LET HOME. since their lived in the city of Lon tashionable young people a lady and a aman. They belonged to wealthy families, and were pledged to be married to each other. Being people in high and fashionable life, they indulged in the folies most common to their rank. The gentleman was a Major in the Army; his duty therefore, sometimes called him to be absent for months. On one of these occasions the young lady was drawn by a friend to attend the services of a devout clergymen in one of the charches, and became religious.—She was troubled in her mind to know how to introduce the subject to her intended. She recollected that he was in the habit of frequentknow how to introduce the subject to her intended. She recollected that he was in the habit of frequently asking her to sing the celebrated air 'Sweet Home.' She composed the following lines to the same tune, and being invited to sing his favorite piece, sung the words she had composed. He resented it highly, but the final result was his conversion. Their marriage was consummated, and they afterwards were as distinguished for piety and acts of charity, as formerly for fashion and folly in voluptuous life.

'An alien from God and a stranger to grace, I wandcred through earth, its gray pleasure to trace, In the pathway of sin I continued to roam, Unmindful ales! that it lead me from home. Home, home, sweet, sweet, home,

O! Jesus conduct me to heaven, my home! The pleasures of earth I have seen fade away, They bloom for a season, but soon they decay But pleasures more lasting in Jesus are given-Salvation on earth and a mansion in heaven! Home, home, sweet, sweet home, ), Saviour, prepare me for heaven my home! 'Allure me no longer ye false glowing charms; The Saviour invites me, I'll go to his arms; At the banquet of mercy I hear there is room, O there may I feast with his children at home! Home, home, sweet sweet home!

O Jesus conduct me to heaven, my home! Farewell vain amusements, my follies adieu, While Jesus, and heaven and glory I view; I feast on the pleasures that flow from his throne, The foretaste of heaven, sweet heaven, my home! Home, kome, sweet, sweet home!

O when shall I share the fruition of home ! The days of my exile are passing away,
The time is approaching when Jesus will say;
Well done faithful servant, sit down on my throne,
And dwell in my presence forever at home! Home, home, sweet, sweet home!

O there shall I rest with my Saviour at home! Affliction, and sorrow, and death shall be o'er; The saints shall unite, to be parted no more, Their loud hallelujahs fill heaven's high dome. They dwell with the Saviour forever at home! Home, home, sweet, sweet home! They dwell with the Saviour forever at home !

Procession.—On Sunday, June 13th, an impressive religious display was made in Montreal. A paper of that City thus describes the ceremony;—
'Sunday was the day fixed by the Catholic Church, for the annual procession in honor of the Fete DieuThe procession was remarkable for imposing solemative, and the Cappage coveries of the nity, and the Canopy covering of the host was of unu sual splendor. A detachment of the 7th Hussars preceded the numerous Priests, Nuns, and Scholars of the several religions establishments, in rear of of the several religions establishments, in rear of whom, and immediately preceding the Host were those who carried baskets of flowers and strewed, them in the air, and those who carried the Cencers. Immediately after the Host followed the memoers of the Bar, which body was succeeded by the Band of the 23d Regiment. Grenadiers of the 23d, each with his musket and fixed bayonet, marched at intervals of about ten paces on each side, thus protecting the flanks of the procession from any pressure by the assembled of the procession from any pressure by the assembled crowd. A great many of the Police were also in attendance, but we are happy to say that nothing could exceed the decorum and respect universally displayed."

uses this language: 'I do not support this opin-ion because I think it is true; and therefore if he has elsewhere maintained the opposite, I care brity, and sent them to Edinburgh, and in a few not.' This was the first instance in modern times of a philosopher's disclaming human authority, and bringing into his discussions a fearless spirit of independence. It would now be deemed the mere utterance of a truism, but, as has been truly with eruptions of any part of the body, but parti-

PICTORIAL ILLUSTRATIONS OF

AND VIEWS IN PALESTINE.

The principal feature of these "Illustrations," is defined by it's title. It is to make the objects described or referred to in the Holy Scriptors of the graphs reader. objects described or referred to in the Holy Scriptures, familiar to the eye of the general reader. Picture Bibles" have oeen published in England and Germany with remarkable success. The present work, however, differs materially in its plan from any ever published in this country, it is compiled, mainly, from the notes of the London Pictorial Bible—a work which sells in this country from $18 to $25 per copy!—The subjects embraced in this single volume are interesting to all, and as it is not in the least sectarian esting to all, and as it is not in the least sectarian or denominational, it cannot fail to be desirable for all, whether professedly religious or not It is designed to be a standard and permanent family book-suitable for all ages, classes, and sea-

In preparing every article, it has been the wish of the compiler to render it a work universally acceptable to all denominations of Christians. The majority of the originals, from which these engravings have been made, are by the old masters, works that never can have a collective existence. The idea of rendering the best works of arrauxiliary to the study of the scriptures, is thus alluded to by a popular lecturer: "Their importance as a great engine, if rightly applied, on the mind and heart of man, in aid of religion, government, moral and social order, and the sequent well-being and happiness of the human race. To wean man from vice, win him to virtue, elevate to religion, or arouse him, like the sound of a trumpet, to deeds of patriotism, or self-devotion; by efforts such as these art becomes the proud ally of history and poetry, and takes its lofty station among the noblest productions of the human intellect—for the good of mankind, the honour of their country, and the glory of God." A picture, or sensible representation is remembered long after the description is forgotton; pictorial works, therefore, convey the most lasting impressions, not only to the educated, but the youthful and unlettered. It was to Bible the youthful and unlettered. It was to Bible prints that the infant Doddridge was indebted for he rudiments of that knowledge which is developed in his works; and the story of his educa-tion conveys a powerful moral, and a beautiful example of maternal solicitude.

