Inside the glass partition Boyd heard a woman's voice and Hillard's laughter. He took some comfort in the thought that the banker was in good humor at least; but, being too nervous to sit still, he stood at the window, gazing with vacant eyes at the busy street crowds. Facing him across the way was a bulletin in front of a news paper office, and after a time he noted idly among its various items of information the announcement that the mail steamer Queen had arrived at midnight from Slagway. He wondered why Cherry had not written. Surely she must be anxious to know his progress. He should have advised her of his whereabouts.

The door to Hillard's office opened, and he heard the rustle of a woman's dress, then his own name spoken, "Come in, Mr. Emerson."

His attention centered on the approaching interview, he did not glance toward the departing visitor until she stopped suddenly at the outer door and came straight toward him with outstretched hands.

"Boyd!" He checked himself and turned to face Cherry Malotte.

"Why, Cherry," he ejaculated, "what in the world?" He took her two hands in his, and she laughed up into his face. "In the name of heaven, where did you come from?"

"I arrived last night on the Queen," she said. "Oh, I'm glad to see you!"

"But what brings you to the States? I thought you were in Kal?"

"Sh-h!" She laid a finger on her lips, with a glance over her shoulder to the inner office. "I'll tell you about it later."

"Mr. Hillard will see you now, sir," the attendant announced to Emerson.

"I must talk to you right away!" Boyd exclaimed hurriedly. "I won't be long. Can you wait?"

"Certainly; I'll wait right here, only hurry, hurry!"

The pleasure of seeing her was so genuine that he squeezed her hands heartily and entered Hillard's sanctum with a smile on his lips.

Soon he returned. The smile gone from his face, Hillard had now refused to make the loan of $100,000 required for the enterprise. He told Cherry. "We must have the money or we are ruined," said the girl.

"Yes," answered Boyd wearily. He made an engagement to meet Cherry later and went to visit three other bankers, but they all turned his proposition down.

CHAPTER IX.

CHERRY the next day demonstrated her power over all sorts and conditions of men by reducing the blasé young clubman to a state of grinning admiration. "Fingerless" Fraser alone had been missing from the coterie. He had discovered them from a distance, to be sure, and came over to exchange greetings with Cherry, but the disastrous result of the fellow's garrulity was still so fresh in Boyd's mind that he could not invite him to join them, and Fraser, with singular modesty, had quickly withdrawn, to wander lonesomely for awhile till sheer ennui drove him to bed. His dejection awakened little sympathy in Boyd, who felt happier for the removal of his irritating presence.

In the morning Boyd was brought sharply back to a realization of his difficult position by a letter from Mildred Wayland.

"Father and I had another scene over you," wrote Mildred. "It was the first quarrel we ever had, and I'm half sick as a result. I simply can't bear that sort of thing, and we have agreed to drop the subject. What roused him to such a sudden fury I'm sure I don't know."

Boyd knew, however, and the knowledge did not add to his comfort.

It seemed, indeed, as if the trust's enmity had marked him in the eyes of the whole financial world. He was again denied assistance at the banks, and this time in a manner to show him the futility of further effort.

In his perplexity he turned naturally to Cherry, who listened to his tale of repeated failure with furrowed brows, pondering the matter as seriously as if the responsibility had been her own. "The battle has begun sooner than I expected," she said at length. "I never dreamed they could fix the banks so quickly."

"Somehow I can't believe this is the work of the trust people. I don't see how they could accomplish so much in so short a time. Why, it came like a thunderclap."

"I hope I am wrong," she answered, but something unexpected must have happened to change Mr. Hillard's attitude. What could it be except pressure from higher sources?"

"Has he dropped any hint before you?"

"Not a hint. He wouldn't let go of anything. Why, he is too close fist to drop his bait."

"Will you take dinner with me this evening so that we can talk over any further developments?"

"I am to dine with Mr. Hillard," said the girl.

FIVE DOCTORS GAVE UP ALL HOPE

Said she Would Die of Kidney Trouble

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" CURED HER

MOUNTAIN, ONT., Dec. 14th, 1910.

"For six years, I suffered from dreadful Kidney Disease. My legs and lower part of my body were fearfully swollen, and the pain was awful. My people thought sometimes I was dead, as I would faint from the agony. Five different doctors attended me, and all said it was kidney trouble and gave me no hope of getting well. A kind neighbor told me to try 'Fruit-a-tives' and mentioned the case of Mrs. Fenwick, who was cured by them."

I took 'Fruit-a-tives'—and in a short time, I began to feel better, the swelling went down, the pain was easier, and then 'Fruit-a-tives' entirely cured me. All my friends look upon my recovery as a miracle, and I am unable to praise 'Fruit-a-tives' enough."

"Fruit-a-tives" is the most scientific remedy ever discovered for Irritation or Congestion of the Kidneys, frequent Pain In The Back, and Swollen Limbs. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

EXPECT CAPT. SCOTT TO REACH THE POLE

London, April 2.—Though the latest word from the British Ant-Arctic expedition under command of Captain Robert F. Scott, left the explorers still 150 miles from the South Pole on January 3, Polar experts here are strongly of the opinion that Captain Scott will achieve the great object for which he set out. The fact that his message brought back to New Zealand by the Terra Nova, declared that he was remaining in the Ant-Arctic for another winter, in order to complete his work, is taken as an indication that the party is in good health, abundantly supplied and in a position to continue the march to the pole.

