Last Friday . . . swell dance . . . black-outs, more black-outs, only this time with flash lights . . . everyone there . . . everything there . . . from evening dresses to slacks . . . stags and staggers too . . . but just wait til the big Formal tonight . . . and what's this I hear about a champagne party?

A couple of Junior gals better not plan on doing their studying in the Library after this or they are going to get—"

Romance and glamour extracted from a common fern by a noted Prof! Had this some connection with the cane or was the Doc understudying Dr. Jeckyl? Maybe Mr. Hyde?

It appears Blotch can't get a girl to be true to him. My, he's particular.

I guess that Christmas trip to Moncton was a little too much for you, eh, Casanova? And now Halifax—eavens!

Twinkle, twinkle little flashlight. But that's not fair, Bob, unless Fran Will(i)s it so.

Newest campus partnership: 1 Juniorette plus 1 Freshman plus 1 trumpet player. Guess who's Senior Partner?

The first and the second get together—in the same house, no less. What a situation! Rather awkward, eh, Bob?

The Austen rides into Ola's life again. Wonder what the Chev. would say?

Did we step on you on the way up She-She?

Yes, dear, and we're just going to do everything together this year, aren't we, dear? Ski together and Skate together and . . .

So long now, kids. Be very good. Love and kisses,
