SRC settles campus radio dispute

He told CHSR Station Director Bill Akerley, that his threat to go off the air was "a wrong way of doing things."

Neale termed it "a blatant form of open blackmail."

He told the station manager that the SRC could not ratify their budget at the evening council meeting.

Akerley informed Neale that the decision to go off the air was an executive one and there was nothing he could do about it.

He told the meeting that the station had presented its budget five months ago.

CHSR had been operating for one month now without any money, said Akerley.

During Monday night's council meeting CHSR staff members turned out in full force to hear the decision of the SRC on the station's budget.

Fisher told council the CHSR budget matter was not as complicated as some have made it to be.

The money from the residence is expected revenue and it is the responsibility of the SRC to collect it, he said.

He indicated that Lady Dunn had already agreed to pay one dollar per person, Tibbett's agreed to fifty cents and Jones House stipulated they would pay one dollar per person.

Fisher said the residences had a "moral responsibility" to see that the money was paid.

Asked what the SRC could do if the other residences did not come forward with their money, the comptroller replied "nothing".

Council members approved the CHSR budget during Monday night's meeting.

Meanwhile, house presidents met with students in their houses to get their opinions on the CHSR matter.

Some houses have established a "pay if you please" policy. If students feel the CHSR service is worth a one dollar contribution then they can give it to their house secretary-treasurers. He will forward this to the SRC.

This year parking in the SUB are again the problem among the student population. However, Chief S. F. Williams says anyone would park would be proposed to park would be a problem. The problem as a glance at the SUB parking lots. The seven lots which three are located on the campus, while the lots are designated "faculty". Aside from the road space such as the Loring Bailey student students must use the two adjoining SUB, beside the book Gym, or off the street, of course, the students to walk to classes and the Lady book.

A car count survey by the Security Office shows students' dislike of the parking lot, the LB lot below the Tea room, and the playing field in particular. The survey, taken at the end of this school year, although the lot is a playing field has 150 cars, there
