MYSTERY OF SCOTTISH MOUNTAIN IS UNSOLVED

London, June 27.—The strange mystery of the onely Scottish mountain of Benachie remains unsolved.

On May 10th, 1914, a boy named Francis Stephen Hay, 22 months old, was missed from his home at Corlethen. The surrounding district is mountainous, and careful search was made for the boy for weeks afterwards by parties who scoured the hills. On March 25 last, an interval of seven years the body was found by Benachie a high mountain over a mile from where the boy lived.

How a child of such tender years covered such a distance and climbed such a height has been a subject that has engrossed the attention of the people in the district since the body was found and a judicial enquiry has just been held at Aberdeen.

At the close of the inquiry the jury were unable to state the cause of death, and they attached no blame to the mother or any other party interested in the boy. One suggestion was made at the inquiry, that the child may have been carried off by an eagle.

Alexander Hay, Dorlethen, grandfather of the child, who was warned by the sheriff that he was at liberty to decline to answer any question, said as a baby the child was the son of a Mrs. Aitken at Kintore, and when he reached the age of 21 months, at the beginning of May, 1914, he was taken back to Dorlethen.

CLAIM ON FAMILY PEW HEARD IN COURT

(By Dominion News Service.)

London, June 29.—An interesting claim to an ancient family pew has come before the Court of Arches. As appeal was made by Earl Bathurst from a decision of the Chancellor of the Diocese of Gloucester. An application had been made by the Earl for a degree to be made by faculty or otherwise to confirm and appropriate the use of three pews in the Trinity Chapel of Cirencester Parish Church to him and his successors, the owners and occupiers of Cirencester House; and this application was dismissed by the Chancellor, on the ground that the evidence did not prove that a legal or equitable right to the pews had been established by the issue of a faculty. From the decision the Earl Bathurst has now appealed.

In his petition Lord Bathurst said his ancestor, the first Earl, had a proprietary right in a large pew in the gallery known as the Bathurst Gallery, which was formerly over a portion of the north aisle of the church. This proprietary right had been granted by faculty in 1718, but in 1852 the gallery was removed by faculty, whereupon three pews in the Trinity Chapel were appropriated to the then Earl Bathurst, who thereupon obtained a proprietary right in then in lieu of the faculty pew in the Bathurst gallery. These pews have been occupied by Earl Bathurst for the time being, and the persons of the household of Cirencester House, down to the present time. The case was adjourned.

On the hill were the remains of her child. She did not know if the child could get up to the place where the skeleton was found. She did not know how far a child was able to run in a day. She denied having had anything to do with the disappearance of her child.

Alexander McMillan, woodcutter said in February of this year when he was marking trees on Benachie he found a human skull. It was broken. He was not sure at that time whether it was the skull of a human being or an animal and he threw it down in the undergrowth.

On March 25th, he was working with his brother, on the hill, when he found the skull again, and showed it to his brother. They searched for other human bones, and went up the hill five or six yards, and came on the skeleton of a child and boots. Only the tips of the boots were showing above the needles. He did not touch them, but went for the police, and showed them where he had found them. The body was not buried on the hill.

Other witnesses spoke of searching the mountains and one witness said there were no eagles in the district at the time. An open verdict was returned.

THE HUNTER knows the value of MINARD'S

ELLISON Gray, a well known Nova Scotia guide, writes:

"I have used MINARD'S LINIMENT in my home, hunting and lumber camps for years and consider it the best white liniment on the market. I find that it gives quick relief to minor ailments, such as Sprains, Bruises and all kinds of wounds. Also it is a great remedy for coughs, colds, etc., which one is liable to catch when log driving and cruising during the winter and spring months. I would not be without MINARD'S LINIMENT and cannot recommend it too highly."
