Dear Sir:

An open letter to all Science Students:

Science Week for 1971-1972 has come and gone, and as everyone knows by now it was, although not disastrous, considerably less than successful. Several factors contributed to this outcome, some of which are undoubtedly our own fault, others of which are not.

Science Week a year ago was relatively successful, in that no money was lost and a reasonably number of people participated in the activities. On that basis, the Federation of Science Students thought that, with better preparation, this year's Science Week could be even more successful. Evidently we were wrong. Since last September, we have tried constantly to generate enough student support to allow us to organize a fairly active Science Week. These efforts were, by and large, failures. Apathy is an overworked word around UNB but it seems to describe the situation pretty well. Numerous students asked when Science

Week would be, as if it were as automatic as Christmas is each year. Their concern stopped far short of offering to help.

To those very few who helped in some way, we offer our thanks; names need not be mentioned because you know who you are. To those of you who participated in some way in the various activities, we hope that you enjoyed yourself. To the vast majority of Science Students, who belong in neither of the first two categories, we can only ask, "Why? Is it us or is it you?"

There is no denying that the events were not as well run as they should have been, but I think that those of us who organized them were justified in doing what we did. With no financial assets to rely upon and virtually no indication of support from the students, the F.S.S. couldn't possibly act as decisively as it would have had to ensure a well-run Science Week. With no support there is
