STRAY TOPICS FROM LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

New York, July 27—It did not seem cause a flutter on Wall street the other day when it became known that Mrs. Hetty Green, now in her seventy-eighth year, had just been baptised in the Episcopal faith. Wall Street is rather callous in spiritual matters and received the news with- out comment beyond what may figuratively be called a shrugging of the shoulder. According to reports Mrs. Green did not embrace the faith with fanatical enthusiasm. For five or six years the rector of Holy Cross Episcopal Church in Jersey City had been trying to get Mrs. Green attuned to a spiritual life, before he succeeded in obtaining her consent to her baptism. Whether she finally consented because she had actually become "attuned," or because she did not wish to disappoint the rector, who is a distant relative of her's, is not known. At all events she allowed herself to be baptised. It is characteristic of the old lady that the rector had to call at her business office in New York and pry her away from her business before she allowed herself to be taken to the church in Jersey City in an automobile to be baptised.

Members of the Bull family held a well attended meeting in the Orange Hall at Hamptonburg, Orange county, New York, the other day and arranged plans for celebrating the two hundredth anniversary of the advent of Sarah Wells in what is now Orange county. Sarah Wells, was the first white woman to set foot in that county. As she afterwards became the wife of William Bull, the first of that name to settle in this country, she became the maternal ancestor of all those bearing the name of Bull. According to history Sarah Wells was an orphan who lived with her adopted parents Christopher Denn and his wife on Long Island. Denn received a grant of land in Orange County and decided to settle upon it. As Denn and his wife were prevented by circumstances just then to start for the new locality, they sent their adopted daughter, Sarah Wells, who was then only sixteen years old, with a number of Indians to make the settlement. They sailed up the Hudson landing near the present site of Newburg, and proceeded over land to a spot near Hamptonburg, where they made their camp.

The cornerstones of the Johnson Female Trades School, the first institution of this kind in the United States was laid at Winfield Station L. I. the other day. The school which is promoted by the Master Builders' Association of the City of New York has been named in honor of Fire Commissioner Johnson. The building which is to cost $50,000, will be ready for occupancy by October 15. At present more than ninety pupils have been enrolled. The young women will be instructed in brick-laying, plastering, carpentry work, plumbing, steam heating, and steel work. They will also be taught how to estimate the cost of buildings. The course will cover two years, and the cost of tuition will be $300 a year. The equipment to be ready in October will accommodate two hundred students.

The Rev. W. Wilkinson, rector of St. John's Chapel in Varick Street, and known as the "Bishop of Wall Street," because he preaches in the streets of the financial district, has become a convert to free trade. Formerly he was an ardent advocate of a protective tariff, but a recent experience caused him to change his views. A few days ago he returned from Europe, where he had spent three months traveling. Upon his arrival in port the custom house authorities held up some trinkets and other articles which he had purchased in Europe for his own use or for presents and demanded the payment of duties aggregating $37. The minister paid the duty, but he is no longer a protectionist.

The New Era Club, and organization of working boys on the lower East side, has purchased for itself a home on East Broadway. This fact is interesting because the club, the 250 members of which are nearly all poor Jewish boys who have to work hard to earn their small wages, owes its success to the push and energy of its members. The club was founded about twelve years ago as a social and educational center for the poor Jewish working boys of the lower East side. Not until last year did the club become self supporting. Formerly the small annual deficit was covered by several wealthy Jewish philanthropists.

NOTICE

To all who it may concern:—The undersigned is the only person authorized to contract accounts on behalf of the Old Home Week Committee and those giving credit for this purpose to any other person or persons will not be paid for same.

G. M. McDade,
Secretary.

Recognizing the great and beneficial influence of the club, which offers to the boys of that locality much needed social and educational advantages, the patrons of the club willingly contributed funds to enable the boys to purchase a home for their club.

The bulletin issued by the Board of Health of New York the other day contains some interesting figures. The Health Department was established in 1866, when the mortality in the city for each 1,000 of the population was 36.31. The death rate in 1911, the last year for which statistics are available, was 15.13. The statistics for the first six months of the present year indicate that the death rate for 1912 will be even lower than that for 1911. Without exception the diseases in which a reduction of mortality has been effected belong to the class of infectious diseases and it is quite clear that the reduction of the death rate is due entirely to the efforts of the Health Department in bringing about better sanitation and a more thorough inspection of the city's food supply.

Owing to the exorbitant demands made by the Musicians' Union of this city, which is backed by the American Federation of Musicians, the managers of the New York theatres have decided the discontinuance of the use of orchestras in all theatres devoted to the legitimate drama. Next year ten of the theatres of this city will be without orchestras and others will probably follow this example. The musical comedy and vaudeville houses, of course, will be compelled to continue the use of orchestras and it is estimated that the cost for orchestra service under the new scale will be increased by $2000 to $5,000 for each one of the houses. The new scale which the union is determined to enforce places a tremendous burden upon traveling musical companies carrying their own orchestras. Under the old scale the cost would be about $75,000, a difference of $58,200 a year for each company. It is believed that there are few companies which could afford the additional expense.
