

FIRST APPLICATION DARKENS THE HAIR

A Simple Remedy Gives Color, Beauty and Strength to the Hair

You don't have to have gray hair or faded hair if you don't want to. Why look old or unattractive? If your hair is gray or faded, you can change it easily, quickly and effectively by using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. Apply a little tonight, and in the morning you will be agreeably surprised at the results from a single application. The gray hairs will be less conspicuous, and after a few more applications will be restored to natural color.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur also quickly removes dandruff, leaves the scalp clean and healthy, and promotes the growth of the hair. It is a clean, wholesome dressing, which may be used at any time with perfect safety.

Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today, and see how quickly it will restore the youthful color and beauty of your hair and forever end the nasty dandruff, hot, itchy scalp and falling hair. All druggists sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if you are not satisfied after fair trial. For sale and recommended by George Y. Diblee, Druggist, opposite City Hall.

KENTUCKY RACING SEASON OPENS

Lexington, Ky., April 27.—Lexington is thronged with trainers, owners and lover of fast horses, all here for the opening this afternoon of the spring meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association. The meeting marks the opening of the racing season in Kentucky. The State Racing Commission has allotted Lexington eleven days, following which will come fifteen days of racing at Louisville and then a twenty-five days' meeting at Latonia.

Pennsylvania Republicans are to meet in State Convention in Harrisburg, Wednesday to nominate candidates for Auditor General, State Treasurer and four Congressmen-at-large and to select twelve delegates to the National Convention. Encouraged by their success in the recent primaries the Roosevelt followers are laying plans so that their control of the convention may be unquestioned, and also with a view of overthrowing Senator Penrose and completely wrecking his political machine.

KRUPP'S CENTENARY FITTINGLY OBSERVED

Berlin, April 27.—Today marked the centennial anniversary of the birth of Alfred Krupp who, while he was not the actual founder of the great Krupp gun works, was the one who gave the works their international character and at the time of his death was Germany's greatest manufacturer. The father of Alfred Krupp was a small blacksmith at Essen. Alfred inherited the family iron forge, employing three men, and which had been in operation since 1810, and he at once set about enlarging the business, but had no money or powerful friends and his progress was slow. He saw, however, the possibilities of the great exposition to open in London in 1851 and decided to take advantage of it. He had made important discoveries in the casting of large masses of Bessemer steel, which had been an insurmountable task previous to his time. The exhibit he sent to the London exposition fairly astonished the world, being a block weighing forty-five German quintals. It at once established his reputation.

The making of heavy ordnance, which has made the name of Krupp famous the world over, was at first not a prominent part of the business. But soon general foundry work and the making of small arms began to take second place at Essen, as heavy steel siege guns and armor plate demanded more and more attention. During the past half century, Krupp ordnance has roared all over the world. The huge guns with which the Germans poured shells into Paris during the siege was made at Essen. Some of the guns that fired Dewey's squadron at Manila came from there. All European nations purchased guns there, France alone excepted, for since the Franco-Prussian war the Krupps have refused to make guns far France.

As the business grew collateral industries developed, and Essen, which had been a tiny village, expanded into a large city. Statistics published for the past year show that the firm employed 70,000 officials, clerks and workmen. The coal and coke consumption for the year amounted to 2,491,406 tons. The number of steam engines in the plant was 569. The firm has its own enormous electrical works and gas works and maintains an independent telegraph and telephone system with upwards of 400 stations. The cast steel works alone require 87 miles of railway, 52 locomotives and about 3,000 cars. In the development of its industry the firm has bought its own coal mines, coke ovens, iron mines, steamships and railroads.

Alfred Krupp died in 1887 and was succeeded in command of the works by his son, Friedrich A. Krupp. Under the latter's management the works continued to prosper and expand. At the time of his death in 1903 he was by far the richest man in Germany. He left the bulk of his wealth, including the great steel and gun works at Essen, the shipyards at Kiel, the gun and armor works at Hadelberg and the coal and iron mines, to his daughter, Bertha, who in 1906 was married to Herr Vor Bohlen und Halbach, who has since taken a prominent part in the management of the great concern. Frau Bertha Von Bohlen und Halbach is popularly called the Empress of Essen—the richest woman in the world—the most powerful.

Though today was the centennial anniversary of the birth of Alfred Krupp, whose discovery laid the foundation for the tremendous business that has since developed under the family name, there was no observance of the day, as it has been decided to combine the celebration with that of the centenary of the Krupp works. The dual celebration will take place at Essen next August and will be attended by the Kaiser at the head of a brilliant galaxy of his fellow-German sovereigns, officers of the army and navy, and civic dignitaries. Distinguished representatives of the iron and steel industry in all parts of the world will be present. Special invitations are to be sent to Andrew Carnegie and Charles M. Schwab, asking them to head the delegation from the United States.

A feature of the festivities will be a series of sham battles. Men armed with weapons of the era of Emperor Maximilian I will make such headway as they can against an army equipped with modern rifles and artillery. The Emperor and other royal guests will be entertained during the celebration at the Villa Hugel, the magnificent country-house of "Frau Bertha," just outside Essen.

