will have to shift from the internal matters to that of our out conscious effort to serve students and bring back a that has somehow been lost the past few years.

"I'm looking forward to work with Brian Pryde," Murray said. "As in the past, I feel with out combined ground the students can forward to a better situation in the future between themselves the student union."

On the AFS fee increase Murray said, "The AFS referendum came as a bit of a surprise."

As for the proposed union increase Murray said, "As in platform I was not in support the ten dollar fee rise. I think students feel that 45 dollars more than plenty, and it's time that we make the average student feel their 45 dollars is spent. In our position now increasing costs and debts, I and myself will have to come agreement about how to work within the present financial situation."
