

The Sabbath-School.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON.

First Quarter-Lesson II-January 13.

A SABBATH IN THE LIFE OF JESUS.—Mark 1: 21-34.

GOLDEN TEXT.—As his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the sabbath day.—Luke 4: 16.

JESUS ATTENDS CHURCH ON THE SABBATH.—Ver. 21. And they went into Capernaum: to make it their home, having been driven away from Nazareth. And straightway: the first Sabbath after Jesus came to the city. On the sabbath day, he entered into the synagogue. Synagogue means "a place of assembling together," and corresponds to "church" in our day. There were more than 450 in Jerusalem. Schools and colleges were often connected with them. No priests ministered in them. The services were more like our prayer-meetings, than like Sabbath morning services.

JESUS TEACHES WITH AUTHORITY.—Vers. 21, 22. And taught. It was common to call upon any suitable person to speak in the synagogue. And they were astonished at his doctrine. Both what he taught and the manner and spirit and authority of it. For he taught them as one that had authority. The authority of one who knows. His character, his unselfishness, his holy life, his divine deeds, gave Jesus great personal power in his teaching. The teacher will speak with authority just in so far as the truth is a part of his own being. And not as the scribes. The scribes were the learned men of the Jewish nation.

THE AUTHORITY CONFIRMED BY MIRACLE. CASTING OUT UNCLEAN SPIRITS.—Vers. 23-28. And there was in their synagogue. As part of the audience on that day. A man with an unclean spirit. Or under the influence of an unclean spirit. And he cried out. Made a sudden exclamation during the exercises. Saying, Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jesus of Nazareth? Art thou come to destroy us? They realized that the mission of Jesus was indeed "to destroy the works of the devil." I know thee who thou art. The demon knew something of the works going on in the invisible world. The Holy One of God. Such is Christ, both morally and officially.

And Jesus rebuked him: i. e., the evil spirit. Hold thy peace, and come out of him. Two distinct personalities are here recognized. The demon is treated as a person as much as the man. And when the unclean spirit had torn him. Convulsed him. Cried with a loud voice. The utterance of a cry of pain, of the demon through the man's organs. He came out of him. He was compelled to obey the superior power of Jesus. And they were all amazed... questioned. Each turned to his neighbor, in astonishment, to ask his opinion. And immediately has fame. The report about him and his wonderful works. Throughout all the region round about Galilee.

PETER'S MOTHER-IN-LAW CURED OF A FEVER.—Vers. 29-31. And forthwith. Jesus and his disciples went directly from the synagogue to Peter's house. Entered into the house of Simon and Andrew. It is possible and probable that Peter's house was to Jesus in the north something like what the house of Lazarus at Bethany was in the south. But Simon's wife's mother. This distinctly implies that Peter was married. It seems strange that Romanists can so insist on the celibacy of the clergy, when Peter himself, of whom the Pope is imagined to be the successor, was a married man. Lay sick of a fever. That she was entirely prostrated by it is evident by the language here, "lay sick of a fever." And he came and took her by the hand. Not because it was necessary, but it would make it evident that the miraculous cure proceeded from him. And immediately the fever left her. He willed, and it was done. She ministered unto them. Supplying food and any other needed attentions.

MANY CURED OF MANY DISEASES.—Vers. 32-34. At even, when the sun did set, they brought. The news of the miraculous cures wrought by Jesus attracted multitudes to him, all supplicating for help. All that were diseased, possessed with devils. All the city. The effect was to rouse and gather the entire population of the city, to obtain healing for themselves or friends. At the door of Peter's house. And he healed many. Not that some were left unhealed, but that he healed them all; and those whom he thus healed were many. And suffered (permitted) not the devils to speak: for the same reason that he silenced the demon in the earlier part of this lesson. Because they knew him. Knew that he was the Christ, the Son of God, and were tempted to state the fact, and, perhaps, to plead with him. The Object of These Miracles. They are the natural accompaniments of a divine being. They were proofs of his divine mission. Christ came to undo the evil which Satan had done. Diseases of the body are the result of the diseases of the soul. These miracles were signs, not of power only or chiefly, but of the love, tenderness, pity, which were the true marks of the kingdom of heaven.

PRACTICAL HINTS.

The true way to keep the Sabbath is to follow Christ to church, to keep the Sabbath religiously as well as restfully.

We should have such an experience of religion that we may be able to speak to men with authority of experience and knowledge.

We can trust Christ perfectly because all he says is with the authority of one who knows all things.

All that evil men want is to be let alone, without interference in their evil works. But Christ and his church cannot let them alone.

Jesus is continually casting out evil spirits from men.

It is safe to follow one who has power over the principalities and powers of evil.

