SCHOOL GARDENING DISCUSSED AT INSTITUTE

and attractive, and the child should be surrounded by beautiful things. Trained in the habit of seeing beauty and knowing it, he will come instinctively to hate ugliness in the house, in its surroundings and in the street.

8. To Promote the Qualities that Make for Good Citizenship, Such as the Responsibility of Ownership, Respect for Public Property, Consideration for the Rights of Others and the Principle of Co-operation in Seeking the Common Good.—Dr. B. T. Galloway says of the Washington, D.C., gardens: "Civic pride is taught and respect for the property and rights of others is learned. While stealing and vandalism were weekly occurrences the first summer the gardens were in existence, not one case was reported during the following year." The work of this nature that has attracted the most attention in the United States is that of Mrs. Henry Parsons in New York City. In 1902 she began the work of transforming a city desert of about seven acres, lying in the midst of one of the worst tenement districts of the city. In transforming this city waste she hoped to transform the lives of the children of the district. From the day the work began the interest was intense. A three-foot fence, on which adults could lean comfortably and see everything happenings in the garden, satisfied their curiosity, that strongest of human traits! The work of Mrs. Parsons in its results is almost beyond belief. The dumping-ground of material refuse and the dumping-ground of refuse humanity became on the one hand a garden, and on the other an uplifted community.

9. To Promote a Spirit of Independent Investigation in Other Branches of Study and to Afford a Concrete Basis for Much of the School Work in Arithmetic, Language, Drawing and Other Subjects.—The extent to which the school garden work may be correlated with the ordinary school studies depends largely on the resourcefulness of the teacher. He should take advantage of the garden and of the garden exercises in adding freshness and in giving a practical bearing to subjects which are uninteresting to children. Garden work and garden observation affords interesting subject matter for exercises in drawing and composition. Many practical problems in arithmetic are suggested and even demanded in connection with garden work. The keeping of garden accounts may be made a valuable training in book-keeping and in commercial arithmetic. All nature study work should be in intimate touch with the garden. The greatest success of nature study as a school subject has been where the child's activities have been enlisted in the real business of life. The business of rearing plants involves more of nature than almost any activity in which the child may participate. The garden should be made the centre of as large and varied a circle of activities as possible. The teacher is thus able to make much of the formal work of the school seem worth while to the child, thereby increasing the efficiency of all the work of the school. This gain in efficiency and interest in itself is sufficient to meet objections as to lack of time, crowded curriculum, etc. The garden fulfils the highest function of nature study by being a centre of activity, whereby children may "learn those things of nature that are best worth knowing to the end of making life better worth living."

10. It Brings the Life and Interests of the School More Closely Into Touch with the Home Life of the Pupils.—To do its best work a school, in all its activities, should be in intimate touch with the homes of the pupils. The interest of the parents in at least one phase of the school work—the children—the garden work—will be immediate and certain, because here is something which is sure to be inspected and understood. This awakened interest, on the part of the parents, in the school work, will naturally extend to the other subjects, and all for the betterment of school interests. The garden is a pleasant avenue of communication between the school and the home, relating them in a new and living way and thereby strengthening the public interest in the school as a national institution.

Some one has said that "noble dreams are great realities"—this in praise of unrealized dreams. In the fine garden, at the school or at the home, is the noble dream and the great reality.

AIRSHIP STARTS ON AN OVERSEAS TRIP

(Canadian Press.)

Hamburg, Germany, June 27.—The Zeppelin dirigible airship Victoria Luise started this morning on a ten-hour overseas trip with twelve passengers on board. The monster airship flew directly out from this city over the North Sea. It is stated in some quarters that the purpose of the trip is to demonstrate if it should prove successful that an airship raid on England is possible, as the vessel's speed of 45 miles an hour gives a radius as wide as London from Hamburg and as far as Bristol from Emden. The Victoria Luise passed over the Island of Heloland at a quarter past nine.

FRENCH SAILORS INJURED

Toulon, June 27.—Five of the twenty-three seamen injured yesterday on the French Armored Cruiser, Jules Michelet off Hyeres by the premature explosion of a six inch gun are dying. The official enquiry into the cause of the accident shows that there were two explosions. By the first, thirteen men were hurled to the deck and frightfully burned. As soon as the victims had been conveyed ashore the firing was courageously resumed with the same gun under the direction of Admiral Bertrand Sourreux, commander of the training ship division in the Mediterranean. Once the charge ignited and ten more officers and men were injured.

ROYAL VISIT TO WALES

London, June 26.—The long anticipated visit of their Majesties to the west of England and Wales was inaugurated today, when the King officiated at the laying of the foundation stone for the national museum of Wales at Cardiff. On Friday the King and Queen will proceed to Bristol for the formal opening of the King Edward memorial infirmary in that city.

Pres Ward of the Boston Nationals has secured Macanville the New Bedford infielder who has been doing such brilliant fielding this season. As a part of the deal New Bedford will get pitcher Hogg of the Boston Club, if Hogg agrees to go to New Bedford, which he said last night he did not intend to do.

Makes Hair Grow

Ryan has an invigorator that will grow hair or money back.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

If your hair is getting thin, gradually falling out, it cannot be long before the spot appears. The greatest remedy to stop the hair from falling is SALVIA, the Great American Hair Grower, first discovered in England. SALVIA furnishes nourishment to the hair roots and acts so quickly that people are amazed.

And remember, it destroys the Dandruff germ, the little pest that saps the life that should go to the hair from the roots.

SALVIA is sold by Ryan under a positive guarantee to cure Dandruff, stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp in ten days, or money back. A large bottle costs 50c. The word "SALVIA" (Latin for sage) is on every bottle.

RAISE MONUMENT TO HAMPDEN

London, June 27.—A monument to John Hampden, who led the parliamentary forces against Charles I. was dedicated today in the Vale of Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire, of which county he was a native. This is the second imposing memorial set up in honor of Hampden's memory. Some fifty years ago a column was erected on the field of Chalgrove, in Oxfordshire, where Hampden was mortally wounded in a skirmish with Prince Rupert's cavalry.

There is a big demand for tickets for the home-coming of the Red Sox who will play two games on Friday and again on Saturday against the Yankees. Treas McRoy says that the demand equals that for the opening day.
