and would facilitate far greater services if properly developed? And is it not also true that their development is hindered only by the executive men? Yet we do not sit back and accept things as they are. Men of science are steadily showing the advantages of their knowledge and bringing their resources to play greater parts in a more extensive utilization of our possessions in order that mankind everywhere shall profit. These advances are not accomplished by hiding behind a printed sheet and shouting fool at everyone who has ideas we are not familiar with or ignorant of. Such criticism is not constructive, helpful or appreciated.

be chosen in the near future. The Co-ed Dance will be held on February 27 in the Memorial Hall. With Dodie Reed, as chairman, a dance committee of Sheila Lemont, Joyce Mavor and Jean Nevers was appointed. It was announced that the Ladies' Society had been requested to cater to a luncheon for the Senate and the faculty on Founders' Day. A committee comprising Shirley Pugh, Marguerite Rideout, Eileen Crotty and Marion Morrison is in charge of all arrangements.

wood, Butler, and Keating. During this trimester, the only goal was scored by Colin Sherwood, who, showing a burst of his old-time speed, garnered a point for the Beavers by stick-handling through the College team and shoving the rubber past Pelletier's sprawled form.

In the concluding twenty minutes of play, both teams opened up, defences crumbled, caution was thrown to the winds, and offensive hockey became the theme from there on in. Keating and Sherwood scored in quick succession, but not to be outdone, "Happy" Andy Anderson, on a pass from Baptist, easily frustrated Giggey, after fooling the Beaver defence completely. Then Ralph Lockhart, getting in the clear, bore down on the Saint John net, and drawing Giggey out, rapped home the puck, to even the score.

Alarmed at his threat to their supremacy, the battling Beavers put on a power play. So did the U. N. B. team. A struggle of Titans resulted. Play saw-sawed back and forth, with neither side gaining the advantage. The Beavers in mortal fear of having their invincibility as well as their morale shattered, began to resort to other tactics, and rough-housing started on a hitherto unprecedented scale. Livingstone, on defense for the home team began bumping around the haplessly lighter college players, until Big Johnny Kilburn came to rescue, and handed Vince one of the neatest little body-checks dished out on Saint John ice in some time.

With but a scant two minutes to play, Livingstone scored a lucky goal for the Beavers on a fluke shot. Then master-mind Jackie Keating gathered up the loose puck at his own blue-line, skated down the ice, behind the U.N.B. net, and lifted the pill into the corner of the twines—a tough break for the Red and Black, but one which confirmed victory for the Beavers.

So the game ended 5-3 in favor of the southern club. But it was not the final score which told the true story this time; it was the way in which the college lads gave every ounce of strength and courage they could muster to try and whip the Beavers the way in which the U. N. B.

Do we need to reorganize the Club or will the present manager and committee realize that they have committed themselves to do a job, and get to work?

Why not finish this season with a little enthusiasm. Have sufficient birds there on badminton nights and see that they are properly steamed. This will undoubtedly cut our season shorter, but a short active season would be a great improvement over present conditions. This system would seem very extravagant to the manager, no doubt, but then, if he does not wake up soon, it will be impossible to hold the tournament for which $46.00 was budgeted.

Yours truly,

After a highly intricate discussion had ensued, the Council agreed to sanction the request of the hockey manager, Reg. Johnson, that the team play at Acadia. He reported that there would be no return game, but that U.N.B. would receive a $75 guarantee.

Regarding the acquiring of gowns for Encaenia a letter was read from the representative of the town choirs concerning the rental of gowns. Although no definite decision was reached, the S.R.C. gave the chairman authority to appoint a committee to look further into the matter.

which led him to make such remarks. Personally I feel that most of the Foresters would ignore his entire article but as it is published in our university paper and distributed throughout Canada we feel that a written apology in The Brunswickan is the only fair and reasonable procedure for Mr. Ikejani to take.

Interclass Upset

The Juniors became alarmed. Screams, shrieks, and prayers rent the skies. The name of Tony Pelletier was evoked. Tony's name was on everybody's lips—he, the guardian of the third year men. Tony did not come, and so the Junior Hockey Team went down to defeat.

Second Game:

In the other contest of the afternoon, played well into the gathering dusk, the Sophomores regained their title as "lordly" as they drubbed the cocky Frosh sextet 10-0. This game as the score applies, was a wide-open, "anything goes," catch as catch can type of hockey, or shinny, as it more properly resembled. Everybody on the Sophomore team figured in the scoring.

Improved by constant practice Doug Simpson's boys came to life when everyone had at last given up all hope that they had any life in them, to win their first game in their sojourn up the hill. The miserable Freshmen shivered in their skates at the sight of the power that the Sophs unleashed on them. Single goal-getters were Bolton, Johnson, Ernie McKay and Ramsay, while Jim Ayer, Walter Ross, and Jim Dosne countered two apiece. "Rusty" Sweet played a stellar game in the nets for the visitors, and truly earns his newly-acquired nickname of "Blanket."

The Frosh, more angered than stung at their humiliating defeat, say that, with Goalie Bunker back once more, and with a practice under their belt, they will take the Juniors for a ride this week. Time will tell.

Parliament on Parade

"Biggest Big Business," the Munitions and Supply Department ruled over by Munitions Minister Howe now employs more than 2,000 compared with its original staff of 300 . . . only faster-growing branch of the Government Service is the Wartime Prices and Trade Board . . . even its publicity men won't estimate how many are drawing salaries from the board now, so fast has it expanded . . .

The Munitions Department handles more than 500 cables and telegrams every day, sends out and receives more than 5,000 letters . . . Number of new files, exclusive of secret and confidential dockets, increased by nearly 25,000 between July and September last year.

Ottawa Oddities

The deputy minister of fisheries in the federal cabinet—no fooling—is Dr. D. B. Finn—They're rationing sugar in Canada and yet the best authorities say there "hasn't been a ripple on the surface" as far as hoarding is concerned . . . the picture is a lot different in the United States . . . Ottawa correspondents get some strange requests . . . the British Library of Information, for instance, wanted to know what size hat Winston Leonard Spencer Churchill usually wears . . . The Press Gallery had the answer . . . it's a 7 1/2 . . . now all the correspondents, wowed by the pm's charm, claim the same hat size . . .

Figure Men

Finance Minister James Lorimer llsley gets a bang out of talking shon with Walter Gordon and Dr. R. P. Bryce, keen young members of his department . . . The trio often spends hours talking over obscure economic points . . .

"It's as interesting as a university extension course," says Mr. llsley, for our money one of Mr. King's top men.

Mr. Gordon, graduate of Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., and Dr. Bryce, who did his studying at the university of Toronto, Cambridge and Harvard, attend most of the minister's press conferences and have earned the admiration of correspondents for the way they reel off figures . . .

Potent Paragraph

The rubber shortage was never more sharply underscored than this . . .

"How long the motorists of Canada will be able to stay on the road will depend entirely on themselves and on tire dealers and service stations . . ." So says Supplies Controller Alan H. Williamson of the Munitions Department . . .
