OTHER UNIVERSITIES

The University of Saskatchewan co-eds are joining in the national registration of Canadian women for War service. They are complying with the questionnaire which will indicate in what manner women can aid Canada in the present struggle.

At McGill University authorities have informed students that all those who enlist for active service will have their fees refunded.

Bogey-men, goblins and witches were in order at the Monster Bogey Ball and Funfest held Hallowe'en in Ruthford Rink at the University of Saskatchewan. Besides dancing there were carnival attractions of games of skill and chance. Admission to the dance was by student pass.

Alumni returning for the unusual Homecoming festivities at the University of Maryland were feted at a round of gala activities. The highlight of the activities was when the freshmen attempted to lift the "rat rules" imposed by the sophomores by pulling the Second Year men into Paint Branch in the annual tug-of-war.

AM I NOT

Time is passing,
I'm not glad:
Time is passing,
I am sad:
Time is passing,
Sad my lot,
Time is passing,
I am not.

Which constitutes an epitaph,
Inspection of the passers by
Has made me cease to wonder why

War Brought Home To U. B. C. Students

Vancouver, (CUP): University of B. C. students are attending their lectures here today to the booming of big guns as the batteries of the nearby gun emplacement crash out in practice exercises.

Shipping has been warned that three days of this week have been set aside as a testing time for both guns and gunners of the several emplacements situated along our coastline.

The nearest battery to the university is actually on the campus area overlooking Howe Sound, and has proved a constant source of interest to the students in spite of barbed wire fences and innumerable "No Trespassing" signs.

Too much interest, however, is not encouraged by the authorities. Last week no less than ten undergraduates were collected in twos and threes and placed in the guard house after alert sentries had found them wandering within the fenced-off area of fortifications. The students were detained only an hour or so and managed to get off with a stiff dressing down from the unit's commanding officer, but the incident has served to discourage further trespassing.

Tramping feet, soldier songs and bugle calls have added a touch of the grim realism of war to the campus during the past few weeks as soldiers from the newly erected barracks made their daily route march over the university area. At night the sound of stentorian voices "rolling out the barrel" drifts up from the cliff on which the camp is situated, while during the day bugle notes mark the passing of the hours.

THE MODEL MISS WEARS THIS ...

Last week we spoke of green but this week we are going to introduce wine to you. If you hanker after a change try the new red wine — it has something regal and sophisticated.

But remember — don't wear orange-toned make-up with a wine outfit. Lipsticks that go with wine, or the grape family, are blush rose, baby pink, cherry, raspberry, plum, formal red, red orchid, blueblood.

Use your rouge sparingly. Choose a warm in between rose cream or rose beige powder. Don't forget to wear a dab of gray, blue or violet eyeshadow. Your nail polish will range from delicate shades of rosy pink to the deep and subtle vintage shades.

It's a case of visa versa when accessories come in. Just as we wore wine with black, we now wear black with wine.

Wear a blazing sparkling garnet flower pin, mounted in silver and you add just the right touch to a wine monotone costume. But heavy gold and bulky silver jewelry are also highly recommended.

Male star (after the ceremony): "And this, my dear, is our future home. I hope its furnished to your taste."

The Lady: "Well, its very nice, but somehow it seems kind of familiar to me. Are you quite sure we haven't been married before."

Youth: "Could you give me a job, Manager: "But weren't you the fellow I caught trying to kiss my daughter last nite?"

"Er-yes, but I didn't."
"Well, I don't want any failures in my store. Good day!"

A red-haired boy applied for a job in a butcher shop. "How much will you give me?"

"Three dollars a week; but what can you do to make yourself useful around a butcher shop?"

"Anything."
"Well, be specific. Can you dress a chicken?"

"Not on $3. a week", said the boy. —Gateway.

Joe didn't listen, look or stop. They towed his flivver to the shop. In just about a week or two They fixed his flivver good as new; But though they hunted high and low, They found no extra parts for Joe.

tion in detail and laid the foundation for the dummy which it is planned to have arranged before Christmas. Discussions were held on the expenses of various pictures which had to be published and while there will be no attempt to materially cheapen the appearance of the Year Book, yet economies will be made where at all possible. It was stressed that the business staff should make an effort to double the number of advertisers by attempting to procure more national advertising.

Photographs for the Year Book will be taken as soon as possible and it is planned to have the Senior Class pictures taken immediately. Candid snaps for the hodge podge pages should be given to Gerry Hughes, Photo Editor.

Those in attendance at the meeting were: Jim Colby, Mary Neville, Gerry Hughes, Jack Kennedy, Les Simms, Whitley Tomlinson, and Bill Smith. Les Hoar, another member of the committee, was absent from Fredericton over the weekend.

two assistants. The president of the Council, Lester Hoar, announced that the financial statement of the 1939 year book has been received from the business manager. This report set the deficit at $317.82 at the time of making out the account. At the same time the year book had assets in the form of 43 year books.

Mr. Colby reported that, after studying the causes of deficit in the last year book and investigating sources of revenue, the committee had come to the conclusion that it was possible to make the 1940 year book a sound business proposition.

After lengthy discussion, the motion was made and carried that the S. R. C. publish a year book for 1940.

Dad: "What type of young man is this new friend of yours?"

Daughter: "Well, he says he has always wanted a goo dhome."

Dad: "Well, that sounds promising."

Daughter: "Yes, and he likes ours."

How to Behave

you ask Johnny whether huddles are for the purpose of gossiping about the other team, it is simply displaying ignorance and he'll take the blonde next time.

If you find yourself in the position of not knowing whether to applaud a brilliant play, watch Johnny. If he cheers loudly you are permitted to look quite happy about it and say "Wasn't that marvellous?"

Fifthly and lastly, Jennifer, never make comments on the players. The fullback you met last Christmas who is so handsome and who plays so wonderfully, invariably belongs to the other team.

never seen in action before turned in a good game for the Juniors. The pick of the Seniors was Jesse Peacock who played a game by herself. She was aided greatly by Ardeth Robertson and Frances Ainsworth who incidentally along with Aurelia Mulhern and Marie Dykeman have never played the game before. It was good to see Ardeth back playing again and we hope we will see lots more of her.

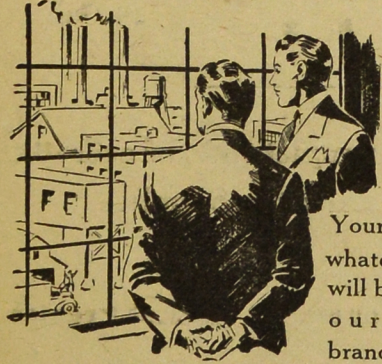

The first half started with the girls in a huddle on their knees. Whether they were praying or merely toughening up we couldn't tell. However, both teams played clean games and good basketball resulted in spite of the fact that they have not played for a good six months. The play was marked by much falling on the part of the young ladies and there was quite a bit of travelling with the ball. At half-time the score was 28-3 for the Juniors. During this interval the male section of the audience displayed their knowledge of the game by trying shots while the referee sat by reading his rule book. It was well he did because he and Jane Gregory seemed to have many differences of opinion in second half and once nearly came to blows. The Seniors seemed to play better basketball in the second half. Perhaps they were becoming desperate but the Juniors had to work hard to make up their score. The game ended with the Juniors 40 and the Seniors 8.

Why?

A BANKING CONNECTION ■

STUDENTS are not supposed to be outstanding in the matter of saving money, but some we know do manage to put aside a little from their allowance.

These students are doing themselves a good turn, not only because of the money put by which may be quite small, but because, by doing business with the Bank, they are building up a connection that will probably be of great value in the years to come when they enter business or professional life.