OCEAN LIMITED FEATURED IN ENGLISH MAGAZINE

In the April number of the "Boys Own Paper" an English magazine that for many years has been standard literature for countless thousands of English speaking youths all over the world, there is an interesting article on Canadian railways in which mention is made of the Intercolonial Railway's Ocean Limited Express. A half-tone illustration shows this famous train speeding around the shores of the Bedford Basin, and there is a description of its fine equipment the scenery en route and a fitting comment on the average speed attained with the information interesting to British readers, that the Intercolonial Railway is owned and operated by the people of Canada, and operated by the Government. The article is made additionally interesting and instructive by the comparisons made between British and Canadian railways and the differences that exist in traffic conditions.

KINGSLEY

The weather still continues cold and wet. The frost coming out of the ground, makes the roads very bad just at present.

Quite a number of our boys' have gone stream driving. Most of them on the drives on the Nashwaakiss stream. There are three drives' on the Nashwaakiss stream this spring, Delong's Haines' and Currie's. Delong's drive is in, and the other two are coming along quite fast.

The teachers have all returned to their schools after spending their holidays. Miss Lena Currie who has charge of the Kingsley school here, spent her holidays at her home in Sussex. Miss Sadie MacDonald of the school at Royal Road spent her holidays at her home in Welsford, Queens County.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson who was badly hurt a few weeks ago by falling from a sled, is improving.

Miss Violet Ward of Tay Creek is visiting friends at Lower Kingsley. Messrs Wm. Currie and Wm. McNutt of the same place are also visiting them.

Messrs. Samuel and Fraser Currie are kept very busy this spring with their sawing machine. They have finished in this vicinity and have now gone to Nashwaakiss.

A little baby girl arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Anderson on Wednesday April 17th.

Lewis Waller is to make a revival of "Henry V." in New York.

MR. R. L. BORDEN A HERO TO HIS TAILOR

(Toronto Saturday Night)

The unattainable has been attained. We have in our midst a man who is a hero to his valet, no, not exactly his valet, but the next thing to it, his tailor. Our hero is no less a person than the Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, and to prove that he is a hero, we have the attestation of his tailor, given in a recent address published to an American trade periodical.

It seems, according to the testimony of Mr. Jones, the tailor, that the Hon. Mr. Borden was, previous to his attaining the Premiership, what might be called a sloppy dresser. Of course, Mr. Jones does not say sloppy, but he nevertheless infers it when he states that as the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Borden was not so particular as he might have been. However, when he succeeded in making a has been out of Sir Wilfrid, there came a wonderful change for the better, according to Mr. Jones. But perhaps I had best quote Mr. Jones' own words as to this phase of the case. Says Jones:

"The present Premier, the Hon. R. L. Borden, has not been by any means as particular as his opponent in regard to dress, but since he opened his campaign against Sir Wilfrid last summer he has greatly changed, and has now not only changed places in the House of Commons, but (though I, his tailor, state it) he appears on most occasions the better dressed man."

"I had the pleasure of trying on a suit at his home on the day the Laurier government resigned, and his quiet gentlemanly qualities were patent on that occasion, for he was, as always, quiet, and no one would have imagined had they not already known that he had just been elected first citizen of Canada by a landslide of votes. I asked him if he would like three buttons on the front of his morning coat, on the seam, as the roll was fairly low. He asked if it was any use to have the bottom one. I said no, it was only for show. Characteristically Mr. Borden replied: 'Oh, well; cut out the frills.' It is evident that the Hon. R. L. Borden intends to dress according to his office, and may many of his party follow his example."

Now, where is Sam Hughes' tailor and F. D. Monk's tailor and Henri Bourassa's tailor and all the rest of the tailors who cater to our leading political lights. Will they come forward and give an inside opinion of the men whom they dress? And last, but not least, is Sir Wilfrid's Laurier's tailor going to stand under the charge of having his distinguished patron fall away in the department

TORONTO HAS MEANEST MAN

(Toronto Globe)

A recent editorial note in The Globe directed attention to the law of Quebec under which the maintenance of dependent parents is a charge upon their children, and added that if there were children in Ontario who would not help their parents unless compelled to do so this Province should adopt Quebec's plan.

A rather warm letter was received sition to this proposal as unnecessary from a reader of The Globe in opposition and unjust. The writer of that letter may perhaps be interested in learning that The Globe has recently discovered the meanest man in Toronto, and that his conduct has a direct bearing on this question of filial obligation. In the west end live two old people who have fought a losing battle against Giant Circumstance. The husband does what work he can, but it is not steady, and occasionally a charitable organization has to help a little. At a recent meeting it was reported that the old folk had been "under the necessity of doing without milk. Their son, earning $17 a week, had been spending four cents a day to provide his old father and mother with a pint of milk, but for some unexplained reason had cut off his contribution. The charitable society decided to take the place of the thrifty son.

The question that arises is: why should good-hearted men and women who do not like to see old folks of dress just because the party tripped and fell over a reciprocity corpse in September last.
