Bishop Kelley is a native of Petersburg, Va., and was ordained to the priesthood in 1873. He has been at the head of the Savannah diocese for twelve years.

LITTLE HOPE FOR PEACE

London, Oct. 12--Only a dim most optimistic now look for a peaceful outcome of the Balkan Crisis. From all the capitals comes news of increasing tension and continued preparations for war and this has spread now to Vienna and Budapest. It is true that reassuring statements have been issued from several quarters but these without doubt have the object of stemming the panic of selling on the Bourses.

The heavy crop of grapes in Ontario and the resulting low prices have brought on a "grape war" among local grocers and some remarkably low prices are quoted. It is said one grocer imported a carload of grapes with the intention of wholesaling them but was met with similar action on the part of others.

SEVERE FIGHTING IN THE MONTENEGRO FRONTIER

Turkish Troops are Offering a Stubborn Resistance to the Montengrins--Both Armies Said to Have Lost Heavily--The Powers are Still Hopeful That a General Outbreak May be Averted--Montenegro Still Playing a Lone Hand

London, Oct. 12--Mary Edith Durham, a well known English painter and writer who has been acting as nurse for the Balkans sends to the Daily Chronicle a dispatch describing the fighting on the Montenegrin Frontier.

Her despatch dated at Podgoritz at 8.20 a. m. yesterday says:-- "Owing to the severe censorship I have not until now been able to send you the details of yesterday's fighting when the Montenegrins carried all before them and forced the Turks to retreat."

"All the special foreign correspondents except myself were detained in Cetinje but I was allowed to go practically where I liked. Before 7 o'clock Thursday morning, I was out in the big plain at the foot of the mountain where lies that invisible line, the frontier. In front of me towered the great mountains, stronghold of Detchitch, the most formidable Turkish fort on the frontier."

"Shortly before 9 o'clock the firing ceased, quite suddenly and there was silence. A heavy cloud hovered over as if the mountain was on fire and shrouded it completely from view."

London, Oct. 11--No news was received in London tonight concerning the operations of the Montenegrins in the direction of the Turkish town of Scutari or of hostilities in any of the other Balkan frontiers. The legations of the Balkan states in London were without any advice either of a military or diplomatic nature.

The continued delay by the states other than Montenegro in declaring war has revived hopes in diplomatic quarters here that a general war in the Balkans may yet be averted.

It is said that a much more hopeful view of the situation prevailed in the British foreign office tonight. No tangible reason was assigned for this optimism but it seems to have been based on the idea that the warnings of the powers may have caused the Balkan states to pause. The Bulgarian government today denied Turkish reports of fights on the Turco-Bulgarian frontier.

AUSTRIA PREPARING FOR TROUBLE

Vienna, Oct. 11--That Austro-Hungary is making preparations in anticipation that the Balkan conflagration may involve the larger powers was indicated today by the reply of the minister of finance in the Hungarian delegation to a criticism by a Socialist that the extraordinary military credits requested by the government implied warlike designs.

While protesting that the government's policy was a most pacific one, the minister of finance said:

"We are of the opinion that international deliberations regarding the consequences of a war in the Balkans may ensue, and in that case we probably would make our voice heard more successfully if we were well armed."

GIANTS AND RED SOX ARE PLAYING AT BOSTON TODAY

Boston, Oct. 12--The New York Giants and the Red Sox, the contending clubs in the world series for the 1912 championship, jumped over night from New York to Boston, into weather conditions which promised to allow the fifth game of the series to be played this afternoon. There was a little uncertainty about the weather due largely to a lightly clouded condition but indications were that the forecasters' predictions of only light showers, is any, would be fulfilled.

The clouds however, threatened to darken the sky and postponement on account of darkness was considered more likely than postponement because of rain. With the Red Sox one game nearer the championship than the Giants, enthusiasm in Boston ran high and a crowd greater than that which has attended either of the two previous games played here was in prospect. The beginning of a long line of bleacher fans was formed at the gates last night. A heavy and chilling Scotch mist fell until dawn but most of the fans kept their places, and were joined by others at sunrise.

