FINDING OF WATCH MAY EFFECT A BIG BEQUEST

London, Dec. 15—New developments are cropping out every day in the mystery of the death, presumably by drowning at Newquay on the Cornwall Coast of Mrs. Sydney Nowill, wife of a rich Sheffield manufacturer, and the suicide of James Arthur Delay, a wealthy lawyer friend of the family, who, up to yesterday, was supposed to be a bachelor and who by an unsigned codicil to his will bequeathed $150,000 to Mrs. Nowill.

The latest development takes the form of an offer of $25 reward for the recovery of a gold wrist watch which was worn by Mrs. Nowill. The offer of a reward specially stipulates that "in no case must the watch be tampered with," which suggests the idea that importance is attached to ascertaining the time at which it stopped. The time of Mrs. Nowill's death has an important bearing on the disposal of the $150,000 which was left to her by Delay, for if it proved that Mrs. Nowill died before the decedent, the money will revert to the resident estate.

Mr. Nowill, the husband of the dead woman, has all along declared his complete belief in the innocence of his wife's relations with Delay, now says that under no circumstances will he accept the legacy. It is presumed that Delay's lawyers are anxious to prove that he outlived Mrs. Nowill and that therefore the bequest is null and void.

Mrs. Nowill disappeared from the fashionable Atlantic hotel three weeks ago and Delay's body was found in his room at the hotel the next day. When the woman disappeared Delay led the searchers along the Cornwall coast on Saturday afternoon and at one time appeared to have become demented. He made a violent attack on the coast guard lieutenant, who did not appear to him to have made sufficient effort to find the body. Mrs. Nowill's body was recovered nine days after she disappeared.

Delay was a Singapore lawyer who has amassed quite a large sum by his practice and whose will, which was probated yesterday, showed that he left $353,445. The great surprise came when it was found by a provision of the will that Delay had a wife living to whom he left $50,000 in trust. Her name was Mary Leslie Young, and when Delay married her in the New York City Hall on Nov. 1, 1911, she stated that her first husband, Edward Young, was dead. Mrs. Delay is now living in London, in an inexpensive department in Brompton and appears to be completely prostrated over the tragic affair. She is an English woman.

The residue of the estate after the bequests to Mrs. Delay and Mrs. Nowill are paid is to go to Delay's two sisters, Louisa and Emily, in equal shares. Neither of these women nor any other member of the family knew that Delay had a wife. In the codicil bequeathing $150,000 to Mrs. Nowill, which was written at a bank in Fall River in September of this year Delay said: "I beg her to accept this sum as a slight token of the high admiration, esteem and gratitude for the friendship she has shown me during the last eighteen months."

MARRIED IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 7—Arthur Delay and Mrs. Mary Leslie Young went to the marriage license bureau in the city hall on Nov. 1, 1911, and got a license to marry. They were married the same day by Ald. James Smith, who is known as the "marrying alderman."

Delay said he was a solicitor, was 46 years old and had never been married before. Mrs. Young said she was born in England and was a daughter of John Stowe and Lillian Compton. Mrs. Young said it was her second marriage, her first husband being dead.

The couple were unaccompanied by witnesses and William Long, a clerk in the marriage license bureau, acted as witness. Both Ald. Smith and Long said yesterday that they had no recollection of the couple.

Delay said he lived at 172 West Seventy-second street which is now an apartment house. At the time Delay was married the building was being remodeled.

W. Cogswell Rogers, who manages a boarding house at 174 West Seventy-second street, said that the couple lived with him a short time, but he knew nothing about them.

TORY M. P.'S HAVE REAL GERMAN SCARE

Ottawa, Dec. 18—"The government is suffering from a real German scare this time," quoth Hon. Geo. P. Graham, amid a militant roar of Liberal cheers and laughter, when at a quarter past eight o'clock last night, the Speaker directed a second ringing of the call bell for government members. Mr. W. M. German, who had used the few moments allotted him before six o'clock, in ridiculing the defence of the Borden naval policy which the government had thus far attempted, was in his seat waiting to proceed. Fifteen minutes had elapsed and not a minister was in the House and but four of the ministerial supporters. A second ringing of the bell was ordered amid continued Liberal hilarity. Mr. McCoig called for cheers for Sir Wilfrid and the Liberal desks rattled and rattled again. It was a confident, militant, happy opposition which made the most of the situation.

Meanwhile, Chief Whip Stanfield of the Conservatives, hurried around the corridors anxiously drumming up the Conservative members. It was just twenty minutes past eight when Hon. Mr. Cochrane and Mr. Stanfield entered the chamber together, and were given an ironical reception by the well-filled Liberal benches. It was a little incident but it served to emphasize the significant situation which had developed during the past few days.

SIXTY THOUSAND TONS OF BUTTER IN STORAGE

Chicago, Dec. 17—Sixty thousand tons of butter said to amount in the present state of the market to an absolute corner, is held in cold storage according to facts gathered by a corps of twenty government secret service operatives in connection with the suit yesterday in the United States court to dissolve the alleged butter trust.

Profits amounting to between $11,000,000 and $17,550,000 may be realized from the store of butter, which is enough to supply the entire consumption of the nation for several weeks. It has not been stated that the men named in the government suit are responsible for the alleged corner and are to share in the millions that may be realized from the gradual sale of the cornered butter, but it is asserted that an added price of from 19 to 15 cents a pound will be exacted on the store butter as it is doled out in small enough quantities not to relieve the tightness of the market.

HEARST BEFORE
SENATE COMMITTEE

Washington, Dec. 17—Wm. R. Hearst who published the now famous "Archbold letters" gave the senate campaign funds committee copies of all letters in his possession indicating a "connection" between John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil Co. and legislative and campaign activities. Mr. Hearst appeared as the first two witnesses at the opening of the campaign investigation which had come to a halt before election. The New York publisher told the committee at the outset that he had some other letters that had not been made public. He first produced the photographic copies of the letters already published and identified them for the convenience of the committee. Chairman Clapp asked Mr. Hearst if he ever saw the originals of the letters published in his magazines, he said he was not certain but he believed he had only seen the photographic facsimile copies.

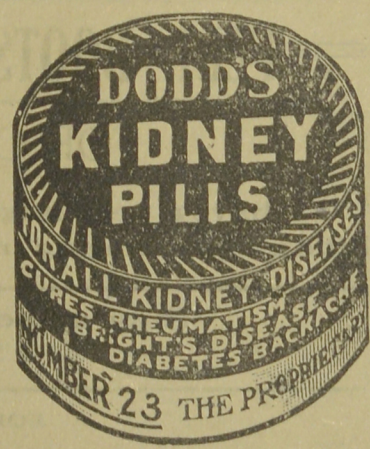

"Of whom did you get them?" asked Senator Clapp.

"I am anxious," he began, "to testify very fully to everything that I am personally concerned in and everything of interest to this enquiry. Do you feel that this is essential to the inquiry?"

Senator Clapp replied that the authenticity of some of the letters had been questioned.

A number of the committee had insisted on the information. Mr. Hearst responded that he got the copies of John Eddy, of London, author of four of the articles published in a magazine. He testified he did not know of whom Eddy procured the letters.

Ad. Wolgast wants $3,000 for his end, to box Frankie Burns and Burns wants the same amount. California promoters cannot see their way clear to put up so much money for a clash between the two boys.
