KAY'S DISMISSAL WAS THE RESULT OF A DEAL

(Moncton Transcript)

Our esteemed local contemporary, the Sackville Post in a recent number takes the ground respecting Mr. Steeves' appointment as police magistrate:

Criticism at least should be with the office has had an opportunity held until the new incumbent of the office has had an opportunity to discharge his duties.

Our contemporary is begging the question. Nobody has attacked Mr. Steeves for that which he would do in his office.

Questions were publicly put to Mr. Steeves before he assumed the office of stipendiary magistrate as to certain cases with which he was connected in the courts before his appointment.

This journal publicly asked Mr. Steeves to explain his connection with these cases and threw its columns open to him for a reply.

The pastor of a city church over his own signature endorsed not only these questions, but added several others, to which in an open letter he invited a reply.

Up to this hour Mr. Steeves has ventured to reply but is content to take the office. He is content by acceptance to be a party to throwing out of employment in his advancing years a public official who has discharged his duty faithfully to the public just as the public demanded it by a vote.

Where this journal quarrels with Mr. Steeves where it quarrels with the gentlemen of the Temperance Federation; where it quarrels with the leaders of the Temperance Party in the County of Westmorland, is that these all have individually or collectively either by action or inaction, either by speech or silence, been parties to the perpetrating or promoting the perpetration of one of the most scandalous misuses of power by a government in this province ever recorded in its history.

The people of Westmorland County and especially the people of Moncton demanded the Scott Act should be enforced. Deputations and individuals that waited upon the City Council and the Police Commission urging the enforcement of the Scott Act.

The police magistrate took these good people at their word. He enforced the Act according to an amendment passed by the senate, whereby it was discretionary with him whether he should imprison or fine in a Scott Act first offence. He imprisoned and the leader of the temperance party applauded his action.

The effect of substituting imprisonment for fines was to arouse an organized hostility against the Police Magistrate.

Then the operation of the Scott Act was extended so as to deal with the wholesale suppliers of liquor in the City of St. John, and this caused consternation in the heart of "the Trade." It happened that some of these wholesale liquor distributors are friends of the provincial government and wires were also pulled from the City of St. John to remove the Police Magistrate in the City of Moncton.

The provincial government, actually obstructs the enforcement of the Scott Act in the City of Moncton, so as to please its political supporters in St. John and Moncton, who are with liquor trade. We are not only subjected to Moncton rum rule in the City of Moncton, but provincial Government to having our Police Magistrate removed from office to please its rum supporters in the City of St. John, whose illegal trade with this city was threatened.

By-and-bye a provincial election was held, the Tory candidate in this city, was elected after a contest, at the close of which scenes of drunkenness were witnessed at the foot of the stairs of the Conservative Club Rooms, and the next morning the floors of the same were seen with many empty flasks lying thereon; cases of "square face" were kept for distribution in the Tory interest through the contest; and the Tory candidacy was supported by the liquor sellers or law violators.

The friends of this candidate entered into a deal before polling day with the liquor sellers and as an indirect result of that deal, the Attorney General of this province comes to this city holds an enquiry. An enquiry into what? Into the violation of the liquor law? To try the law breakers? Not at all.

He tries the magistrate for the crime of, carrying out the laws of the country. He acts under an information promoted by the law-breakers; signed among others; by seventy-five persons who had then convicted in the police court; and he hears the testimony of men who are convicted law-breakers to avoid the penalties of the law.

Political friends of the Attorney-General had prejudged that case before he entered upon it. The police magistrates of this city was put out of office as the result of a political pact entered into. The Attorney-General of the Province came to this city and he and the prosecuting counsel stayed at the hotel of the man who was the chief promoter in instigating this prosecution.

Even before the very court was held, it is currently stated on the streets of Moncton that the Attorney-General of this province was soliciting suggestions as to Mr. Kays successor. The Attorney-General may have an explanation of that action but no explanation will ever remove the suspicion from the minds of fair minded men and women that the case was prejudged.

One of the grievances circulated by the liquor sellers themselves against Mr. Kay respecting a certain case where a sentence of imprisonment had been passed against a friend of the government's. They held that while an ordinary liquor seller was imprisoned, this offender on the second sentence escaped punishment. This journal is not interested in seeing the offender go to jail, but it is interested in seeing that an innocent judge is not unjustly condemned, because an accused whom he sentenced to jail did not go.

Did or did not the attorney general of this province communicate with an official in this city, asking virtually as a personal favor that the proceeding aimed in the Supreme Court at carrying out this very sentence should not be enforced.

If the attorney general of this province did that by virtue of his position, seeking indirectly to exercise pardoning power, how could he have the effrontery to hold his royal commission inquiry in the City of Moncton, sit up there and prate about the chief of police not enforcing a fine if the person fined would tell where the liquor was obtained.

Anyone would think that butter would not melt in the mouth of the attorney general of this province, and yet that same attorney general had sought by a telegram to interfere with the enforcement of justice and he did so for another reason than promoting public interest in the administration of justice.

The administration of justice in the Province of New Brunswick is in many cases, outside altogether of the enforcement of the Scott Act, far from being aimed at vindicating the public interest.

It is time for the newspapers of this province to have the courage and the pluck to stand up and face the so-called administration of justice in New Brunswick and demand that its channels shall be unpoluted.

When a clergyman of a large church, over his own signature, asks questions official in the administration of justice and virtually of the attorney general of this province and otherwise asks questions of the premier of this province, and when from these no satisfactory answer can be obtained, but a wall of stolid and somewhat brazen indifference is presented it is time to speak out. This question will not down.

When the machinery of a royal commission is virtually employed in this province to help the law breakers against the law administrators, it is time to cry a halt.

A LINCOLN STORY.

(From The New York Post.)

A veteran Philadelphia soldier apropos of Lincoln's birthday, said at the Union League:

"Lincoln used to joke me about my superstitions. I carried, you know, a rabbit's foot for luck.

"Look at this," he said one day, and he took from his pocket a potato.

"What's that for?" I asked.

"For rheumatism," he replied. 'I haven't had a twinge of rheumatism since I began carrying it.'

"Wonderful!"

"Yes," said Lincoln, with his whimsical smile, 'and still more wonderful is the fact that it's retroactive too; for I never had a twinge before I began carrying it, either.'"

Marie Tempest is in London with a new play called "Art and Opportunity."
