BOSTON, JUNE 9.

British sch'r Traveller, with a cargo of 174 puncheons rum, prize to the privateer Diomedé, of Salem, has arrived at Thomastown, (Me.) A British brig with a cargo of 400 tons hides and tallow, prize to the Lawrence privateer, of Baltimore, has arrived at Portland, having by mistake run into the port of Shelburne, N. S. where she lay 50 hours, discovered her mistake, and sailed again unmolested. She was boarded from Shelburne, after the mistake was discovered, but reported she was an English vessel from Bermuda, having lost her convoy, and that she had put in there for a harbor. The prize-master, is said, first to have found that he was in an enemy's port, by going on shore and asking what place it was—She had the English flag Union Down when she went in.

JUNE 13.

Sloop Mariner, Nye, of and from Sandwich, for Boston, with wood, (a new vessel) was captured this morning, by a barge from the Bulwark 74, at anchor about 7 miles from Scituate, in co. with the Nymph frigate. The barge also captured 2 sloops off Cohasset Rocks, and 5 barges went into Scituate harbor this morning, cut out 2 sch'r's and burnt the remainder in port consisting of 9 sail of sch'r's and sloops. The ships can be seen at anchor from the top of this house, (Ex. Coffee House) 6 P. M.—another ship has anchored with them apparently a privateer.

SUNDAY, JUNE 11—Ar. Fishing boat Pilgrim, from the Bay this morning, was taken alongside the Nymph frigate still at anchor off Scituate, in co. with the Bulwark, and was permitted to proceed about 11 o'clock, 3 miles S. E. of the Light-house, was boarded from a sloop, tender to the Bulwark, which put on board 5 men and 4 women, taken out sch'r's Betty, Nickerson, hence, for Provincetown, which sailed this morning, which vessel she had captured and ordered down to the Bulwark. The prisoners informed, that 3 sch'r's and a sloop were alongside the Bulwark this morning, which were captured on Saturday evening—also, that the sch'r's Nightingale, Atkins, from Provincetown, for Boston; Fly, Gallagher, from do. Beauty, Holmes, from do. were all captured on Saturday evening, by the barges and tenders. Two tenders, and 5 or 6 barges were out all Saturday night, scouring the shore from North, to South; in fact so numerous are the barges and tenders in the bay, that it is almost impossible for a vessel to escape capture bound in or out.

Defensive Preparations.

MASSACHUSETTS, JUNE 11. We copy the following article from the Salem Register, and are very happy to see the activity of our neighbors. The same spirit should be followed throughout our maritime towns, as danger thickens upon us fast. Is the harbor of Boston secure from the inroads of an enemy? Are the necessary signals to give an instant alarm prepared? Let those whose duty it is to be on the watch-tower, answer! "We are happy to learn that the flames kindled by the enemy on Thursday last so near our doors, have at length aroused our citizens to a sense of the necessity of adopting some precautions of defence, and that preparations are making by the commanding officers of the militia for establishing alarm posts, furnishing guards to be stationed at the different points on the Neck to give the alarm in case of danger; throwing up redoubts at several places, &c.

"Two brass pieces of artillery, 12 pounders, and a quantity of fixed ammunition, have been ordered to Salem by his excellency the governor.

"A detachment of the Salem Light Infantry performed guard duty upon the Neck last night."

Gen. Dearborn has been ordered to take the command of the 1st military district; and Col. Bogardus to replace the general in New York.

America against the World.

There is always a melancholy reflection forced upon us in America, when we hear of any signal advantage obtained over Bonaparte, which is, that if we had kept ourselves out of his policy, and enjoyed our accustomed commerce, how much happier and united would the people have been, and the country have been more wealthy and respectable. As it has turned out, we took the very worst moment to declare war; and as our enemy has been so successful at all points, we cannot soon have a Peace, unless our government should accede to the extravagant demands, which our folly may induce England to make upon us.

"Our affairs with France have received no elucidation," since the declaration of war; and it is far from probable, that they ever will. Quere, what will our government-men, give for claims of indemnity for condemnations under the French Decrees?

BONAPARTE was the only obstacle in the way of a Peace in Europe. MADISON and his party are the only obstacles to a Peace in America.—It would be very magnanimous, if they should follow the example of their file-leader, and abdicate the throne of a country they can no longer properly manage. We have no doubt there are good accommodations for them in the Island of [Bona.]

The Chronicle attributes the late Revolution in France, which they seem willing to allow, is a happy one for the people, to the wisdom and valour of Napoleon. Had such a sentiment come from any other quarter even of the democratic camp, we should have marvelled by what course of reasoning, they could bring this about; but having a perfect understanding of their (the Chronicle's) political jesuitism, we know what they are about. The plain truth lays here—it is to the valour of the Cossacks of Russia, that this revolution has been effected; and not to any attribute of character, belonging to Bonaparte—they have first humbled the tyrant, that would have ruled over France with a rod of iron; and then have shewn the magnanimity of throwing into the lap of France, all the blessings they could possibly ask for; or enjoy.

LATEST FROM FRANCE.

NEW-YORK, JUNE 10.—Arrived, last evening, His Most Christian Majesty's brig Olivier, 45 days from L'Orient, with despatches from the new government of France to the French Minister near Washington, and also despatches for our Government.

The arrival of a French National ship, observes a Correspondent, under the ancient French colors, is a strange but joyous event. It recalls the feelings of our glorious revolution; and for the first time, during a lapse of more than twenty years, enables us to reiterate our regards for the French people through the medium of an heir of that generous King, who so largely contributed to sustain us, in the "times that tried men's souls."

This event is doubly joyous; for it promises Peace to the world. Revolutions which had only anarchy or despotism for their objects, are over. Europe, civilized, improved, enlightened Europe, must have learnt political wisdom from her bloody experience. The ambition of a Tyrant no longer excites her to deeds of blood—The interests and the glory of all her sovereignties invites to peace; and their relative situation with the other nations of the world, not only recommends, but enjoins it. The universal monarchy at which France aimed under Bonaparte, is now limited by the equitable and honest policy of the Representative of Louis the 16th; and the U. States, in spite of all her wayward politics, will be forced into her own interests by the interests of the rest of the world.

The following is copied from a Canadian Handbill, handed to us by a gentleman of this town lately from Fredericton, where he obtained it:—

"It is with extreme regret we have to acquaint the public with the unfortunate result of a gallant enterprise by the boats of our Squadron on Lake Ontario, under the command of Capts. Popham and Spillbury of the Royal Navy, against a flotilla of the enemy's craft laden with naval stores which had got into Sandy Creek on its way from Oswego to Sackett's Harbor. On the morning of the 29th ult. a large boat with two 24-pounders and a 19½ inch cable for the enemy's new ship was captured by our Squadron, having sailed from Oswego the evening before with 15 others. Capts. Popham and Spillbury, with two gun-boats and some smaller craft, having on board about 260 seamen and marines, entered the Creek on the morning of the 31st, where the enemy's flotilla being shortly afterwards discovered—Parties were landed on each side of the Creek and proceeded together with the boats without opposition to within about a quarter of a mile of the enemy, when suddenly, a considerable force, consisting of 150 riflemen, nearly 200 Indians, and a numerous body of militia and cavalry attacked and soon overpowered our small party whose gallant resistance to such numbers proving unavailing, a surrender became indispensable to save our brave men from certain death. Our loss on the occasion was 19 killed and 50 wounded. Mr. Hoan, master's mate of the Montreal, is among the killed, and Lieuts. Cox and Kagh of the marines are severely wounded.—The boats also fell into the hands of the enemy."
