Message

The second celebration of Founders' Day takes place tonight, Friday, January 22nd. These celebrations were arranged as a result of the views expressed by members of the student body, many of whom are now on Active Service. For this and other reasons it is appropriate that Founders' Day should be considered primarily a day on which the students themselves pay tribute to those who have created this University and who have contributed to its traditions, its fame and its physical progress.

This suggests that a holiday with special events arranged by the students or for the students would be an appropriate way of celebrating this occasion. Unfortunately the war is making so many demands upon us that this cannot be done at present. I would hope however, in the post war period Founders' Day might be free of lectures, laboratories and other prosaic details which now prevent us from enjoying it to the full.

Tonight friends of the University are presenting us with Memorial Windows in memory of very distinguished graduates and friends of the past. Dr. D. C. Harvey, one of the most distinguished historians in Canada, who has been head of the History Department at the Universities of Manitoba and British Columbia and who is now in charge of the Provincial Archives in Halifax, is to give us an interesting paper on the history of the Maritimes. I would hope that some of those who plan to come for the dance might turn up in time to take part in the unveiling of these windows and to listen to this address.

DR. H. S. BRIDGES

The name of this distinguished classicist and educationalist will recall to the minds of hundreds of men and women, a man of great kindness of heart and one whose judgment always commanded respect.

Message

Years ago a few men of New Brunswick engaged in a struggle to establish the University of New Brunswick. As a result of their efforts, this democratic institution was founded. Their deed took persistence and courage, but the result has proved worthy of the effort.

To-day, all over the world students of U.N.B. are engaged in a much fiercer struggle, that we may continue to enjoy our finest heritage, our right to participate in the practice of democracy of which our University is a part.

Does it not seem fitting then that we should now pause to pay homage to the men who gave us this University, a symbol of our freedom.

To-night the students of U.N.B. will gather to honor these men. It is with a special pride that they will participate in the ceremony because it was the founders of U.N.B. who pioneered higher education in Canada as well as New Brunswick. It was the founders of U.N.B., who, with the founders of Kings College, share the honor of founding one of Canada's first Universities. So when we pay honor to such names as Paine, Wanton, Coffin, Chipman and Paddock we shall do so knowing that no other names are more deserving.

Although this is only the second Founders' Day to be recognized by this college, it is already becoming a tradition. As time goes by and more and more Founders' Days are observed, and students "up the hill" come to appreciate more and more our debt to our founders, it will surely become a tradition among traditions. And perhaps the students will remember with pride that it was the students of 1942 who conceived the idea of celebrating Founders Day.

Perhaps the greatest way students can honor our Founders is for each and every one to do his small part in an effort to build our University beyond their hopes or expectations.

In Memoriam

SIR DOUGLAS HAZEN

One of New Brunswick's most prominent men in the early years of the century will be memorialized by a beautiful stained glass window in Memorial Hall to-night. Sir John Douglas Hazen was educated at the Collegiate School, Fredericton. At sixteen he entered the University of New Brunswick and graduated with high honours in Arts in 1879.

Mr. Hazen was called to the Bar in 1883. In 1889 he took up residence in Saint John where he became president of two Law societies. The degree of B.C.L. was awarded to him in 1890; while in 1908 an LL.D. was conferred upon Saint John's outstanding politician.

Following his election to the House of Commons in 1891, Mr. Hazen won and was defeated in several provincial elections until he became premier in 1908. Always interested in local affairs, he was very active on the Fredericton municipal council, on the Provincial Hospital Commission, in the Saint John Horticultural Society, as Registrar and Treasurer of the University and as a member of the University