The line numbered thousands within a few hours. On all sides the worlds championship series continue to be the subject of discussion. The probable batteries for today's game came to the front and it was almost general opinion that Christy Mathewson would be McGraw's pitching choice with Meyers catching and that Ray Collins, south paw deliverer would again issue from the Boston pitching box with Carrigan on the receiving end.

These were the batteries which started the eleven inning tie game of Wednesday, Whetzel Collins who was taken from the Red Sox box in the eighth inning that day would be able to last through a contest today, and whether Mathewson, whose pitching knowledge gained in many campaigns enabled him to finish the game although batted hard, would be able to come through were subjects of discussion among the fans. Both Manager Stahl and McGraw maintained their opinion like attitude regarding their choice of batteries, and the matter was still uncertain until the respective batting (Continued on page four)

Well Known Quebec People Principals in a mixed Marriage

The Bride a Roman Catholic and the Bridegroom a Protestant--Were Married at Ancient Capital

Montreal, Q., Oct. 12--Another case in which cupid has set aside man made church madelaws, as well as parental objections came to light here today. It is another case of mixed marriages.

The principals came from prominent families, and the wedding promises to cause as much stir when the facts become known, as the famous Shaughnessy wedding a year ago.

The heroine is Miss Clara Delisle, daughter of Mrs. Nolan Delisle, of 819 University St., Montreal, one of one of the oldest and best known families in Montreal. The hero is Mr. Geo. Rowley, of Lake Edward, part proprietor of the well known big fish and game preserves there.

Miss Delisle is a Catholic in religion, and Mr. Rowley is a Protestant. Mrs. Delisle objected to her daughter's determination to marry Mr. Rowley on account of the question of religion. When the daughter announced her intention to marrying Mr. Rowley in spite of all objections and prepared to go to Quebec to meet him there, and have the ceremony performed, Mrs. Delisle gave in and accompanied her daughter to the Ancient City where the wedding took place. They went to Quebec according to the statement of Mrs. Delisle this morning, because of the diocese of Montreal are forbidden by Arch-Bishop Bruchesi to perform mixed marriages.

BALD JACK ROSE ON STAND TODAY

Chief Informer Against Becker gives Important Evidence

Swore That He Collected Money for the Police Lieutenant From Gambling House Keepers

New York, Oct. 12--Gambler Jack Rose, was the principal witness this morning in the trial of police Lieut. Chas. Becker, charged with the murder of Herman Rosenthal. The trial went on as usual today justice Goff having expedited the selection of the jury, is using every means to carry the trial through with dispatch.

"Bald Jack" Rose, chief informer against Becker, was called to the witness chair, just before adjournment was taken last night and there was a craning of necks in the crowded court room as the Bald headed Gambler began to testify. Rose said he had known Rosenthal for twenty years, and Becker for several. The witness did not look at Becker as he gave his testimony, the former police officer watched Rose intently. Rose spoke in deliberate tones.

"Did you ever have business relations with Becker?" he was asked.

"Yes, I collected money for him."

"I object as incompetent," shouted J. F. McIntyre, counsel for the defence.

Over-ruled ordered the court.

Rose then told of meeting Rosenthal and Becker in the Elks club at a New Year's celebration. Mrs. Rosenthal was present. Becker said to Mrs. Rosenthal according to the witness, "Now don't worry about Herman and I have a thorough understanding. He is my friend and I am his friend, and his troubles are all over."

Rose said he met Becker again at his house and at the Union Square Hotel when Becker told him, he said, the details of the alleged partnership in the operation of a gambling house between Becker and Rosenthal.

"Becker," continued Rose, "said Herman had made a proposition to him that he go into partnership, with Rosenthal in running a gambling house, and had asked him to invest five thousand dollars in it. I said no one ever made anything in the gambling business with Rosenthal."

"Becker, however," continued the witness, "did not agree and made a proposition to allow Rose to take a twenty-five per cent share in the business of the proposed establishment. Becker took a $2,500 chattel mortgage on Rosenthal's property and arranged for a dummy to hold the mortgage."

"Becker asked me," the witness went on, "if I would take charge and I said I would."

The witness spoke slowly, choosing his words with evident care. He told of a conference with Becker in which the police Lieut. enquired what the profits of the gambling house were.
