Mike Duffy is undoubtedly one of Canada's most highly recognized and respected journalists.

In Ottawa since 1973, he has been covering the personalities as well as the issues that shape our national politics. While CBC's man on the Hill, he was at the centre of everything that was happening. His vast and thorough understanding of our federal government and its workings is founded on first-hand observation. The "Senator" as his colleagues have nicknamed him, is much admired for his knack of uncovering and reporting what is going on behind bureaucrats' and politicians' closed doors.

Duffy's ability to get the story and then relate what it means to Canadians made him a natural choice to host the new current affairs show being launched by CJOH-Ottawa. Sunday Edition, seen on the CTV network, talks with the people who are responsible for the way things are and with those who change it. Where Mike Duffy used to go to Parliament Hill to uncover the headlines, today the headline makers come to his show.

Duffy's departure from the CBC in the summer of 1988 capped a fourteen year stint with the network in which he reported for The National, Midday, The Journal, This Week In Parliament, Morningside, and countless news specials. He has covered the free trade negotiations, the FLQ crisis, and wars in the Middle East and Vietnam. When it was confirmed Duffy would actually leave the network, a national post-card campaign was launched under the slogan "Bring Back Mike Duffy!"

He was born in Charlottetown, PEI and educated at Charlottetown schools and St. Dunstans' University. Prior to his extensive broadcasting career, Duffy worked as a reporter for both newspaper and radio.