In the present volume, it may be truly said, (we quote from the prospectus of the London Pictoral Bible,) "The immense treasures of art, which the great painters have bequeathed to us on sacred subjects, are here opened to all, as far as they are capable of being diffused through the medium of wood-engraving. The landscape scenes are represented with that fidelity which we are now able to realize through the labors of re-cent travellers; and the other objects whether of natural history, of costume, or of antiquities, are delineated with equal accuracy. These illustra-itons, of themselves, are notes of the most interesting and important character. The printed notes have precisely the same principle in view; and are chiefly devoted to an explanation of the objects mentioned in the sacred text. That such explanations, conceived in a spirit of sincere piety, and with due reference to their connection with the higher allusions of the inspired writings, may lead many readers to a more diligent perusal of the scriptures, there can be no doubt; and some of the labors of the most learned commentators have been accordingly devoted to such

Scorbutic Dintment.

THIS OINTMENT is made from a Receipt of the late celebrated Professer, JAMES HAMILTON, of Edinburgh' who was a member of that bright constellation of the Eighteenth century, which illumined the whole Medical World, and, in fact there is scarcely a Physician of any standing or talent at present who has not been exceed the decorum and respect universally displayed.'

Free Thought,—William of Oakham, a philosopher of the 14th century, and a native of England, in maintaining an opinion of Duns Scotus who had two sons sorely afflicted with ringworm, had sent them to London and put them under the strength of the months he sent them home perfectly sound by the use of the above Ointment. with eruptions of any part of the body, but particularly the young of both sexes, when they arrive at the age of puberty: they see often troubled have for their object the good of the people, was considered a most dangerous and original thinker.

The following sums have been received by religious societies in London during the past year: London Mission £80,000; Baptist do £26,055; Church do £286,320. In addition to which the subscriptions to the Bible Society during the same period amounted to upwards of £100,000. The following the same period amounted to upwards of £100,000. The following to such men that such truism are not now startling paradoxes or damped to the young of both sexes, when they arrive at the age of puberty: they see often troubled with eruptions of the face, which are very obstinate of cure. The finest face may be injured and the countenance entirely destroyed by freekles and other skin discases. The patient has only to use a box of the above Ointment with a box of the pills, to be convinced of the invaluable article is prepared and sold by the inventor Mr. G. Rifey, and by Messrs. Peters & Tilly, Saint John, and Mr. Jas. F. Gale, Fred-ericton. Price, 2s. 6d. per box, with directions for use, and the inventor's name in his own hand writing on the label of each box.

St. John, May 7, 1841 observed, it is owing to such men that such truism are not now startling paradoxes or damnable heresies. Fenelon for asserting at the time of Louis 14th that governments should have for their object the good of the people, was considered a most dangerous and original thinker.

The above Medicines will never fail in induout which no person can enjoy a good state of health; in fact the very lustre of the eye, as also the muscles of the face are lost and destroyed in sickness. The old adage is certainly true "a sound body is surely preferable to any other situation in life," but to see the young, who shall always be gay and cheerful, suffering, and who cannot often go into company on account of some deformity of the face; is really dreadful in the ex treme. In ulcers of the lower extremities (which is often the case in old people,) it will be found a valuable remedy.

Children afflicted with skin deseases of the head will find it answer better than any other application whatever; and in cases of bald head, the Ointment induces a healthy action of the scalp, when the hair grows beautifully.

The writer of this has been abroad for 25 years, and during that period he has never failed in one instance in making the most complete cures.

The Ointmeni and pills may be had at No. 6, Belvoir Terrace, Vauxhall Road, near the toll bar, Pimlico. All orders punctually attended to by addressing A. B. Manson.

A work on the deseases of children (addressed to Parents and Guardians of Children,) will be published in affew weeks by a Physician of BEAUTY. S an essential point of beauty the teeth must ever stand pre-eminent. No regularity of features, no brilliancy of complexion, no sparkling eyes or silken braid of jetty hair, can render that lady beautiful, who when she opens her lips (though they be of coral) discloses a set of di coloured teeth. On the contrary, even homely features and a sallow complexion are embellished and rendered agreeable by a set of white teeth; whereas the effects of decay, the accumulation of tarter, the black teeth. of decay, the accumulation of tarter, the black teeth, and tainted breath which is an invariable accompaniment of a bad state of the mouth, will always prove loathsome and disgusting; could such persons see for a moment the state of their mouth, or catch the odour of their own breath, they would re joice in finding a remedy so cheap and simple, and at the same time so efficacious, as now offered them