Capt. Scott was still advancing on the date of his last message and those familiar with Ant-Arctic exploration express the opinion that he would probably reach the pole before the end of January. Among those favoring this view are Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the noted Norwegian explorer who in an interview at Christiania yesterday, gave expression to this belief. All the London morning papers printed editorials, congratulating the members of the Scott expedition. They emphasize the fact that it was no mere dash for the pole, like that of Amundsen, but a thoroughly planned exploring expedition on a large scale, without any idea of racing for the pole, and that it has achieved results of the highest importance. A sinking point of difference in the experience of Amundsen and Scott, was that of sheer luck.

One of the big boxing clubs in London has made a rule that no second or any one connected with the club shall contest the referee being the only person to have that privilege.

It is no wonder that the San Francisco promoter "canned" Bombardier Wells, whom he had matched to box Al Parker July 4. Some one must have tipped Wells that the bout would draw a big crowd, and he asked the promoter for $20,000 for his end. As the bout would hardly draw that amount, the promoter thought it best to call the bout off.

What

Good Fuel Is to an Engine

Right food is to the body—the source of vital energy.

Grape-Nuts

is a good food in every sense of the word.

It is made from the natural food grains—wheat and barley; is perfectly cooked; partially pre-digested for easy, quick assimilation; and has fine flavour.

Besides being rich in body-building elements, it contains the Phosphate of Potash (grown in the grain) which Nature specially requires for rebuilding the tissue cells in brain and nerves, and which can only be supplied through daily food.

MR. LEGER OF GLOUCESTER TALKS ON THE BUDGET

Following is a report of the speech delivered in the Legislature on Tuesday evening by Mr. S. A. Leger, of Gloucester:

In rising at this time in the debate on the budget, I do not do so with the intention of making a long speech. I wish merely to draw the attention of the House to one or two things which go to show how far the government have been from meeting the result they promised would take place under their administration. Take for instance their new Road Law, under which they promised that the expenditures on roads would be placed in the hands of the people through the Municipal Councils. If I can take my own County as an example, then I can safely say that the Road Law has been a sad failure so far as placing road money under control of the people. I am myself, Mr. Speaker, by reason of my position as a County Councillor, a member of the Caracquet Highway Board and I can prove it, that our Highway Board does not receive the money to expend upon the roads that come from the government as I see by the public works report, there has been $495.00 spent in 1911 on the roads in the parish of Caracquet where I live and not one cent passes through the hands of the Highway Board but was placed in the hands of special commissioners. Why, Mr. Speaker, in two cases in which, as a member of the Board, I became responsible for opening of roads, I had to pay the amounts out of my own pocket, as the government had completely ignored our board and its recommendations and estimates of requirements. Now this is true and I can produce the proof, if necessary. Such being the case, how can the government claim that road money is in the hands of the people. Why do they require special commissioners? It is because their political friends demand their pound of flesh?

Another question I wish to touch is that of immigration. While I do not wish to condemn immigration of a proper nature, yet I feel that the government should give more atten-

SHERBROOKE EXCITED OVER MORMON ELDERS

Sherbrooke, Que., April 2.—A sensation was caused at the city council at last night's meeting when a petition was submitted from L. J. Parkes asking that the council take immediate action to drive the Mormon Elders out. Three Mormon elders have been working here for the past three weeks and have caused considerable excitement. In supporting his petition, Mr. Parkes said it was not their religious teachings, but the fact that they believed in the book of Mormon and that book tolerated plural marriage. He claimed that they had as their ultimate aim to influence legislation to make plural marriages legal. He considered that if tolerated, they would ruin the national life by destroying the sanctity of the home.

A SEVERE COLD DEVELOPED INTO PNEUMONIA.

Doctors Said He Would Not Live.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE
SYRUP Cured Him.

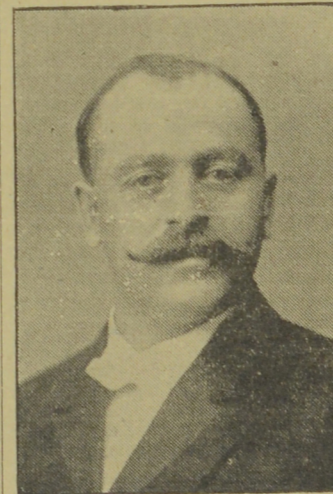

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that when a person catches cold it must be attended to immediately, or serious results are liable to follow.

There is only one way to prevent pneumonia, and that is, to cure the cold just as soon as it appears.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will do this quickly and effectively.

Mr. Hugh McLeod, Esterhazy, Sask., writes:—"My little boy took a very severe cold, and it developed into pneumonia. The doctor said he would not live. I got some of your Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and he began to improve. Now, he is a strong healthy child, and shows no sign of it coming back."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
