SEAPLANES ARE FEASIBLE FOR SPORTSMEN

HENRY BRAITHWAITE IS CONSIDERING THEM

Planes for Forest Patrol Might be Made Use of by Guides—This City a Central Point.

"Uncle" Henry Braithwaite, the veteran guide and trapper of this city, is firmly of the opinion that within a few years the seaplane will be utilized to convey non-resident hunting parties to and from the hunting grounds of New Brunswick. Mr. Braithwaite, who spends the greater part of his time in the woods, happened to be home last fall when a seaplane made a stop at this port while en route from Halifax to the Upper Provinces. It was the first time he had ever beheld such a craft and naturally he was very much interested. He saw it light in the river below the highway bridge and noted the fact that it came to a stop after skimming along the water for less than two hundred yds. "Why" said he in speaking of the matter recently to a representative of The Mail, "there are hundreds of lakes in our big woods where such craft could make a landing without the slightest difficulty. The Big Southwest Lake is about seventy five miles from Fredericton as the crow flies, and I calculate that a seaplane could make the trip easily in an hour. Just think what a saving in time that would mean to the sporting men. The plane could make a trip in the forenoon with the supplies and return in a short time for the hunters and guides. It would certainly be a pretty soft thing to negotiate the Duganovon portage in a flying machine, and I hope to live long enough to make the trip."

Fredericton Well Located

Mr. Braithwaite went on to say that the adoption of the seaplane as a means of transportation to the hunting grounds would mean much to Fredericton as this city because of its central location and splendid river, would become the principal air station.
