

Annual coaster derby coming soon

Brunswickan Staff

UNB is hosting its 19th Annual Coaster Derby this Saturday.

The Derby is a competition where students design, build and race gravity-powered vehicles down UNB's infamous hill on McKay Drive.

Heralded as a tradition at UNB, organizers of the event see this year as exciting as ever.

"We have three entries which were built as course projects, and there are the usual crazy entries; rumors have it that a '79 Renault LeCar has been resurrected just for this event."

Individual drivers have been training in braking and steering techniques, each trying to find ways to better both time trials and themselves as athletes.

Of course, having a decent vehicle in functional mechanical order is a good start.

Lubrication of such things as the steering system and the wheels will further better an individual performance.

Races are run from 11:00am until 2:00pm, with practice runs beginning at 10:00 am.

The event will conclude at the "Pub in the Sub" at 8:00 pm.

After the forces of gravity and friction have done their nasty work on this vehicle's inertia, a parking permit still costs only $55.
