and numerous suggestions were made as to where they could be reduced. The proposed appropriations were referred to the different classes for discussion and decisions which will be presented at the final budget meeting on next Wednesday evening.

Besides the survey of the budgets the classes were requested by the S. R. C. to reach decisions on the following three matters: whether or not exhibition games should be cancelled and interclass athletics promoted; if it is the wish of the students to grant an amount of money to the Spitfire Fund; in the event of an S.R.C. surplus what method should be used of disposing of it.

In addition to the controversies regarding the budget, several other

Glee Club and Dramatic Society will be formed to assist the Senate committee.

The plans which have been determined so far call for cancellation of lectures, labs, and C.O.T.C. activities on the 17th of next month. In the evening, a program has been arranged for the Memorial Hall and will include a paper delivered on the University Founders, a one act play staged by the Dramatic Society, a short concert under the direction of the Glee Club, to be followed by a dance as the concluding highlight of the evening's celebration.

This shows the trend of thought in the big universities of Canada in regard to sport. If we followed their unselfish example we would not have spent seventy dollars on a hockey coach this year; we would not have pulled off the ludicrous deal of buying hockey sweaters twice so that a few hockey players could buy a few jackets that enhance nothing but their own vanity. Was any one of these so-called sportmen a big enough sport to give his sweater back to the S. R. C. and ask to have the amount that he would have received, placed to the credit of the Spitfire fund? I didn't see any one of them doing it, notwithstanding that it would not have cost them a cent personally. Watch these same generous sportmen at the budget meeting. See them rise en masse to bluster, and belittle at the first timid soul that dares to raise one little objection to the magnitude of the hockey budget. And then these same sportmen wonder why the student body is not behind them, will not support them! Just as soon as these sportmen are willing to co-operate with the rest of the students in being reasonable about the cost of sport and to regulate sport activities to the desires of the students as a whole and not try to force their own selfish wishes on these aforesaid students then and only then will they find the students supporting them.

Lastly may I announce my "Bill of Rights for Sport" at this university for the duration of the war. It is as follows: (1) No team sponsored by the University shall engage in any intercollegiate competition. (2) All possible emphasis is to be placed on intra-mural sport. (3) Sport is not to interfere in any way with military or academic work. (4) Teams sponsored by University may engage in competition with any local teams only when such competition does not necessitate any travelling expenses.

week course as a probationary sub-lieutenant.

Throughout his four years at U. N. B. Colin Mackay gained many friends and was very active in student affairs where he showed his tireless zeal and enthusiasm as a member of many organizations. Among his various activities were his associations with The Brunswickan, the Year Book, the S. R. C., the Dramatic Society and the Arts Society.

This year he held many important positions on the campus, which included the Editorship of the college paper, the co-editorship of the 1942 Year Book, the vice-presidency of the Council, the presidency of the Arts Society and of the Residence. To these organizations his loss will be a keen blow and sorely felt. His absence from the campus will be noticed with regret by his fellow students, but to him will be extended their best wishes and good luck for success in his new task.

of Harrison Randall, who rendered, among other selections, his version of Glen Miller's arrangement of Fletcher Henderson's arrangement of "Boogie Woogie Piggy". This tender melody effectively restored the frenzied rug-cutters to at least temporary normalcy.

Jack Vermeeren was chairman of the committee in charge of preparations for this event. Professor and Mrs. Fieger acted as chaperones.