Christ's wonderful deeds prove the truth of his wonderful words.

When any one chooses the service of Christ, it is a good thing for himself, his children, his wife, his parents, his servants, and all around him.

The nature of Christ and of Christianity is always to help, to save, to cure, both the body and the soul.

We have the spirit of Christ, and are true Christians, in proportion as we are helping and saving men.

Notice, in the ministry of Jesus, (1) he was active; (2) he went where people were; (3) he went where the busiest people were—those at work; (4) he went where worshipping people were; (5) he went where needy people were.

Our Intellectual Life.

The remarks of Mr. G. Mercer Adam on "The Intellectual Aspect of Political Independence" is worthy of notice. He said:

No one will affirm that the intellectual life of Canada, represented by its literature, bears any reasonable relation to the activity manifested in its material concerns. It may be said and no doubt justly, that in a young community we must not look for that degree of intellectual life which finds expression in the flower of a grand literature, or in the expansive and varied forms of a distinctively original and rich creative work. What we might look for, at least, is that in some regions of intellectual labor—in politics, for instance—Canada should show some well-defined marks, not only of breadth of culture and power of vision, but of high achievement and ardent aspiration in a national course. Do we find this, or is it possible to find this, in a political dependency?

We are still content, almost in every line, to derive our mental culture second-hand. Our intellectual condition has not yet got rid of the marks of a colonial and provincial state. Our copyright laws are not our own; and on every side they handicap literary effort and dwarf publishing enterprises. In treaty-making we are still an infant community, and our deference to Downing Street, if not as slavish as when the country was struggling for the rights of self-government, ill-accords with our present political status and lauded fiscal independence. Content to remain in this half-fledged condition, it is no surprise to find that there has been little blending into one national type all the provincial currents of Canadian thought, and that we are far as yet from securing a distinctly national school of literature. The term nation, indeed, is still strange in the mouth of our public men, and Canadian nationality, instead of being a real and constructive force, is yet only a furtive aspiration. Among French Canadians, where the term is used, it has a restricted, and, to their English-speaking brethren, an alien meaning. It may be, however, that the day will soon come—perhaps in war, or through the ferment of a great political upheaval—when the untoward influences we have referred to shall pass away, and when sectional hostility, racial jealousy and religious cleavage shall give place to national unification, patriotic aspiration and the consolidating forces of an ardent national sentiment. That the day may come quickly must be the desire of every patriot heart. With this desire must be the further one, that Canadian political parties, which have long survived their slender stock of principles, and been living on their past and far from holiest traditions, may rise regenerated and purified, and address themselves to the task of patriotically consolidating the nation and of giving rein to its noblest intellectual and moral energies through a stable national independence.

A Nice Place.

One does not hear much of the Western States in these years as a paradise for settlers. The stories that come from that delectable region now are usually the reverse of pleasant. One day it is a story of dreadful disaster by a blizzard in Minnesota, where the supposed-to-be-prosperous farmers have to hunt hastily for holes in the ground to escape the biting blast. Next, well-authenticated reports of wide-spread destitution in Dakota arrive. The latest attractive story is from Kansas. There are starving settlers there too. Captain E. W. Jenkins, of Mead county, Kansas, a frontier agent of a Grand Army post, is reported in a telegram to the Chicago Herald as saying:

The fact is, there is a very bad state of affairs in our county. It is not to be wondered at as our corn crop was a complete failure. The real estate and loan agents are attempting to suppress the real condition of affairs, but it is a fact that unless relief is furnished there will be great suffering. Many of the farmers are without food for themselves or their horses and they have nothing to buy with. They went there two or three years ago with but very little money, and what little they did have they have been robbed of by the money sharks who infest all the counties. The loan agents have mortgages on their teams, on their waggons and ploughs, on their farms, and on everything that they own, so that it is impossible for them to get away. We have a good county and we are going to stay there, partly because we have to, but mainly because we believe that we can raise good crops in a favorable season. Many of our farmers put in large fields of corn last season and did not get an ear. They must have something to live on, but there is no work to be had for there is no money in the county. We are going through the same experience that eastern Kansas went through in 1860, and we think the time will come when our western counties will be as prosperous as the eastern part of the State. From what I learn the same state of affairs exists in all the counties of southwest Kansas. There are at least several hundred in our county who will be obliged to depend upon the generosity of the eastern half of the State. It will not be necessary to go out of the State for aid, as the citizens of the more prosperous sections of Kansas are responding liberally to our call. The effort to make the best of a bad bargain is plainly evident throughout this recital. But the evidence is plain and need no further comment.—Empire.

A statement that the Empress Frederick intended settling in England has been contradicted. She intends returning to Berlin shortly.
