"Another trust, I suppose."
"Certain people might call it that," chuckled the old man. "Willis was the inspiring genius and did most of the work; the credit is his."

"May I inquire the nature of this merger?" Emerson ventured.

"Certainly," replied Wayne Wayland. "There is no longer any secret about it. I have combined the packing industries of the Pacific coast under the name of the North American Packers' association."

Boyd felt himself growing numb. "What do you mean by 'packing industries'?" asked Mildred.

"Canneries—salmon fisheries! We own 60 per cent of the plants of the entire coast, including Alaska. That's why I've been so keen about that north country, Boyd. You never guessed it, eh?"

"No, sir," Boyd stammered. "Well, we control the supply, and we will regulate the market. We will allow only what competition we desire. It was a beautiful transaction."

Was he dreaming? Boyd wondered. His mouth was dry, but he managed to inquire:

"What about the independent canneries?"

Marsh laughed. "There is no sentiment in business! There are about 40 per cent too many plants to suit us. I believe I am capable of attending to them."

"Mr. Marsh is the general manager," Wayland explained. "With the market in our own hands and sufficient capital to operate at a loss for a year or two years, if necessary, I don't think the independent plants will cost us much."

Now for the first time Emerson realized the impropriety of his own present position. He was here in the Wayland home under false pretenses; they had bared to him secrets not rightly his with which he might arm himself. When this, too, became known to the financier he would regard him not only as a presumptuous enemy, but as a traitor. Boyd knew the old tyrant too well to doubt his course of action; therefore there would be war to the hilt.

The announcement of dinner interrupted his dismayed reflections, and he walked out in company with Mr. Wayland, who linked arms with him as if to afford Willis Marsh every advantage, fleeing though it might prove.

"He is a wonderful fellow," the old gentleman observed sotto voce, indicating Marsh—"one of the keenest business men I ever met."

"Yes?"

"Indeed he is. He is a money maker, too; his associates swear by him. If I were you, my boy, I would study him; he is a good man to imitate."

At the dinner table the talk at first was general and of a character appropriate for the hour, but Miss Wayland, oddly enough, displayed such an unusual thirst for information regarding the North American Packers' association that her father was moved to remark upon it.

"What in the world has come over you, Mildred?" he said. "You never cared to hear about my doings before."

"Please don't discourage me," she urged. "I am really in earnest. I should like to know all about this new trust of yours. Perhaps my little universe is growing a bit tiresome to me."

"So far it has been all hard work," Wayne Wayland at length announced, "but in the future I propose to derive some pleasure from this affair. I am tired out. For a long time I have been planning a trip somewhere, and now I think I shall make a tour of inspection in the spring and visit the various holdings of the North American Packers' association. In that way I can combine recreation and business."

"How far will you go?" questioned Boyd.

"Clear up to Mr. Marsh's station," "Kalvik?"

"Yes; that is the plan," Marsh chimed in. "You see, I am selfish in urging it, Miss Wayland. I expect you to join the party."

"I am sure you would like it, Mildred," the magnate added.

Boyd could scarcely believe his ears. Would they come to Kalvik? Would they all assemble there in that unmap-ped nook? And, supposing they should, had he the courage to continue his mad enterprise? It was all so unreal! He was torn between the desire to have Mildred agree and fear of the influence Marsh might gain during such a trip. But Miss Wayland evidently had an eye to her own comfort, for she replied:

"No, indeed! The one thing I abhor above land travel is a sea voyage; I am a wretched sailor."

"But this trip on a yacht would be worth while," urged her father. "Why, it will be a regular voyage of discovery. I am as excited over it as a country boy on circus day."

Marsh seconded him with all his powers of persuasion, but the girl, greatly to Emerson's surprise, merely reaffirmed her determination.

EFFECTS WERE MARVELLOUS

When I Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

HARDWICKE, N.B., Jan. 17th, 1910.
"I feel it my duty to give you a statement in respect to the wonderful cure I received by taking 'Fruit-a-tives'. Chronic Constipation was the complaint I suffered from for years. My general health was miserable as a result of this disease, and I became depressed and alarmed. I was treated by physicians without the slightest permanent benefit, and I tried all kinds of pills and tablets."

"I saw the strong testimonial in favor of 'Fruit-a-tives' by New Brunswick's 'Grand Old Man' Senator Costigan, and I knew that anything he stated was honest and true and given only to help his fellow-men. I tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and the effects were most marvellous, and now I am entirely well from all my Chronic Constipation that I suffered with for years." A. G. WILLISTON.
"Fruit-a-tives" will cure you, just as they cured Mr. Williston. Get a box today—take them—and begin to feel better. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. At all dealers, or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

ASK LIFE FOR WOMAN

Boston, Mass., Mar. 30—A determined effort is being made to have the death sentence of Mrs. Lena Cusumano, convicted of murdering her husband and sentenced to be electrocuted in the State Prison at Charlestown the first of June, commuted to life imprisonment. No attempt is being made as yet to secure a commutation of the sentence of Enrico Mascioli, who was convicted of the same crime as Mrs. Cusumano and sentenced to be electrocuted on the same date.

Mrs. Cusumano and Mascioli were convicted of the murder of the woman's husband. The crime was committed in Hull in September, 1910. A few weeks after the disappearance of Cusumano his body was found on the shore and an autopsy disclosed that he was murdered. The trial took place in the historic town of Plymouth. A number of witnesses testified, the most important of whom was the seven-year-old daughter of Mrs. Cusumano, who identified the quilt in which Cusumano's body was wrapped, as one that was on her father's bed. Other witnesses were Mrs. Cusumano's sisters, who testified against her.

Both defendants testified, denying the crime, but the evidence, such as the finding of a blood-stained ax, a hole in the ground near the Cusumano house and a bundle of blood-stained clothing belonging to Mrs. Cusumano, was so strong that the jury found the pair guilty after short deliberation.

It is believed there is little doubt that the efforts to secure a commutation of the woman's sentence will succeed. It is the first time in the history of Massachusetts that a woman was sentenced to die in the electric chair, as it is the first time in the memory of persons of this generation that a woman was condemned to death in this State. The cases were the first in Plymouth in twenty-five years that a person has been convicted of first degree murder.

WAS TERRIBLY NERVOUS.

WOULD START AT THE LEAST NOISE.

Wherever there are people who are troubled with deranged nerves they will find that Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will restore the equilibrium of these deranged centres, and bring back the shattered nervous system to a perfect condition.

Miss Emma Read, Laskay, Ont., writes:—"I have great pleasure in writing to tell you about the great benefit I have received by using your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. About a year ago I was very badly run down and could hardly do my work. I tried different medicines but none of them did me any good. I was terribly nervous, and would start at the least noise, and even start in my sleep, which made me very weak. I used two boxes of your pills and I am now well and strong again."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25. For sale at all dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
