observation. Really this is too much! Undoubtedly much more than we expected! When some of the students can grasp these things without being told, we feel that there is yet hope. We shall not despair! We shall not give up! Perhaps some more of you will "see the light" this week. Why who knows but those who were brilliant enough to comprehend the metamorphosis last week, may even begin to see why we are writing this. Great heavens! So this is how Columbus felt when he first stepped on the shores of America!

Now my children, you who worship at the shrine of the Great God Gossip, you who read "Shadow" magazines, you who pin photos of Jean Harlow to your walls, you—yes all of you mental juveniles, you overgrown high school children, come gather round our knees and we will tell you our thoughts, in words of three letters or thereabouts, so that there is a possibility of your understanding. The authors of this, and last week's column have never been guilty of writing a "gossip" column. There now, what do you make of that? What a revelation! But there is more to come—We are even so perverted and ill favoured mentally that we consider the perpetual discussion of personalities, and the endless groping for petty scandal as ill befitting the sphere of the university. And further we are even so bigotted as to suggest that the ardent readers of scandal columns and the "True Story" might be better employed reading Huxley Priestley and Conrad. That is perhaps rather a lot for some to assimilate at once. Yet you must try! We fully understand that some of you will never grasp it. Just the same as you will never grow up. Such students are a disease in the university, and the disease is contagious. We picture many of them as the type of persons who would turn round to stare after a blind man. In that way, as in the other ways we have discussed, they simply do not know any better. Think, you students who have read so far, and are beginning to smile complacently — perhaps after all you too come under that category.

Today's column thought:—It is extremely difficult to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.

Community Concert Ass'n Offers Student Rates

All students who have not obtained their membership in the Fredericton Community Concert Association are urged to join as soon as possible. Positively No Memberships can be obtained after This Week. No single tickets are sold for the concerts and only those who have obtained their membership in the local Association may attend these artist recitals.

Word reached headquarters recently that there is a strong possibility that the world famous Barrere-Salzedo-Britt trio could be obtained to give the first of this concert series. This is the first time that this great flute, harp and violoncello combination has been heard in this part of the world.

Georges Barrere, who has been acclaimed the world's premier virtuoso of the flute was educated at Conservatoire in Paris. In a recent New York Times article the celebrated commentator on things musical, Olin Downes called him, "the monarch of flute players."

No less an authority than Leopold Stokowski wrote of Carlos Salzedo "He is at once virtuoso, artist, composer and developer of the latent possibilities of the harp. Walter Damrosch says, "I do not think there is a man living today co-operation of the fathers and mothers to make the home what it stood for when it was an institution of love, honor and obedience and not what it is today, merely a place to eat and sleep.

Silent Biddle — the name itself will awaken memories in the minds of our oldest citizens. He with his two brothers composed the famous Biddle gang of Pennsylvania. He was the son of a Christian and God fearing father and mother. In the family were three boys and a girl. While these children were yet of tender years the little mother passed on to her just reward and the father, unable to hold the home together, married again in the hope that the advent of another mother would have a restraining influence on the children. The step-mother however, had neither the character nor beliefs of the little mother and the boys and their parents grew farther and farther apart. Soon Buddy (the "Silent", of today) could no longer bear the state of home life which now existed and which he abhorred and decided to leave home and journey to Philadelphia.

Arriving there he walked the streets starving until he learned to 'smash' baggage. From morning till evening the plaintive call of the diminutive boy could be who is a greater exponent of the harp than Salzedo. He is one of the most famous artists now concertizing in the United States.

Horace Britt, a member of the Philadelphia Symphony has been acclaimed as "the hero of many musical triumphs in this country and abroad" by the San Francisco Examiner. He has been distinguished for his work with the Letz and Elman Quartets.

Take out your membership today and be certain of hearing some of the world's greatest artists in person during this winter.

Student membership may be obtained from Don Jamer, Doris and Robyn Bayley. Also at campaign headquarters at the Barker House, Queen Street.

The Ten Largest Canadian Colleges

The growth of some of the universities in Canada in recent years has been one of the interesting features in the realm of education. The latest report shows that the ten largest Canadian universities in the Dominion in respect of students of university grade are as follows: University of Toronto 7,490; University of Montreal 3,759; University of Manitoba 3,309; Queen's 3,184; Laval 2,852; McGill 2,714; University of Saskatchewan 2,661; University of British Columbia 1,989; University of Alberta 1,690; and Western University at London, Ontario 1,552. In respect of total enrolment, Laval holds first place with 14,590; Montreal comes second with 12,763; Toronto third with 8,088, followed by Manitoba with 4,290; McGill 4,015; Queen's 3,904; Saskatchewan 2,962; British Columbia 2,772; Ottawa 2,573 and Alberta 1,938. — (N. heard at the Philadelphia station. By this means he earned a livelihood for several months until his indignant father and prejudiced step-mother learned his whereabouts. He was promptly seized and conveyed to jail and placed behind bars; bars which he was soon to see a great deal of. By the weakness of his father and the misrepresentation of fact of his step-mother he was sentenced to a reformatory by a kindly but misinformed magistrate who really believed he was doing the boy a kindness. So this boy of only thirteen years of age was placed in a van and conveyed to his home for the next few years. He, a mere lad of tender years was thrust into a cell with an older boy of six-
