

OTHER UNIVERSITIES

By Mary T. McMenamon, '41

According to a ballot cast in United States, American University students revealed that they were willing to go to war only if the United States proper was attacked.

The department of drama of Sir George Williams College commenced rehearsals of that Shavian melodrama "The Devil's Disciple" by George Bernard Shaw.

Van Alexander, whose hit tune was "A Tisket a Tasket," has been signed by the Rossbourg Club of the University of Maryland to bring his band to the campus for the first Rossbourg formal of the year.

Students of the University of Saskatchewan will have an opportunity to wear their summer clothes once again before putting them away in moth balls. This is at the Arts and Science Summer Waltz night. Although the dance is in the form of a formal light colored clothes will be worn.

At Bates a new rule has been passed. No freshman may compete on any varsity team through the first year. For varsity basketball, baseball, tennis, swimming winter sports they are ineligible.

The annual Freshman - Freshette dinner and dance of McGill will take place this week. The Freshettes, who go unescorted, and Freshman dine separately. After supper everyone will get together for a dance in the Union Ballroom.

At the University of British Columbia recruiting in the C. O. T. C. has reached six times its customary peace time enrollment. The women of the University have already started a drive for war relief funds and many are taking special nursing and ambulance courses.

Maryland's own Charlie Kellar, World Series Hero and New York Yankee star, will return to the campus to receive tribute from the University of Maryland student body at the "Kellar Day," parade and student rally Thursday.

In a statement released by the Diamondback the Freshman Class threw down the gauntlet to the Sophomore Class and declared that a state of rebellion existed. "The freshman have what it takes to combat the sophs in every means possible."

The University of Manitoba has planned the Co-ed's Ball for Nov. 17th. This announcement was received with definite approval by the men to whom this means an "evening out."

The students at Dalhousie have constructed a "Magenot line" which goes into effect this week when there will be a "mock war." The men have been going through their paces under Major Cattle's direction.

The Philharmonic Society of the University of Alberta have commenced production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe."

The Queen's University Alumni as usual on Re-Union Week-ends is planning two dances for the Grads and Students. Grant Hall will be set aside for the returning Alumni and the Gym will be the locale for the Students.

You've Seen Them Around

G. F. G. HUGHES

"Small but dynamic" we may say of Gerry Hughes who this week we have torn apart for you. Gerry—like all those people from Quebec is a person full of college spirit.

He certainly has had his fill of offices in all the campus societies. In his sophomore, junior and senior years he was respectively secretary, treasurer, and vice-president of the Students' Representative Council and was secretary of the class of '40 during his sophomore year.

Even the Year Book cannot get along without his capable assistance. Last year Jerry was Photo Editor and this year is also on the staff.

Along with all these activities Jerry has taken active interest in the Canadian Officers' Training Corps. On the side line Jerry has taken Engineering and last year was vice-president of that Society.

GRAMMATICAL GOOFINESS

You see a pretty girl walking down the street. She is of course, feminine. If she is singular, you are nominative. You walk across the street and become dative. If she is not objective, you become plural. You walk home together and her mother becomes accusative. You walk in and sit down and her little brother becomes an indefinite article. You talk of future and she again changes to objective. You kiss her and her father becomes present. Things become tense and you are past participle.

LOVE

I went to Cupid's rare retreat,
I wandered o'er the sands
The mist rose o'er the water
As I held her little . . .

parasol.

I held her little parasol—
Goodness me, how time flies!
The night was very lonely,
As I gazed into her . . .

lunch basket.

I gazed into her lunch basket,
And longed for just a taste,
I sat beside my little miss
With my arms around her . . .

umbrella handle.

With my arms around her umbrella
handle,
Of that charming little miss,
The moon stole o'er the water,
As I stole a . . .

sandwich.

—The Sheaf.

The honest mule lives 30 years,
And nothing knows of wines or beers;
The goat and sheep at twenty die,
And never taste of Scotch or rye;
The cow drinks water by the ton,
And at eighteen is mostly done;
The dog at fifteen cashes in
Without the aid of rum or gin;
The cat in milk and water soaks,
And then it twelve short years it
croaks;

The modest, sober, bone dry hen,
Lays eggs for nogs and dies at ten;
All animals are strictly dry,
They sinless live and swiftly die;
But sinful, ginful, rum-soaked men,
Survive for three-score years and ten.

THE MODEL MISS WEARS THIS . . .

Plaids and checks are outstanding on every campus. One smart way to wear them is in a Robert Piquet adaptation. A tucked bodice, skirt with a straight front panel and bias sides and back. Give it a real schoolgirlish look with a demure collar of white pique and a bow.

Equally smart is a reversible jacket with a reversible hood which is detachable. Plaid on one side and camel hair on the other. Wear it with a pleated skirt in plaid.

Or if you wish to be conventional stick to the three piece suit with finger-tip coat. Make the outfit in the smart new three color plaid tweed with the plain skirt to match.

The more blouses you have the larger your wardrobe seems to be. A jacket blouse in linen is very nice. They are smart with plain or plaid skirts in contrasting or matching colors.

Knitted suits are very smart when made of contrasting reversible colors.

A POME

"Class of Forty-One"

We all do know that forty-one
Is the class that's always full of fun.

There's never a room or meeting
quiet,

For where they are, there's noise and riot.

"Unconstitutional" says President
Simms

But none of them listen to his whims.

You'll notice that it always seems
There are forty-ones on all the teams.

And our honor not only is upheld
By those who played—but by those who yelled.

If a Junior is playing, the class'll turn out

And vent their enthusiasm with a shout.

Apart from sports, they are students too

And as for brains, have quite a few.
They attend all lectures, but you will find

That in the crowd, there's not a grind.

At the budget meeting last Tuesday nite

You saw them all right in the fight.
So remember you students Up the Hill

We've been respected and always will

So forget the seniors, for you really must

COLLICH FUN

Marg: "John, dear, I'm to be in amateur theatricals. What will people say when they see me in tights?"

John: "They'll say I married you for your money."

Even a man of letters may get stung at a spelling bee.

Father: "Who was that man I saw you kissing last night?"

Modern Daughter: "What time was it?"

The girl who says her face is her fortune is probably on relief.

An actor married for the third time to a girl who was married once before, scrawled across the wedding invitations: "Be sure and come. This is no amateur performance."

If prosperity came back we might be able to get girls' fingernails out of the red.

I saw a man fall down the stairs,
I laughed till I thought I'd die

—He did.

"You gave me a bum steer," said the milk maid, as she came away with an empty pail.

He: "Won't you join me in a cup of coffee?"

She: "You get in first."

Some Bachelors belong to the Girl-of-the-Month-Club.

Traffic Cop: "Use your noodle lady. Use your noodle."

Lady: "Where is the noodle? I've pushed and pulled every thing in the car."

The only social function at which a man is indispensable nowadays is a wedding.

"Unless you pay us soon," wrote the blackmailer, "the gang will be instructed to kidnap your wife."

"I have no money," came the reply, "but I am interested in your proposition."

No two women are alike and no woman is alike more than once.

"Did you ever break a date?"

"Did I? Everyone I ever went with."

She was only a road worker's daughter, but oh, how she made the grade . . .

Bride: "When you married me, I thought you were daring and courageous."

Groom: "That's nothing. Name one person who didn't."

Regard the Juniors with awe and trust.

Jane Gregory.
