commanding M.D. 7 been asked whether it is feasible to have less training for certain U.N.B. students? If the amount of training is decided by a general policy throughout Canada, why is McGill given special privileges?

This letter is written not because of any wish that college students may shirk their duties or that Canada's war effort may be hindered. However, if it has been decided that students at McGill can aid the war effort best by concentrating wholly on their scholastic course and taking merely refresher training in C.O.T.C., students at all colleges should be allowed to follow suit or students at McGill should have their additional privileges cancelled.

I hope that some one in authority will see fit to answer my letter.

Yours very truly,
A STUDENT

lege that wins the greatest number of debates, and in the case of a tie, a final debate will be arranged.

The Conference heard two very interesting speeches. The first was given by the Reverend Father Kane, advisor to the St. F. X. Debating Society. He spoke of the need for some federation of the world in which we could use the same instrument we use in debating—intelligent discussion. He also told the delegates that they should return with renewed energy to stir up debating on their campuses.

Mr. Munn, manager of radio station CJFX, spoke of the educational policy of the station and of the method used to make it a paying project. He reminded the delegates that only through the right kind of publicity could debating take its proper place.

The Conference voted to hold the M.I.D.L. meeting at Acadia next year, sometime before October 30 and all the colleges were urged to send delegates.

time this has been an almost unheard of occurrence at U. N. B. dances. Generally a girl is almost torn apart during Paul Jones' by three wolves trying to dance with her at one time. It was a banner night for all the wolves who had sneaked in on one ticket and were trying to steal somebody else's girl.

third and fourth years students follow a special course of a more advanced nature. Student Officers and N.C.O.'s act as instructors at all parades. These Officers and N.C.O.'s have been attending special classes each week.

The purpose of the week-end parades at this time of year is to permit the carrying out of Field Craft and Platoon tactics, Advance Guards, Flank Guards, Rear Guards, cover from view and cover from fire, relation of ground, and use of ground. It would be impossible to carry out these movements indoors, or in short outdoor parades.

There have been two week-end parades so far this year and during the parade last week-end Lt. J. McNair gave an interesting lecture on the history of the University C.O. T.C. No parade will be called this coming week-end, but other five-hour parades will follow in weeks to come.

their way home as stated by Miss McKenzie. Miss McKenzie in her rebuttal said she would hate to have to wash a car six or seven times. She suggested there should be a livery stable opened in the City.

The speakers in the second debate were Louis Babb and Jim Belyea for the affirmative and Helen Baxter and Gladys Harquail for the negative. The affirmative made the point that women are responsible for the downfall of man—therefore they are "more so", while the negative replied that men are responsible for most inventions and thus have the honour of being "more so". The rebuttals were ably handled.

Judges for the evening were Dr. deMerten, Dr. Bailey and Miss Frances Firth. After the debate refreshments were served in the Ladies' Reading Room under the convenship of Miss Frances Harrison, who also acted as chairman during the debates.

were sold at the men's check room, and the profit rolled in, especially during intermission when everybody seemed to have worked up a thirst (probably due to lack of coupons).

The Programme Committee consisting of Mick Mackay, Bud Smithers, Dick Sainsbury, Bob Forbes and under the chairmanship of Tom Brown did a good job in arranging the dance. They deserve credit for putting on an enjoyable evening.

The dance was chaperoned by Professors Gibson and Flieger and their wives.

Stuff 'N' Things

Rumor has it that the football team has an ace-in-the-hole for the return game with Mount Allison on College Field next Saturday. According to our informant the new addition is unknown even to the members of the rugby squad, but has been tagged "The Phantom". Who or what it is, is a question that we hope will be answered when the team takes the field against our traditional rivals one week hence.

We are thankful to one of our grads for a correction regarding last week's reference to the presidents of this university. It seems that King's College came into being in 1829 when Dr. Edwin Jacob became president, the original charter having been granted to the "College of New Brunswick" in 1800. King's College lasted until 1859, when the charter was surrendered, and the "University of New Brunswick" was authorized.

It is indeed noteworthy to find a graduate of U.N.B. who is still willing to do his bit for the Alma Mater by just dropping a line and setting us aright.

Here's a bit of verse which goes to the tune of "Where Do We Go From Here, Boys", that might be useful at next week's pep rally. It was published in this newspaper in 1937.

Give us another score, boys,
Give us another score.
We know that you can do it, as you've always done before.
It's up to you to draw first blood
And down them in the gore.
Smash, bash, bang, crash!
Give us another score!

Crack-of-the-week: Prof. Flieger, speaking on betting odds, illustrated with that characteristic dice-throwing action, referring to said procedure as, "The African golf game."

Rain or shine the team will be supported! This certainly appears to have been the college motto judging from the great turnout and the lusty cheers at last Saturday's game. Talking with some of the players afterwards, they commented on the added incentive they received by knowing their classmates were with them all the way. Let's see everyone's bright and smiling face at the Pep Rally next Friday night to be held in Memorial Hall before the U.N.B.—Mt. A. contest. And don't forget to bring your song sheets, the ones that were given out at last week's game. Perhaps those in charge may give us some inkling as to "The Phantom's" identity???

Historical Sidelights

Bliss Carman delivered the first valedictory given in the college—there's a copy in the library. The oldest book in the library is dated 1661... Freshettes used to be fined a peck of apples for infringements... Oscar Wilde once lectured the students here on "Decorative Art"... Bliss Carman was on the staff of The Brunswickan's forerunner and both he and his cousin, Sir Charles G. D. Roberts, wrote poems and articles for it... the first rugby team to represent the university was formed in 1891... Ross Munro, the world-renowned Canadian Press writer, was once a correspondent for the Canadian University Press. (Much of this material was gathered from Norma Linton's "Did You Know" column in the '37 Brunswickan.)

These courses will be followed by a two-week training period, presumably at Deep Brook, Nova Scotia. Kit has been issued to most of

The girls are divided into first soprano, second soprano and alto according to their voices, and when we have our music and a number of practices under our belt, we should be very good (at least that is what our Director thinks).

It is expected that we shall combine forces with the Boys' Glee Club now and then in order to present a complete chorus. But the two will never become one organization, we must retain our individuality.

football and basketball games and the Brunswickan, all of which would total not more than three dollars. That means that it costs five dollars for the privilege of attending the Fall Formal.

Let me put it this way. The Social Committee will spend about $200.00 on the Fall Formal. The gate receipts will amount to about $100.00 (judging from past records). This leaves a balance of $100.00 payable by the students. Divide $100.00 among 350 students and you will discover that the Student pays less than 29 cents for his presence at the Fall Formal. A long cry from the alleged charge of $5.00.

Other arguments were raised in this same column which are just as far from the truth as the one just explained. For the benefit of those who have not been here long enough to know, I merely point out the danger of allowing their opinions to be formed by a writer who can be so far off the beam as our dear friend, the author of "Dear Reader".

the men, and those not at present holding their equipment will draw theirs this week. Two blue uniforms have been issued with great coats, boots, and white and blue hats. In the spring summer white uniforms will be issued to be worn while on duty at HMCS Cornwallis.

Although the unit is at present the smallest on the campus, there is no doubt in the minds of its men and officers that it will set and keep a good record, worthy of McGill University.
