THE STUDENTS' DIRECTORY

WE are pleased to present the 1934 Students' Directory, in this number of the Brunswickan, and trust that it will meet with the approval of the students and of the faculty.

We regret that we were unable to secure the co-operation of the entire student body in compiling the information essential for its publication; but, regardless of this, we have endeavored to check all of the names and addresses appearing in the list, in the hope of reducing errors to a minimum. In this we were assisted to a great extent by the university authorities, who were kind enough to provide us with a copy of the official list of students, without which we would have been unable to include in the directory the names of a large number of students who failed to hand in coupons.

The directory therefore, cannot, by any means, be said to be perfect; but it is as nearly so as the efforts of the staff could make it without individual canvass of the students. We are sure, nevertheless, that it will prove to be of definite value to many students who, in the course of their work and extra-curricular activities, find it necessary to get in touch with other students at their boarding places throughout the city. The main object of the work is to provide the essential information for such students and we trust that they will not be too severe in their criticism of mistakes which might have been avoided had each student accepted his or her own responsibility in the matter.

FREE SPEECH

Whoever he was who said that the Students' Union was in decline, certainly had not counted upon such a display of enthusiasm as was shown by the students at the meeting of the governing body held last Friday. And, if he was the same man who believed that representative government would solve the problem facing student legislators, then, surely, he was a much mistaken man.

Representative government might be needed at U. N. B., but it certainly is not wanted; and the students have a habit of getting what they want, under the present system of government, annoying as it may seem to some who have individual likes and dislikes. It was apparent enough at Friday's meeting that what the majority of the students do want, have and intend to keep for some time anyway, is the right to get up and say what they wish to say, whether in support of some move of which they approve, or in opposition to a suggestion with which they disagree.

The Editor

"The Brunswickan".

Dear Sir,

I see in your last issue that the Committee of the Dramatic Society is planning to award my Challenge Cup this year on a system of marks. This would seem a sound idea—provided that their conclusions agree with mine.

I think it probable indeed that I shall consult their President before I make the award. But I would like them to remember that their Society is being watched from without by keen (and charitable) eyes, and that, dormant though he may seem, the donor of the trophy is interested in them enough to assert (as occasionally he has asserted in the past) an opinion of his own in things Dramatic.

Yours etc.,

R. E. D. Cattley.

Ladies Entertained

Miss M. Kinney

Last Thursday

On Thursday afternoon a tea was held in the Ladies' Reading Room in honor of Miss Margaret Kinney, travelling secretary for the Students' Christian Movement. Miss Kinney, a graduate of the University of Alberta, class of '32 was welcomed to our university by Miss Pat Pond, president of the Ladies' Society and Miss Florence Manuel president of the U. N. B. group of the S. C. M. Miss Kinney gave a brief but interesting address concerning her visits to the different universities throughout Canada, after which tea was served by members of the Ladies' Society. Mrs. C. C. Jones poured and other invited guests were: Mrs. A. Foster Baird, Mrs. Adam Cameron, Mrs. W. C. Keirstead and Miss Edith McLeod.

College Comment

Although the average college graduate is supposedly too idealistic to consider the financial benefit of an education when he is answering that old question, "Why I Came to College", there will probably be quite a few who will be interested to know that William Atherton Du Puy, the eminent statistician has estimated that the pecuniary value of a college education amounts to $65,000.

While the high school graduate may expect to earn only $110,000 during his life span, the college graduate will earn $175,000 according to the report of Mr. DuPuy, executive assistant at the department of interior, who has just completed a statistical study of the power of education.

At 18 the high school graduate earns $800 in contrast to the boy with only grade school training. He will net an annual income of $1,500 at 22 which represents the maximum of the average income of a man with grammar school education. The college graduate begins to earn at the age of 22, reports Mr. Du Puy, without taking into account the abnormal conditions due to the depression. He starts off at about $1,400, which is less than the high school graduate makes at the same age, because the latter has been working for years. The college graduate's income rises rapidly by the time he reaches 26 years of age, but that of the high school graduate mounts more slowly. When the two are between the ages of 43 and 48, the college man's income usually comes to a point of rapid increase and the high school training man's income is stationary and his momentum is slackened. When the college man reaches 60 he is earning $4,000 a year, and at 70 his income drops to $3,500.
