EDITORIAL

On behalf of the Brunswickan Editorial Board and Staff I would like to welcome all freshmen to UNB and wish you luck in your first year. As first year students you may not be familiar with The Brunswickan, it is a paper produced by students for students. You can be sure to see it on the stands every Friday once classes start.

I strongly encourage anybody who is interested in getting involved to come and see us, there's always a job to do no matter how little experience you have. Besides, the more staff we have the less work I have to do and that puts me that much further from the dreaded nervous breakdown that I am expecting.

And now for something totally different...

Its time to get good, Marks

INTRO: Here is the propaganda piece you asked for so that you'd get more staff - more writers ... like me, (heh! heh!)

by Steven Marks

The sun rose optimistically over the red brick campus as another frosh week dawned over the majestic institution of higher learning and uh ... partying?

It was about this time last year that I first ventured warily into the offices of the Brunswickan, Canada's oldest official student publication.

I didn't know what to expect.
 Now look at me:

I'm the president of a country,
 I've been on free trips to Chicago, Belize, Toronto,
 Montreal, Rwanda, Siberia
 (Calgary), Moscow, and more.
 Unbelievable eh?!

Plus ... I started a revolution, stopped one, played in the NFL, uncovered government secrets, was taken hostage, had people try to kill me, bought several helicopters, crashed a plane, played for the Montreal Canadiens, went in the Olympics, and lots more things too numerous to mention.

And all because of the Bruns.
 Oh yeah! I also learned about journalistic integrity, good writing skills ... and stuff ...

Now that I'm a senior reporter, with a little experience under my belt, I might get better stories.
