VOL. 73 FREDERICTON, N.B., FEBRUARY 5th, 1953 NO. 13

THE CO-EDS SOUND OFF ...

Students and faculty alike may deplore the lack of co-eds at UNB, which is all well and good, and makes a useful topic of conversation. Sure, we would like to have more girls here, too. But until then, how about learning to appreciate us as more than merely an artistic addition to the campus.

Counting post-graduate students, there are 52 co-eds at UNB while there are over two hundred enrolled at our friendly enemy, Mt. A. One would think that such overwhelming numbers would be overpowering as well. Such, however, is not the case. We can hold our own in all phases of university life.

Other universities choose their women's intercollegiate teams from at least a hundred contenders. The competition is severe and the honour of being a member of the varsity team is high. Only the best are chosen. At UNB generally twelve turn out for basketball practices at the beginning of the year—and twelve are chosen for the team. One would think that with such a condition, the quality of the team would not be high. This is not so. UNB co-eds have always held their own in intercollegiate play and occasionally have proved that they can be winners too.

There are only 52 co-eds here, remember, yet out of that number have come a very competent editor of the "Brunswickan", an editor for the Year Book, the head of the social committee, active members of the clubs and societies, and both administrative and artistic talents for the Red 'n Black Revue. Yet some people insist that they can't get the girls to help on committees or join societies. Think again. We organize dances, entertain athletic teams, help with ticket sales, sell apples, assist at blood donor clinics, and cheer till we're hoarse at your games. Personally, we think you should be glad to have us around.

U. I. S.
NOTES

It was a pleasant sight to see the smiling faces of our syndicate officers grouped around their desk. The smiles will be recorded to eternity in the '53 Year Book.

Earl Underwood was elected as Public Relations Officer but he missed out on the picture, poor fellow.

There was a royal attempt to change the constitution with the hope of eliminating quorum difficulties but the attempt failed. The shares of Vananda 48 which have been awaiting purchase have been withdrawn from the market. 1000 shares were purchased by the club.

The penny stock market has been acting like a rollercoaster within the last week but U.I.S. was cool, and U.I.S. was calm, and only invested a few hundred.

It was unanimously agreed that Mr. R. S. FitzRandolph, Comptroller General of New Brunswick, be invited to speak at the following meeting.

FIFTY-TWO TOO FEW?

Now fifty-two is their number,
One-thirteenth of students here.
A real minority, for sure,
But kindly lend an ear.
There's one who weekly edits
The paper that you read (?)
And another that does likewise
With the Year Book that you need (?)

There's sixteen in the Residence
That's called the Maggie Jean,
And ten, who every Friday
With a basketball are seen.
On Thursday night at seven
The SRC claims six.

The dramatists have several
Who know all the acting tricks.
When U.I.S. buys stocks and bonds
You'll find some there, it's true;
And twelve will kick their shapely gambs
For the Red 'n Black Revue.

The Red 'n Black has other claims
Upon our small amount of dames.
They sing and act, and plaster "goo"
On everyone in the Revue.

You'll also see them bowling for us,
But allowed in the Male Chorus.
And SAC, where more should be,
Has an official, named J. C.

They have a hockey team of twelve,
Into the swimming pool they delve,
At bridge and parties they abound
At dances they can all be found.
They have no limit, these fifty-two
To things that they can see and do.
To men who say, 'we have no wimmin'
They move too fast for you to see 'em.

S.R.C. MEETING

The Council gave its sanction on the Debating Societies' Budget change which came about when the Toronto Debating team visited our campus recently. No extra funds were given to the society but changes in their scheduled debates made the Toronto visit possible. Amendments to the SRC Constitution were made and accepted by the Council. These amendments will be posted on the bulletin board in the Arts building for everyone to read.

At this point the meeting was interrupted when Bill Reddin dashed in with the suggestion that the meeting be adjourned for five minutes so all members might view the eclipse of the moon. With great laughs and groans from the male population the Council accepted this suggestion, and moved to the steps of the Forestry building to view the spectacle. We noticed that even those unromantic males were taking a peek.

With the Council resuming its regular duties a committee was appointed, consisting of Bob Hatcher, Jane Bennett and Frank Walton to consider the Students Insurance scheme which has been presented to the SRC by the Senate. This committee will study letters which Mr. Macaulay obtained from other Canadian Universities to let us know how they use the insurance scheme, and they will report their solutions to UNB's problem at the next meeting.

A discussion on the printing of the Brunswickan gave many opinions and the feeling was expressed that since we are trying to maintain friendly relationships with University Press due to our enormous Year Book debt we should give them our Brunswickan business. This is an important decision and the editor-in-chief has been asked to give a report at next week's meeting on her view point. After more discussion on the same topic the meeting broke up—the Co-eds dispersing to the Gym to decorate for their dance, and the men dispersing to—your guess is as good as anyone's.
