PAMPHLETS will be furnished by the Agent, which will fully explain the system devised by this Company, as an improvement upon the former methods of Life Insurance; whereby it is now adapted to every station in life, and to the means of all persons, whether they be rich and affluent, or possessing the most limited income.

The advantages of being allowed to borrow two-thirds of the amount of premium paid—and that at once or at any future period—of selling the policy to the company, after a series of yearly payments, if the Assured wishes to discontinue the insurance—with other peculiarities of the new principle, commend the superiority of the scheme held out by this Company, to the most attentive consideration and study of all persons, be their means and income however small or otherwise.

The assured, by paying a small extra premium, is entitled to a participation in the Profits of the Society, at each division. Saint John, N. B. March 3, 1842.
