

A moment to remember ... for one girl

Winter Carnival brings to mind many things, perhaps most popular of all, the seven lovely queens, one of whom will be chosen to reign over the Carnival.

The judges, who are anonymous and unknown to each other will have a variety of opportunities to make their decision since the queens will be on display on television, at the Queen's Tea, and at the Fashion Show and Dinner at the Lord Beaverbrook Hotel, this activity being the most rigorous of all.

The dinner will be followed by a showing of Spring Fashions from Levine's Ltd. of Fredericton. The queens model the latest styles from especially lovely, ensembles from the popular "Roman Room" and casual sports outfits. They will conclude the Fashion Show making an appearance in formal evening dress when they engage in a spontaneous question-and-answer period.

There is considerable geographical diversity represented in the seven queens this year! Pictured from left to right add up to roughly this:

Miss Engineering, Barbara Ramsay; Business Administration Queen, Claire Grey; Carrie MacMillan, Arts Queen; Nancy MacDonald, Forestry; Pam Hutcheson, this year's Physical Education Queen; Law Queen, Lorraine Caldwell, and Joan Hutchison, Science Queen.

The moment to remember for one of these girls will come on Opening Night, Thursday, when the queen will be chosen. After leading the Torchlight Parade through the UNE Campus, the queens will appear again on the Ice Palace down on Buchanan Field under parti-coloured lights. After Dr. Mackay officially opens our Tenth Annual Winter Carnival, "Kleeky" will wave his wand at the lucky girl who will be the Winter Carnival Queen for 1965.

A regular feature of past Carnivals and this year's (the greatest ever) will be the float parade and the sculpture exhibits.

It is in these activities that the student body as a whole takes a constructive attitude towards Carnival. Both the floats and the sculptures are built with an eye to entertain and also win one of the coveted trophies offered.

UNB Winter Carnival has a reputation for the finest snow sculptures in both quality and quantity for any university in Canada and reports to the moment assure Carnival-goers of another eye-pleasing display.

Pictured above are prize winning displays from previous years. The engineering "Float Under Construction" and the Jones House "Eagle" are examples of the type of creations that will meet the onlooker's eye.

The Parade can be viewed (?) at ten o'clock, Saturday morning and the sculptures can be seen anytime.
